Go with green

UNSCHEDULED PAINT JOB. Eastbound traffic on Dundee Road near Elmhurst Road was delayed for about 50 minutes Wednesday as Wheeling public works crews cleaned up bright green paint which had spilled on to the street about noon. The paint poured from a 55-gallon barrel which apparently had rolled off an unidentified truck. Sand was used in an attempt to absorb the paint.

Scanlon to appoint members

Panel to study impact of home rule on village

Wheeling will appoint a seven-man committee to study the consequences of securing home-rule powers for the village.

The village board earlier this week authorized the formation of the committee to "investigate and make a report to the board on the pros and cons of home rule." The board also asked Village Atty. John Burke to report on the legal aspects of home rule.

The committee will be appointed by Village Pres. Ted C. Scanlon with the consent of the board of trustees.

Trustee Gilbert Monoson voted against appointment of the citizen's committee, saying he believed the committee should be made up of chairmen of village commissions. He said allowing Scanlon to appoint the committee could have political overtones.

"IF THE VILLAGE president appoints a committee, there could be political infighting. I feel it's in the interests of everyone concerned if home rule doesn't become a political issue," he said.

Under home rule, the village would have all powers not specifically prohibited by law. The village is subject to county, state and federal laws, and all local ordinances must be in compliance with them. The ordinances of home-rule communities supercede all but federal law.

The village must conduct a referendum to assume home-rule powers because Wheeling has a population under 25,000.

All communities with populations of 25,000 or more automatically have home-rule powers under state law. Wheeling's population is 19,000.

Reduction seen in road taxes in Wheeling Twp.

Wheeling Township residents will pay less in road and bridge taxes next year because the recent incorporation of Prospect Heights is slicing the township's road maintenance responsibilities in half.

Highway Comr. Arthur Olsen said he must adjust the Wheeling Township Road and Bridge District's 1976-77 budget to account for the incorporation of the new city earlier this year. The current budget is $645,263.

MONOSON EARLIER this year called for a referendum on home rule to be conducted along with the April 1977 municipal elections. He said home rule "takes a lot of decision-making away from the state and county and puts it where it should be — with the municipality."

Monoson said home rule is "probably three years away anyway" because the village will become a home-rule community when the population reaches 25,000.

Several trustees have said they are concerned about home rule because it gives broader taxing powers to the village. Trustee John Cole said home rule is a good concept, but "people fail to consider that the county and state won't let go. You've basically created another monstrous taxing body."

Paramedic plan works, but not without cash woes

by LINDA PUNCH

The advent of paramedic service in the Wheeling Rural Fire Protection District has proved a godsend for residents and a headache for fire officials.

The rigid state requirements and guidelines that guarantee quality service for residents also create a financial crisis for the district. The fire districts answer — passage of an ambulance tax of up to 25 cents per $100 assessed valuation. The district will conduct a referendum on the issue Saturday.

Fire district officials said the ambulance tax is necessary to fund ambulance and paramedic service because general revenue funds can be used only for firefighting purposes. They note the demand for ambulance service has spiraled during the past years along with costs for providing the service.

THE FUNDING OF ambulance service is handled in a patchwork fashion in the district. Wheeling subsidizes the fire department by about $200,000 a year, which covers the service. Village officials also charge a $75 ambulance fee to nonresidents using the service.

During the period from May 1975 to April 1976, Wheeling paramedics answered 1,312 calls. Fire officials said calls this year are about 25 per cent ahead of last year. Wheeling Fire Chief Bernie Koeppen earlier this year said ambulance calls outnumbered fire calls by 2-1.

Koeppen said the operation of an ambulance, including salaries for six full-time paramedics, would cost about $173,276 a year. Wheeling firefighters double as paramedics on the village's two ambulances, reducing the over-all cost.

IN BUFFALO GROVE, donations and ambulance fees are the mainstay of the paramedic program. The village is unable to contribute tax funds to the department because it is a private corporation under contract to the

The Buffalo Grove department recently initiated a program in which families are guaranteed unlimited ambulance service for a $20 a year fee. Residents not enrolled in the program will be charged $70 per call.

Buffalo Grove Fire Chief Wayne Winter said he expects revenue totaling $32,000 from families enrolled in the program. He expects another $20,000 in ambulance fees from regular runs. The fire department budgeted $49,000 for paramedic and ambulance service for 1976. The Buffalo Grove department operates two ambulances.

Ambulance calls in Buffalo Grove have more than quadrupled since paramedic service began 3½ years ago. Winter said his department answered a "little more than 600 calls" in 1975. He said demand will increase slightly this year. About 60 per cent of the total fire calls are for ambulance service.

Harris surprised by Patty gunfire: clerk

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — William Harris was "surprised" and could have been killed when Patricia Hearst opened fire at a sporting goods store to rescue him, a witness said Wednesday at the trial of the Harris couple.

Anthony Shepard, a clerk and security guard, also admitted he did not see Harris actually shoplift anything at the store but "assumed" he had done so when he appeared to shove something down the sleeve of his shirt and it crackled like cellophane.

Under cross examination by defense lawyer Leonard Weinglass, Shepard told of bullets splattering around them as he wrestled with the SLA member in the street trying to handcuff Harris.

Harris and his wife, Emily, are charged with kidnap, assault and robbery stemming from the May, 1974, incident. Miss Hearst's trial has been severed from theirs.

Shepard said he was straddling Harris and that Mrs. Harris had climbed on his back when Miss Hearst opened up from a van in a parking lot nearby.

"How many bullets were there?" Weinglass asked.

"I didn't stop to count them," Shepard said.

Weinglass asked where they were striking. Shepard said they were all around.

"They could have hit Bill Harris," he said. "He could have been dead. He said, 'Hey, you better get out of here.' From the tone of his voice it was as if he didn't really know what was happening."

"Did his tone of voice indicate surprise?" "Yes, he appeared to be surprised."

Shepard said he "shimmied like a worm" about six feet along the pavement and took shelter behind a street lamp post. Harris jumped up and he and his wife ran to the van and drove off.

Shepard said he fired two shots from his own pistol as the Volkswagen moved out but missed. Weinglass brought out that Shepard fired across a busy street and pedestrian walkway and that the two bullets hit another store.

Weinglass asked if Shepard had been charged with endangering the public.

"No," the witness said.

Shepard said that during the struggle Harris managed to pull a .38 caliber revolver from his waistband.

"Did you see him point the revolver at anyone?" Weinglass asked.

"No, but I'm sure he would have used it after he got the chance."

Weinglass objected to that supposition and Superior Court Judge Mark Brandler ordered the answer stricken.

Shepard said he never heard either William or Emily Harris call across to Miss Hearst for help.

He said Harris never made any gestures for help but added that he was holding him down so that he could not have done it.

Report Uganda intercepts neighbors' fuel supplies

NAIROBI, Kenya (UPI) — Ugandan President Idi Amin's regime has intercepted gasoline supplies bound for three neighboring African nations, the Kenya news agency reported Wednesday.

Refugees fleeing to Kenya Wednesday said Ugandan soldiers killed seven Kenyans and severely wounded an eighth man. Other reports from the border said soldiers were looting widespread areas of the interior of the country because of food shortages.

The refugees, nine women, a man and six children, said they had to hide in the bush in Uganda's Namongo area before catching a train to Kenya. Two women, Mrs. Mary Alieno and Mrs. Patricia Aloo Odwar, said the Ugandan soldiers were "merciless."

Police in Nairobi said they picked up about 900 "undesirables" Tuesday night, but released many of them Wednesday. The Nairobi branch of the ruling Kenya African National Union party claimed Ugandan military intelligence personnel "are flocking into Kenya disguised as refugees . . . to kidnap and if possible kill" anyone opposed to Amin.

Relations between the two east African nations have worsened almost daily since the Israeli raid on Uganda's Entebbe airport July 3.

Quoting reports from travelers and truck drivers crossing the Kenya border, the official news agency said Uganda held up gasoline tankers at Jinja, 60 miles inside Uganda and midway along the road to the capital of Kampala.

The shipments from the Kenyan refinery at Mombasa, the Indian Ocean port which is the largest industrial complex in east Africa, were bound for Zaire, Rwanda and the Sudan.

In London, meantime, the Foreign office reported Uganda ordered the expulsion of Britain's acting high commissioner in Kampala.

However, despite Amin's threats to deport the 500 Britons still in the African nation, a Foreign Office spokesman said there are no immediate plans to organize a rescue airlift.

Ten members of Parliament protesting the reported murder of the only hijack hostage left in Uganda after the Israeli commando raid July 3 complained they were "deliberately snubbed" Wednesday by Amin's envoy to London.

The Parliament members, representing all major political parties, said Uganda's High Commission office was locked when they tried to present a letter of protest.

Kampala's acting high commissioner, Frederick Isingoma, ignored the group and walked away from the building at Trafalgar Square when he saw them standing outside, the MPs said.

Amin said he was expelling Britain's acting high commissioner, James Horrocks, because he was "involved" in the Israeli raid that rescued more than 100 hijack hostages at Entebbe airport.

The Ugandan president also warned: "These people who have big mouths talking on behalf of the Israelis, such as the British, will pay very heavily. Some British will be deported from Uganda because of security reasons."

Syrians battle to control Baalbek

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — Syrian forces fought a house-to-house battle for control of the ancient city of Baalbek Wednesday and Palestinian sources charged a force of 1,000 fresh Syrian Army troops crossed into Lebanon.

In the South, Syrian army units pulled back from the leftist-held port of Sidon Wednesday, setting the stage for a possible new cease-fire with Palestinian guerrilla forces on that front.

The Palestinian news agency Wafa confirmed the Syrian withdrawal from Sidon, 30 miles south of Beirut, to the village of Jezzine, 14 miles inland. Palestinian sources said four Syrian battalions also pulled back beyond Jezzine to the Bekaa valley, fulfilling a key Palestinian demand.

Syrian gunners have shelled Sidon off and on for the past month, causing heavy damage inside the city and destroying the large American-owned Zahran oil refinery where fires still burned out of control.

The Palestinians also charged, however, that 1,000 tank-led Syrian troops crossed Lebanon's eastern border to join the more than 15,000 Syrian army forces already in Lebanon.

Reports reaching Beirut from reporters in Baalbek, in the Syrian-occupied Bekaa Valley 55 miles northeast of the capital, said a Syrian armored force attacked Palestinian positions in the city and seized control of their base camp.

Palestinian spokesmen said they lost radio contact Tuesday night but reported house-to-house fighting in the town Wednesday.

In North Lebanon, Syrian forces shelled the Palestinian camp of Nahr el Bared on the northern outskirts of Tripoli with mortars and rockets, leftist and Palestinian reports said.

In Beirut, Christian forces tightened their siege on the Tal Zaatar camp, on the city's southeastern outskirts, but rightist commanders said they planned to "starve the Palestinians out" rather than risk a full-scale ground attack. Sporadic machinegun fire echoed through the ruins of the capital's commercial district but neither side attempted to seize much new ground.

LEBANESE CHRISTIAN forces attack Palestinian battles have raged for several weeks. In foreground stronghold of Tal-Zaatar, near Beirut, where savage are Christian Phalangist troops.

Name for Viking landing site sought

PASADENA, Calif. (UPI) — Viking 1 project scientists Wednesday were studying photos and geological data of Viking 1's landing site on Mars, a basin similar to California's Death Valley.

The landing site was chosen after extensive photography and other data sent back by the spacecraft, was called the Western Slope of Chryse.

But flight team members from the U.S. Geological Survey were trying to find a definite name for the landing area.

Chryse is the name for the river delta area of Mars first selected for a landing site but abandoned after it was found to be too hazardous. Another site, to the northwest, also was considered and also found to be dangerous.

The new area for landing, next Tuesday at 7:12 a.m. CDT, is in a basin about one and a quarter miles deep that fringes the western rim of the great Chryse basin. The landing ellipse, or actual 130-miles by 60-miles landing area, is between former two rivers or flood systems.

Dr. Carl Sagan, head of planetary sciences at Cornell University and a member of the Viking landing imaging team, said the water that cut surface grooves through the Martian soil apparently occurred hundreds of millions of years ago.

Scientists have said that Mars had many flooding periods in its past, but usually is in glacial period with very infrequent warming episodes.

Sagan said impact craters which have occurred since the last shallow flooding of the basin are millions of years old.

Viking 2, meantime, is speeding toward Mars orbit Aug. 7. It is scheduled to land Sept. 4.

Ford signs $32.5 billion defense act

President Ford Wednesday signed a $32.5 billion Defense Appropriations Authorization Act which will buy weapons systems, fund research and development and support the military reserves. The bill authorizes a top troop strength of 2,092,600 on active duty. The measure provides for $213 million in repair and modernization funds and provides a supplemental appropriation of $8 million for repairs for the U.S.S. Belknap which was damaged in a collision in the Mediterranean. The act is only an authorization expressing the intent of Congress to fund the programs. Further action is required to actually appropriate money from the treasury.

U.S. ends commando raid debate

The U. N. Security Council concluded debate on Israel's commando raid of Uganda's Entebbe airport Wednesday without adopting either an African resolution condemning Israel or an Anglo-American measure against terrorism. The African resolution was withdrawn by Ambassador Salim A. Salim of Tanzania, whose delegation sponsored it along with Benin and Libya. The vote on the resolution condemning terrorism, which needed nine votes to pass, got only six. The United States, Britain, France, Japan, Italy and Sweden voted for it. Benin, China, Guyana, Tanzania, Libya, Pakistan and the Soviet Union said they would not participate.

Franco-era penal codes revised

The Spanish Cortes Wednesday passed a bill revising the Franco-era penal codes to make most opposition political parties legal. But it rejected another proposal that could have legalized the Communist party. The 554-member parliament passed the bill, amending the Spanish penal code which outlawed opposition activities and provided stiff punishments, by a vote of 245 votes to 175 with 57 abstentions. Justice Minister Laureano Lavilla described the passage as a "firm step . . . toward a modern democracy."

Cosmonaut pair perform medical tests

Two Soviet cosmonauts aboard the orbiting Salyut 5 space station Wednesday performed medical tests on each other to study the effects of weightlessness. The Tass news agency said Col. Boris Volynov and Lt. Col. Vitaly Zholobov felt fine as they began their eighth day in space. Tass said they studied the functioning of the heart and circulatory systems, took blood samples and measured breathing.

Hotel chain creator Charles Ritz dead at 84

Truman Capote

• Charles Ritz, 84, creator of the celebrated hotel chain that became a synonym for luxury, died Sunday in the Ritz hotel in Paris, company officials said Tuesday. Ritz, who had been in poor health for some time, had dual French and Swiss citizenship, but spent most of his life in Paris where he inherited the first Ritz Hotel founded by his father, Cesar. He will be buried Friday in the presence of only a few friends. The Ritz chain will continue under the management of Mrs. Monique Ritz, the late hotel owner's widow.

• Jessie Hunt, 74, ignored her doctor's advice to quit having children 46 years ago. After eight children she developed a kidney infection and a doctor said she would die if she had any more. Things just happened and she gave birth to eight more. She now has 68 grandchildren and 85 great grandchildren. Mrs. Hunt — of Heperia, Mich. — said: "Since I've gone this far, I hope to see my 100th great grandchild before I die."

• President Ford got an "excellent health" report from his doctor for his 63rd birthday Wednesday and was taken out to lunch by his wife, Betty. "The results of the laboratory tests and physical examination were completely normal and I have found the President to be in excellent health," Dr. William Lukash reported.

• Author Truman Capote pleaded guilty Tuesday to a drunken driving charge, paid a $165 fine and enrolled himself in a rehabilitation course for persons convicted of driving while intoxicated. The author was arrested May 30 by state police after his car collided with another vehicle in Bridgehampton, N.Y. There were no injuries.

Bumper corn crop needs rain: official

Illinois Agriculture director Robert Williams Wednesday said federal forecasts of a bumper corn crop will materialize only if rains come quickly to the Midwest. Williams, just named to run Jimmy Carter's rural Midwest campaign, attributed the optimistic U.S. Dept. of Agriculture prediction to politics. "While a record corn crop is the kind of thing the USDA likes to report, especially in an election year, it is based on what would happen if everything went well but that simply isn't the case now," Williams said. "It is during this fast-moving stage that the corn is fertilized or pollinated. The plant has to have adequate conditions for this to be successful. So if we don't get the rain and an end to hot, dry winds, corn yields very simply will be reduced," Williams said.

EPA cancels gaseous watch

The Illinois Environmental Protection Agency Wednesday canceled its sulphur dioxide watch for Springfield and 17 west central counties. An EPA spokesman said the watch, first ever called for the area, was canceled at 9 a.m.

Aurora to increase drug force

Additional personnel will be assigned to enforce drug laws in Aurora, city officials said in a statement circulated Wednesday. The officials denied there had been an increase in drug related crimes but said because of "a great deal of public attention" and "concern by other public officials additional personnel will be assigned to enforce the drug laws in the city." The statement was issued in response to a critical report issued in June by the Illinois Legislative Investigating Commission. The report, prepared for the Illinois General Assembly, cited Aurora as a key Mexican heroin distribution center and said the city had the worst drug problem in northern Illinois.

Bureau suspends 225 union strikers

The Illinois Bureau of Employment Security has suspended 25 striking workers and plans to fire them, an IBES official said Wednesday. Sue Kolker, IBES director of communications, said the suspension notices were prepared Tuesday and sent to the workers who have been on strike since July 7. The strikers, members of the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees, Local 1000, walked out a week ago to protest alleged discrimination in the discharge of employees.

The union claimed 123 employees, most of them women and minority group members, had been fired while newly hired and higher paid professionals were kept. The suspension notices said the workers had been "absent without authorization for five consecutive work days." The notices said that as of Tuesday night the strikers were suspended "subject to discharge." The suspended workers were told to report Friday to a hearing to explain their absence.

Man jailed in doctor's slaying

Frank Love, 21, Chicago, was sentenced Wednesday to 25 to 40 years in prison for the murder of a Highland Park doctor who died of a heart attack during a 1975 kidnapping. Two of the doctor's patients were killed during the kidnapping. Cook County Circuit Court Judge James E. Strunk also sentenced Love to concurrent terms of 6 to 20 years in prison for one count of conspiracy to commit aggravated kidnapping and three counts of aggravated kidnapping. A seven-man five-woman jury June 18 acquitted Love of the murders of the patients, Minnie Harris, 21, and her sister, Tressie, 27, but found him guilty of the death of Dr. Lawrence Gluckman, 49.

Although Assistant Cook County State's Attorneys Harry Wilson and Thomas Cullum said during the trial that as many as seven other persons took part in the kidnap conspiracy, only one other person was indicted, Delores Townsend, 38, Chicago, was named in an indictment on the same charges that Love was tried. She was found mentally unfit to stand trial on Feb. 6.

Women are tigers, Bonnie says

Underneath every woman's delicate little girl (image), says Bonnie Swearingen, "is a tiger who will stand up for her rights." The blond wife of John Swearingen, the Standard Oil of Indiana's board chairman, was setting the record straight in a speech to the Chicago Rotary Club on "America's Greatest Natural Resource: Woman." In it Mrs. Swearingen, one of Chicago's most visible wives, said she disliked being called a "socialite," maintaining it is "shallow and antiquated." She said she washes dishes, scrubs floor and takes out garbage like other women.

She also said she dislikes the term "housewife" because she is "a man's wife — not married to a house." Elegantly dressed and coiffed, Mrs. Swearingen scoffed at women's libbers, charging they have turned the movement "into a crusade without a purpose."

We're scorched as temperatures hit 3-digit range

Electronic bank thermometers were pushed up into the three-digit range Wednesday as record-tying high temperatures scorched Chicago and the Northwest suburbs.

But as the evening gush of high winds and cooling rains swept over the suburbs, some areas were damaged as they cooled off.

Electrical wires were torn down in some of the Northwest suburbs, and trees were uprooted and shingles were blown off of roofs as a brief wind and rain storm moved eastward.

As the high winds swept through Palatine, several power lines went down and there was some water damage to property in the village oasis, Ill. Rte. 14, west of Smith Road. Behind the Palatine Shopping Plaza, a power line and an electrical transformer fell to the ground, crushing an empty stationwagon.

A 17-FOOT WILLOW tree was uprooted in Palatine's Winston Park area, falling into a neighbor's yard. However, no injuries due to wind damage were reported in Palatine.

The storm carried strong winds to Arlington Heights, tearing down trees and wires. According to police Wednesday night, the winds caused little property damage in Wheeling and Mount Prospect. The storm apparently lost its turbulence when it moved east, as Des Plaines police reported no damage in their city.

The National Weather Service reported an official high of 99 degrees at Midway Airport shortly after 3 p.m. tying a record set in 1974.

Unofficially, the temperature sign at one area bank showed 101 degrees at 2:15 p.m.

Commonwealth Edison Co. reported an all-time record demand for electricity Wednesday afternoon as residents and businesses turned their air conditioners to high.

THE UTILITY is bracing for more hot weather today, said Jack Stephens, Commonwealth Edison's superintendent of public affairs for the northwest area. The yearly peak demand is generally recorded in August, he said.

There is little chance of a brown out this summer, Stephens said, since the power company has 15 to 20 per cent additional generating capacity above yesterday's peak.

Despite the hot weather, there were no local reports of pavement buckling, and area hospitals said they did not see any cases of heat prostration.

Wednesday's 99 degrees made it the second hottest day of the year. A 100-degree reading was reported last Saturday.

Drunk driving series cited by bar association

A Herald series on "Justice and the drunken driver" has been named a certificate of merit winner in the annual Gavel Awards program of the American Bar Assn.

The ABA will present awards to winners cited for "outstanding contributions to public understanding of the American system of law and justice" at its annual meeting Aug. 10 in Atlanta, Ga. "Although the over-all caliber of entries received this year was exceptionally high, we were most impressed by the significant improvement in the materials presented by newspapers under 50,000 circulation (the category that includes The Herald)," Martin Gang, chairman of the ABA committee on Gavel Awards, said.

The series was researched and written by Toni Ginnetti and Al Messerschmidt. Published in July and August 1975, it followed months of research on drunken driving arrests in the Northwest suburbs and their disposition in suburban courts.

Fabish urges disannex from fire district

by BILL HURLEY

Edward Fabish, Buffalo Grove Village president Wednesday called for the village to disannex from the Wheeling Rural Fire Protection District and form its own fire department within a year.

"We would like to see it (fire protection) go municipal in the next year, but I honestly don't believe we could make the turnover in that length of time," he said.

Fabish said he has worked on three study committees looking into a possible municipal fire department and has found the biggest problem to be funding.

FABISH SAID A municipality cannot tax as high as a fire district unless a special referendum is passed by village residents. Such referendums have not been popular in Buffalo Grove in the past, he said.

Society hinders mobility of disabled: expert

by MARSHA S. BOSLEY

The handicapped population has been hindered from making a "normal transition into the working world," said Norman Koshkarian, casework supervisor for the Illinois Division of Vocational Rehabilitation.

Serving 39 suburbs in north and northwest Cook County, the rehabilitation office, 1050 Prospect Plaza, Mount Prospect, is one of 30 agencies of its kind throughout the state. It is funded 80 per cent by the federal government and 20 per cent in the state.

Koshkarian and nine full-time counselors trained in the social sciences work with the physically and emotionally disabled who are vocationally handicapped. "We try to prepare the individual to enter into a working situation where his handicap will not cut short his career," Koshkarian said.

The agency aids the congenitally handicapped as well as those persons who became disabled later in life. Koshkarian said the agency strives to place the handicapped back into society where they can feel they are of value. "In essence, they have been discriminated against, for example, by virtue of architectural barriers in society," he said.

ABOUT 10 PER cent of the U. S. population is disabled. "The problem is that the total population many times is unaware of this part of the population," Koshkarian said. "Like the alcoholic population, we don't see all of them. Not all of them seek treatment. Not everybody wants rehabilitation services."

Koshkarian said persons who visit the agency either have overcome their handicap and seek vocational direction, or are "angry" because they have not adjusted to their problems.

Last year, the agency helped rehabilitate 649 people. About 9,000 were rehabilitated statewide, including persons with psychotic, psychoneurotic, personality and behavioral disorders. Physical disabilities treated include the blind, the deaf, the speech impaired and the paraplegic.

KOSHKARIAN SAID his office handles about 900 ongoing cases, excluding another 300 referrals that must be assigned to the counselors. The referral sources include public schools, private physicians and individuals.

Once an individual is referred to the Division of Vocational Rehabilitation, the agency verifies the disability and provides vocational counseling and future training for jobs such as typing and stenography. Koshkarian said handicapped have been placed in jobs ranging from assembly-line tasks to teaching.

Successful rehabilitation can take from a few weeks to four to five years, Koshkarian said. "No rehabilitation is complete until an individual is employed or just as independent as anyone else," he said.

Fabish said if the fire protection was transferred to a municipal operation, the costs would probably increase because it would be more difficult to find volunteer firemen.

Another problem in going municipal would be getting the Long Grove Fire district to disannex the Lake County portion of the village that it provides fire protection for. The district now levies a tax on Lake County Buffalo Grove residents and would be hurt by the loss of revenue. Fabish said there is a "jealous mistrust" between the two fire districts.

"As far as we're concerned, we're happy the way it is. We haven't had any problems," said Melvin Towner, Long Grove fire chief. He said Buffalo Grove would have to build another fire station if it formed a municipal department to give the same amount of service to northern Buffalo Grove, as it currently receives from Long Grove.

FABISH SAID IF Buffalo Grove could get the Long Grove and Wheeling fire districts to disannex the village area but fail to pass a tax referendum, it could consider forming a municipal fire district. Such a district would serve the entire village but would be a separate taxing body with the ability to tax at a higher rate than the village.

The Buffalo Grove Fire Dept., is large enough to protect the entire village although it is restricted to the Cook County portion, according to Buffalo Grove Fire Chief Wayne Winter.

"You're not going to have as efficient fire protection with three departments (the Vernon Rural Fire District covers a small northeast corner of the village) as you would with just one," Winter said.

"OUR DEPARTMENT is large enough to protect our town. Any other services which come from other districts is just duplication," he said.

Winter said money used to increase services in the Long Grove department to help cover much of Buffalo Grove is wasted. It could be used to improve services in the Buffalo Grove department if it was responsible for the entire village, he said.

Winter said there are no immediate efforts to create a municipal fire department which would be funded and operated by the village and serve within its boundaries. Buffalo Grove now has no responsibility for fire protection.

"It's a matter of economics. We're a growing village and officials need money elsewhere. They figure they don't have to handle this thing right now. Their priorities are in other areas," Winter said.

THE ADVANTAGES of having one fire district for a village include better efficiency in fire protection and the use of money and lower fire insurance costs to residents.

Winter said a village covered by three fire districts is charged higher insurance costs because of poorer efficiency. He said insurance companies rate a village on over-all fire protection. A district with poor fire protection will offset the advantages of another district which has good coverage, he said.

Fabish said another problem is that new residents don't know who to call in a village served by three fire districts. "If they call the wrong department, there's going to be some delay," he said.

Officials of the Wheeling fire district met this week with representatives of Wheeling, Buffalo Grove and Prospect Heights and concluded the district has a limited future.

WHEELING HAS TRIED to disannex to form its own department, but the district has so far refused to allow the disannexation.

Wheeling Village Pres. Ted C. Scanlon said it is time for Wheeling, Prospect Heights and Buffalo Grove to break from the rural district and form their own departments.

Prospect Heights Mayor Richard Wolf said his city is "not prepared" for a municipal department.

"If Wheeling pulls out and we pull out, Prospect Heights is going to have one hell of a problem," Fabish said. He said that is something for the village board to consider.

In need of a rare gift? Try some hungry piranhas

by JOE SWICKARD

There are piles of puppies, carloads of kittens, scads of snakes, gallons of guppies and oodles of eels.

If it crawls, slithers, swims, hops, runs, floats or flies, the odds are that some pet shop offers it for sale.

In a time when sharpies can make a bundle from selling pet rocks or invisible piranhas (actually empty aquariums), you'd better believe there is a market for the more traditional pets such as ferrets, rats, sungazer lizards, crabs, poisonous lion fish and armadillos, large and small.

Pals Pets, 17 N. Bothwell, Palatine, specializes in denizens of the deep. Customers entering the shop are greeted by a 4-foot blue ribbon eel peeking from a shell in a salt water aquarium.

THE EEL IS a tricky fellow, said Scott Kriebel, a clerk at Pals Pets. Kriebel said a couple of other eels already have escaped from the aquarium.

"They can crawl away through a very small opening," he said, indicating a tiny gap in the aquarium lid where air hoses enter the tank.

For those of you who can't live without one of the eels, it will cost about $28 to take him home.

Then there is the snake head fish — an ugly brute who looks just like his name. The snake head's tank is covered and weighted down with a good sized stone — and not without reason, Kriebel said.

"He's a mean one. He eats other fish and he'll jump right out of the tank," he said. "This one's already gone through four owners and he's back here again." The charming native of India is available for $25.

A FISH WITH just a little better temperament is the lion fish with 13 poisonous dorsal spines. The sting of the fish causes reactions similar to those of bee stings in an hypersensitive person.

And who can forget the old standby of the Amazon? A pair of visible and voracious piranhas can be had for $25.

The Shasta Pet Center in the Brandenberry Plaza on Rand Road in Arlington Heights will sell you a desert swift for $20. The horny lizard chows down on meal worms and will stare affectionately at you with his beady little eyes.

For youngsters who have never known the thrill of hunting garter snakes with a mayonnaise jar, Shasta will sell one for $1.98.

Hermit crabs were offered at $1.98, but the shop has been sold out for about a month.

THE CRABS, LAND dwelling reptiles about the size of a half dollar, came into demand when the government cracked down on the sale of small turtles.

One enterprising pet shop owner in Ocean City, Md., treats his customers to a tape recording starring "Hermie the Crab," who beckons: "How'd you like to have a hermit in your house, one of America's favorite household pets?"

Hermie continues, "You can take them to school or put them in your purse and carry them to the opera."

Well, if an opera-going crab isn't your idea of an ideal companion, Pet World in the Randhurst Shopping Center has large and small armadillos instead.

With no mention of their tastes in music, large armadillos cost $17.95. The small fellows are a steal at $6.95.

NOAH'S ARK. 2430 E. Oakton St., Elk Grove Village, has a cage full of small, playful otter-like baby ferrets for only $44.95.

Sungazer lizards, parrots, a giant brilliant blue Hyacinth Macaw, and even crickets by the dozens are at Noah's Ark. And who could forget a cuddly mouse-fed ball python?

On second thought, those pet rocks and invisible piranhas aren't so odd after all.

Friday deadline for absentee ballots

Absentee ballots for Saturday's ambulance tax referendum in the Wheeling Rural Fire Protection District are available at the Buffalo Grove Fire station, 505 W. Dundee Rd., Buffalo Grove, until 5 p.m. Friday. Ballots may be picked up at the station from 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Dist. 125 chief search narrows to 2 candidates

High School Dist. 125 has narrowed down its candidates for superintendent to two persons, Board Pres. W. Mike Swanson said Wednesday.

Swanson said the board will probably choose a superintendent for the Stevenson High School district by Monday. He said, however, an announcement will not be made until the new school chief has signed a contract with the district.

The board has been conducting interviews with candidates to fill the vacancy created by former Supt. Harold Banser's resignation in March.

Banser resigned under fire March 29 stating, "Strong differences of opinion have developed between some members of the board of education and myself which are seriously affecting the education of our students, the morale of the faculty and the everyday work of many dedicated people."

Harold L. Richards, retired superintendent from Blue Island High School Dist. 125, has served as interim superintendent since Banser's resignation became effective in June.

Boards combine to form panel on environment

The Lake County Regional Planning Dept. and the Zoning Board of Appeals have been combined to form the Dept. of Planning, Zoning and Environmental Quality.

The reorganization, proposed by new Planning Director Lane Kendig, is designed to compensate for the high staff turnover in the planning department in the past year.

The reorganization also includes raises for almost everyone in the two departments ranging from $50 to $175 per month.

PLANNING, BUILDING and Zoning Committee Chairman F. T. "Mike" Graham said there has been an almost complete turnover in staff in the department in the past year.

The new department will be able to better utilize a handful of key zoning people with experience, according to Kendig.

An emergency appropriation of $36,900 for the regional planning budget also was approved as a part of the reorganization.

Kendig said he found a $4,900 deficit in the planning department when he took over a month ago. Other items in the emergency appropriation included $16,500 to hire part-time help to complete a housing survey in the county:

- $3,900 for travel expenses related to the housing survey.
- $5,500 to increase department salaries to a competitive level.
- $3,600 as salary for a housing analysis director.
- $2,500 for part time help to get other projects started.

The housing survey is a part of the community block development grant program from the U.S. Dept. of Housing and Urban Development. Kendig said the county is a year behind on the survey, which will evaluate the condition of all the housing in the county.

OTHER DUTIES OF the new department are updating the county's regional plan, preparing a waste water survey under contract to the Northeastern Illinois Planning Commission, preparing planning contracts with local communities and plat reviews.

County Board Member Frank Tersar questioned the salary raises in the new department.

"Will this cause problems with other county employees? We limited everyone else to a $300-a-year raise at budget time," Tersar said.

Graham said the higher salaries were to help resolve the problem of high turnover.

Members of the zoning board of appeals said they were concerned about combining the two departments because they feared they would lose their independence to the county board, Graham said.

Graham said the department revision could be reversed in four months if it is not satisfactory.

Reduction seen in road taxes in Wheeling Twp.

priced 60 per cent of the roads maintained by the township road and bridge district in unincorporated areas. The district has discontinued regular service to Prospect Heights since it became a city in January. The district currently is providing only emergency road maintenance for a charge.

OLSEN SAID A reduction in regular road maintenance expenses will result in a change in this year's budget and future tax levies.

"We plan to delete line item costs for the road work we had planned to do in Prospect Heights from this year's budget, which will result in some savings. But, there are fixed costs that we have that will not change because of the incorporation," Olsen said.

"It will mean that we will decrease the road and bridge tax levy beginning next year (1977-78) because we will not have the need for as much revenue," he said.

The road district will conduct a special meeting at 7:30 p.m. Aug. 31 at the Wheeling Township Hall, 1018 E. Northwest Hwy., Arlington Heights.

OLSEN SAID HE does not know how much the district's road and bridge tax levy will decrease. Wheeling Township residents currently pay about 10 cents per $100 equalized assessed valuation, or about $10 in annual road and bridge taxes for the owner of a house assessed at $10,000.

3 major blazes keep firefighters busy

Three major fires made Wednesday a busy day for the Wheeling Fire Dept.

According to Lt. Jim Johnson, the hectic day began at 11:30 a.m. when a leak occurred in a swimming pool filter being changed at Lake Run, 18 E. Old Willow Rd. Johnson said because lethal chlorine gas was seeping from the filter, the area was evacuated. It took the department about an hour and a half to clear the air.

Then at about 4:30 p.m. a fire erupted in a 25 foot high and 150 foot wide manure pile at Blue Ribbon Stables, Wheeling. It took the Wheeling Dept. — assisted by four other fire units — about three hours and 35,000 gallons of water to put out the blaze, Johnson said.

Because the stables are not located near a water system, Johnson said tankers from four adjoining communities were at the scene to assist. There was no property damage at the stables.

ASPIRING WATER ballerina Lisa Weber draws a deep breath before launching into a

days at the Neptune Pool, 900 S. Elmhurst Rd. The program runs through July 15.

Courses in Latin and photography have been added to the curriculum at Stevenson High School in Prairie View for the 1976-77 school year.

A first-year Latin course will be offered next fall to about 20 students, said Principal William Papke. Papke said the course, which was dropped from the curriculum several years ago, will be offered again because of a "rebirth in Latin-based grammar study."

The Latin course, open to all students from all grades, will be taught by new language teacher Lezek Wolkowski, Papke said.

A PHOTOGRAPHY course for beginning and intermediate students also will begin this fall. Papke said 26 students have registered for the beginning course and 11 students are enrolled in the intermediate level.

Stevenson has sponsored a photography club in the past but Papke said the new class will not be a "hobby course." It will be a vocationally-oriented program, covering different aspects of graphics, he said.

The course was offered last year on an independent study basis but this will be the first time photography is part of the regular curriculum, Papke said.

The school also considered adding a music appreciation course to next year's schedule, but too few students registered. The course was intended to "fill the gap" in music instruction outside of the performing area, Papke said.

The principal said the music appreciation course should be offered and it is possible it will be included in the second semester offerings.

Stevenson in the fall will begin offering proficiency tests in foreign languages. Students who have completed French or Spanish courses in junior high school may take an examination to skip the first year of the language on the high school level. Students who enter Stevenson from other schools also are eligible to take the proficiency exams, Papke said.

Fire district to stay intact: Lemke

The Wheeling Rural Fire Protection District will be "kept intact" until a good solution is found for dissolving the district, said Erwin Lemke, fire district president.

Lemke told officials from Prospect Heights, Wheeling and Buffalo Grove that "eventually we know this district will be dissolved."

"Until we can find a good solution to the problems and can give the people the proper protection they are entitled to, we will try to keep the district intact," he said.

Fire officials agreed to meet with representatives of the three towns last month after denying Wheeling's request to disannex from the district. The fire trustees said they will begin plans for eventual dissolution of the district.

PROSPECT HEIGHTS Mayor Richard Wolf said his city is "not prepared to take over municipal fire service in Prospect Heights."

"We really have no intentions of forming a municipal fire department for at least four or five years. It may even be longer than that," he said.

Wolf said the three fire districts serving Prospect Heights are "efficient and serve the people well." The city is served by the Wheeling Rural Fire Protection District, the Prospect Heights Fire District and the Glenview Rural Fire District.

Wolf also denied charges from Wheeling officials that Prospect Heights residents are riding "a gravy train" at the expense of Wheeling.

"I don't feel Wheeling is playing Santa Claus to the fire district. I don't think Prospect Heights feels it is bleeding Wheeling for service to our people. Our people feel they are paying their fair share," he said.

WOLF SAID formation of a municipal department will be time consuming, and the city has no funds for the needed equipment.

"Right now, the Prospect Heights department has no capabilities for fighting fires in multi-family housing. Phasing in a municipal department will take time," he said.

Wheeling and Buffalo Grove officials attending the meeting said they eventually hope to withdraw from the district to form municipal fire departments. Wheeling Village Pres. Ted C.

Scanlon said his village is seeking immediate disconnection because Wheeling is subsidizing service in the district.

"The day for the raping of Wheeling must come to an end. We've thrown dollar after dollar out and don't get it back," he said.

Scanlon said Buffalo Grove and Prospect Heights must carry their "own weight" in fire protection.

"THEIR DEPARTMENTS have done a tremendous job but at the cost of Wheeling. They should pay their own freight the way Wheeling is now paying everybody else's freight," he said.

Edward Fabish, Buffalo Grove village president, said his village eventually wants a municipal fire department.

"Our areas are growing and we're going to have to go to a full-time department. The fire district is going to be faced with the time when each community provides its own service. If it's going to happen, let's coordinate it so no one gets hurt in the process," he said.

Backslide in penal system feared

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (UPI) — Outgoing state Corrections Director Allyn Sielaff says some of the penal advances and plans for improvement made in the past three years may be negated by the state's burgeoning prison population and sickly fiscal condition.

Sielaff, 44, leaves as director of the Illinois Department of Corrections Aug. 1 to become administrator of the Wisconsin prison system.

During his three years Sielaff said the state's prisons had reached a point where nearly every prisoner had his own cell, but the population increase in the past several years has forced the department to increase cell occupancy.

The prison population has risen from 6,000 inmates to about 9,000 since Sielaff took over and he predicted that it would continue to rise for several years until the post World War II "baby boom" is over and the state's economic condition is stronger. He said the state's population now is 10,500 prisoners.

Sielaff also said the recent nonfunding of the collective bargaining wage agreement contained in the department's fiscal 1977 budget would force the department to absorb the costs of paying the increased wages to correctional personnel such as guards.

The legislature put money back in the budget for the hiring of about 100 guards, but Sielaff said 250 new guards are needed to handle the rising prison population.

Sielaff also said the state's tight financial condition may hurt plans for expanding and improving prisons. Without the extra "breathing space" provided by the improvements, Sielaff said, the closeness could give rise to tensions.

Ex-Shea client sentenced in '75 case

by TONI GINETTI

The Berwyn man whose 1975 traffic arrest by Rolling Meadows police has been pending for 15 months finally has been settled.

Samuel E. Capalbo, 30, who had been represented by State Rep. Gerald W. Shea, D-Riverside, pleaded guilty Wednesday before Cook County Associate Judge Anthony J. Scetilo to a charge of driving on a revoked license. He did so at the request of Shea, his former attorney.

Capalbo was sentenced to nine days in the Cook County Jail, to be served on three consecutive weekends, a six-month probationary period and fined $160.

The state agreed to drop a speeding charge also pending against Capalbo, Assistant State's Attorney Philip Krasny said Wednesday.

Shea, who until three weeks ago had defended Capalbo, delayed the case for months in order to tend to legislative matters in Springfield.

THE HERALD REVEALED last month how Shea invoked his right as a state legislator to receive court continuances when the legislature is in session, even though records showed the legislature was in session on only three of the dozen court dates assigned the case.

Rolling Meadows Police Chief Lewis R. Case in April filed a complaint with Circuit Court Chief Judge John S. Boyle in connection with the case, charging Shea had "abused his rights" in the matter.

Case said Wednesday he was "pleased" the matter had been adjudicated but declined further comment.

The case, one of the city's oldest outstanding traffic cases, had been pending since April 7, 1975, when Capalbo was charged with traveling 68 miles per hour on 55 m.p.h.-posted Ill. Rte. 53 at 1-90 and with driving on a license revoked by the secretary of state's office in March 1973.

The city has spent more than $300 in overtime pay for the arresting officer, who has had to appear in court each time the matter was scheduled.

ON TWO OCCASIONS, warrants for Capalbo's arrest were issued by the court when he and Shea failed to appear for trial, the most recent being three weeks ago.

Neither warrant was served, however. The first was quashed June 14 on a motion filed by Shea and the second was dropped Wednesday when Capalbo appeared in court.

Capalbo was accompanied Wednesday by another attorney, Charles Winkler of Chicago. Shea removed himself from the case three weeks ago but refused to comment on the long delays in the matter.

Shea last month was exonerated by the state House of Unethical Conduct charges leveled by State Rep. Eugene Schlickman, R-Arlington Heights, who accused Shea of impropriety for representing two Illinois medical associations and then supporting legislation on medical malpractice insurance.

Shea, who is Chicago Mayor Richard J. Daley's floor leader in the House, has said he will not seek reelection.

The way we see it

Impartial review needed

Tonight, two special committees of the Harper College Board of Trustees will meet to review board policies that relate to use of college vehicles, administrative and board travel, investments in local banks and compliance with the Illinois Open Meetings Act.

The policy review is in response to questions that have been raised by newspaper investigations concerning:

- The apparent violations of the Open Meeting Act by board members who have held unannounced dinner meetings prior to committee meetings and negotiating sessions.
- The alleged misuse of college vehicles by Harper Pres. Robert Lahti and board members.
- Lahti's apparent violation of board policy by air fare rather than coach accommodations on business trips.
- Lahti's possible conflict of interest as a member of the board of directors and a stockholder in a local bank where college funds are kept.

We welcome the review by the board, but the record of the two board members selected to head the committees, and the initial reaction from other board members to the allegations, leaves us skeptical as to whether the review will be complete and impartial.

Robert Rausch, the trustee heading the committee charged with reviewing the vehicle use, travel and meetings policies, was involved personally in more than a half-dozen dinner meetings of board members which were not announced in accordance with provisions of the Open Meetings Act.

Jessalyn Nicklas, who is in charge of reviewing the policy dealing with investments and accounts in local banks, was on the board that approved Lahti's role as college administrator and bank director-stockholder when the subject was originally raised in 1973.

Board members contacted since the recent disclosures by The Herald have had little to say about the charges, and it appears only Board Pres. Shirley Munson has devoted any time at all looking into apparent abuses.

We question whether members of the board can conduct a fair review of the issues in which they are so personally involved.

There are many people in the community — friends of Harper with the best interests of the college in mind — who could be asked to serve on a blue ribbon committee to look into the allegations and the policies of the board.

The board has the ultimate responsibility for the operation of Harper College and enforcement of its policies. A citizens' committee, however, would be in a better position to give the issues the type of hearing they deserve and the board the information and community opinion it needs.

Arlington Park fireworks were a disappointment

My family and I are disappointed and annoyed at the fiasco the Arlington Heights Bicentennial Committee called "Disneyworld Bicentennial Fireworks Display."

We trudged through heavy traffic to Arlington Park to see what we were led to believe would be a fantastic Fourth of July fireworks display, with entertainment.

The first half of the entertainment consisted of a club singer who was totally out of place at such an event. He was boring. The second half of the entertainment was more spirited, but by that time the show was running half an hour late and the natives were getting restless — most kids (and some bad-mannered adults) were booing the singers and stamping their feet for the fireworks.

THE FIREWORKS finally started at 9:45 (was supposed to start at 9:15) and they lasted less than half an hour. They were advertised to last 45 minutes. And we saw nothing remotely connected with Disneyworld. We expected to see a Mickey Mouse ground display or something like that. There were several ground displays, but selfish people were standing up all along the rail, and we couldn't see half the displays anyway. A fight broke out on the subject of standing up. And there were no ushers to be seen to attempt any kind of crowd control.

Don't you realize that a fireworks display is mainly for children? Don't you realize that it is difficult to keep children occupied in such a large, crowded place for two hours?

Why did the show run half an hour late? Why did the fireworks last 15 minutes shorter than advertised? What did they have to do with Disneyworld? Why were they no better than any other year's fireworks displays?

We don't trust you anymore. We will never return to an Arlington Heights fireworks display again. We will find another suburb that doesn't lie to its residents. I'm sure the track was happy with the turnout, because they got to sell half an hour's more beer. But July 4th is for kids. At least we think so.

Mrs. Lei Caruso
Arlington Heights

(P.S. The baby is mad too — she grabbed this letter and tried to eat it — sorry for the wrinkles!)

Many contributed to Palatine's Fourth

In attempting to thank everybody who contributed to the successful Bicentennial celebration on July 3 and 4, we acknowledge the risk of not publicly recognizing a deserving person or group. Hopefully, the following list is complete.

The membership of the Palatine Jaycees and Jaycees Auxiliary without whose support the project would not have been possible. Special commendation is given to the 21 committee chairpersons from these two organizations.

The Village of Palatine (its fire, police, public works and Civil Defense departments), High School 211, Community Consolidated School Dist. 15 and the Palatine Park District for making available their facilities and manpower.

The Kiwanis and Rotary clubs of Palatine for accepting the responsibility for five committees.

THE PALATINE Concert Band, Sing Out Palatine, Palatine Boys Baseball and the six bands which competed in the Battle of the Bands for their participation.

The Religious Association of Palatine for planning and conducting an inspiring interdenominational worship service.

Why this is such a great country

In The Herald you pictured 7,141 aliens taking the oath of allegiance to become United States citizens. It was a fine picture and coverage, and the action was on television of course.

In between a picnic and going to see fireworks, turning on the news, I heard one man take his oath to citizenship.

He said, "I pledge ALIENATION to the United States of America, etc." I heard a slight gasp, perhaps from the press. Because alienation is the opposite of allegiance.

But I felt proud because the ones taking the oath had him neither repeat the word correctly nor retract it. We all knew what was in his heart and mind. This is the very foundation and spirit of America, understanding and tolerance, the intention of right rather than supposition of wrong intent.

M. H. Wilson
Des Plaines

'Hands' celebration praised

How does one thank a community for sharing in a birthday celebration? Those Mount Prospect residents who participated in the July Fourth "Hands Across Mount Prospect" event were a sight to behold.

There were a few anxious moments by the Hands Committee when, at a quarter of 12, there were hardly enough people assembled to span one good sized driveway. And then, as if by magic at 12 o'clock, the entire "Hands" route of approximately 10 miles was not spanned, it was nearly so. From reports we have received, people sang "Happy Birthday America" and lingered long after the two-minute linkup, to chat and visit with neighbors, friends and even strangers who stopped to be a part of the celebration.

To me, this whole affair said something about Mount Prospect. People do care about their community and their country; that they realize they are but one link in a very vital chain — and that link — and that people, aided by legislation, are what have made this country a great land.

Sincere appreciation is extended to you and particularly to two members of your staff, Lil Flores and Marsha Bosley, who helped significantly in publicizing the event so that people knew of it and could be involved.

Gerald L. Farley
Chairman
Hands Project
Mount Prospect

Parade reporting criticized

I have read and re-read the article, "Parade 'best ever'" written by Ms. Marsha S. Bosley which appeared in the July 6 edition of the Mount Prospect - Prospect Heights Herald.

Strangers to our village might get the impression we are either ungrateful or else a really small "hick" town. According to the article, "hundreds of spectators along the parade route, etc." might give that impression. I had the privilege of being a part of our parade from the staging area at Prospect High School to disbandment at Lions Park, and the watchers numbered more in the thousands. As a matter of fact, there were several hundred viewers at the final turning point from Emerson to the Park alone.

THE ARTICLE acknowledged Mayor Bob Teichert and family very nicely and then went on to say that "other politicians" included Cook County Comr. Carl Hansen, State Sen. John Nimrod and U.S. Rep. Phil Crane. Did it occur to Ms. Bosley that these "other politicians" are our duly elected representatives in federal, state, and county office and are very much down-to-earth, sturdy American citizens happy to share their time and greetings with the public?

What ever happened to the "other politicians" who also participated in this fine best-ever parade? They were not mentioned but were certainly there and greeted the crowds lining the streets and sidewalks. Who were they? State Sen. Dave Regner, Representatives Eugene Chapman, Virginia Macdonald, Gene Schlickman, Don Totten, I do not believe I left any out. Also Penny Pullen who is a candidate for state representative in the upcoming election.

Possibly there is an answer for all of this but some aspects of the article are quite disturbing to me, especially during this Bicentennial of our great country.

M. E. Krumrey
Mount Prospect

(Editor's note: "Hundreds" certainly was not an accurate reflection of the crowds that turned out to watch the Mount Prospect parade. Certainly there were thousands, and we apologize for saying there were fewer. Many elected officials, as well as many, many private citizens took part in the parade and helped make it a success; it is difficult to know where to draw the line in reporting such attendance, and we are grateful to reader Krumrey for acknowledging other participants.)

Judging questioned

Congratulations to Mount Prospect's Bicentennial parade entry winners!

If we are to anticipate the participation of people in our community, in events as were displayed in the parade, we must display a greater responsibility for the way they are treated when we judge their accomplishment.

Awarding one participant three prizes and ignoring the efforts of so many others is shameful.

Was that judging or mis-judging? Parade participants can feel proud and accomplished in knowing that the residents of Mount Prospect made their own judgment on their efforts.

Mary A. Carnecki
Mount Prospect

'He gave kids a clean, fun show'

Ask nearly any youngster on the streets, and you will be hard pressed to find a boy or girl who has not sat before the family television, entranced with "Bozo's Circus."

It is a noontime show that has run 15 successful years on WGN-TV, Channel 9, a clean and fun show, a credit to decent programming efforts for children. Since taking the air on Sept.

11, 1961, the Circus has been under the jovial and inspiring leadership of Ringmaster Ned. He always opened the program with a hearty, "Bozo's Circus is on the air!"

But nevermore. Ned Locke, whose Chicago career in news and entertainment broadcasting reached gigantic proportions, filmed his final program last Friday.

Then Locke climbed into his station wagon and drove off to a retirement in Missouri's Ozark Mountains, apparently never again to be seen on Chicago daily television.

The void that has been created by Locke's departure can only be handled by compromise. It never can be filled.

Ned Locke was a hero to the legions of children who followed "Bozo's Circus." Ringmaster Ned's laugh was contagious, his smile filled the circus tent, and when Ringmaster Ned sat down in the bleachers, the little children always climbed up very close.

His journalism and entertainment broadcasting career would have reached gigantic proportions even without "Bozo's Circus."

During his composite 25 years on television and radio, Ned Locke acted, wrote, produced, directed, announced weather forecasts and served, in his later years, as an advertising account executive.

Actually, it was his second career. Ned Locke came to WGN in 1956, after departing a good job as State of Iowa director of aeronautics.

That decision led to thousands of hours of fine children's entertainment, ending with his role as Ringmaster Ned in "Bozo's Circus."

In his retirement, we wish Ned Locke only the greatest joy, because that is what he gave to us.

Was parade commercial?

My husband and I enjoyed many of the Arlington Heights Bicentennial festivities, among which was the parade. It was beautiful and patriotic commemorating our nation's birth and we were happy to share in the happiness of the important event.

I understand there were many proud group leaders and dignitaries taking part in the parade, smiling and waving to all in the patriotic crowd, being able to show their appreciation and thanks and hope for their continued community support. But several of the cars were "unmarked" and being new in the area, and I'm sure with many others, did not recognize their smiling faces, along with their hard-earned titles. I just thought I would mention the importance of honoring community leaders, at least with a sign on car of name and worthy title, so all citizens can know who they are waving at, give their needed support for future activities — and also be proud.

There were many events in the gala parade and it was well organized. I was just curious as to how one particular company could qualify and rate four separate entries. The children, bands, and leaders were all interesting for all but when companies can qualify for free advertising (phone number and all), isn't that a little too much? How did they rate? All vehicles were decorated patriotically in celebration of the occasion, with their flags flapping in the breeze, etc., but I'm sure many businessmen now see the future opportunity to take advantage of this interesting and cheap way to advertise, passing before thousands of eyes to see. Parades are meant to appreciate with a holiday. Will parades slowly become commercial???

BIG BUSINESS

Firm 'plays' in creative marketing

by LEA TONKIN

It's a typical day at Creative Presentations, Inc., a Schaumburg firm specializing in business communications.

Several clients mosey into a stuffy back room at company quarters and gather in front of a small stage.

Suddenly, the "Amazing Hand Machine" show begins. The business executives watch in amusement as life-like hands attached to two metal posts move in accompaniment to tape recording. The recorded product sales pitch and coordinated hand live stop, then abruptly change as a new tape is inserted in a control mechanism.

If the executives can spare the time, they will be given a special presentation of the Weber Kettle Bicentennial Show. The show features a charcoal-powered professor, an absent-minded professor and a talking rabbit called "Weber Wabbit."

THE BICENTENNIAL SHOW was created to tell children and their parents about the history of the American flag. It was dreamed up by Creative Presentations employees for the Weber-Stephen Products Co., Arlington Heights, makers of the Weber outdoor kettle.

A stumblebum professor, flashing lights, whirling gizmos and the talking rabbit included in this traveling show will be seen by Chicago area shopping center visitors during the summer. Weber Wabbit shows are scheduled through Sunday at Woodfield Shopping Center in Schaumburg.

The concept behind these occasionally zany creations is to make ideas come alive, said Ron Schillinger, marketing director for Creative Presentations. Magic illusions and special effects are cooked up in company brainstorming sessions.

"A client comes to us because they want us to present their product in a memorable way," Schillinger said. Whether the product is wire cable or a concrete pipe machine. Creative Presentations employees do their best to research and market the item. The budget and type of presentations are geared to clients' wishes for trade shows and other outlets.

LIVE THEATER. Trade show exhibits and production of a Renaissance-type fair are included in the Schaumburg company's repertoire. Marketing concepts blossom into full-scale productions within several weeks to a year, said Gene Bullard who shares ownership with his wife Bonita. Bullard acknowledges his background as an entertainer may spark novel marketing strategies.

HE MAKES IDEAS come alive: Ralph Millard of Creative Presentations, Inc., Schaumburg, puts the finishing touches on an animated display.

Business briefs

U.S. inventories biggest in 17 mos.

The Commerce Dept. said Wednesday a $1.9 billion increase in business inventories during May was the largest jump in 17 months, but was not enough to spur the economic recovery. Although the increase was nearly double the $1 billion rise in April, the average gain for the two months was 12 per cent lower than the nearly $1.6 billion average in the first quarter. Treasury Dept. analysts had said the first quarter gains raised the possibility of an inventory "boom" that would provide another big boost to the economy's recovery from the 1974-75 recession.

U.S. closes tax loophole

Closing a multi-billion dollar tax loophole, the Internal Revenue Service said Wednesday oil companies must offer proof that payments to foreign governments are really taxes before they can claim credit for those payments on their U.S. tax accounts. The announcement was designed to keep oil firms from counting royalty payments to foreign governments, which qualify for no more than a 50 per cent U.S. tax deduction, as if they were taxes that could be fully deducted from U.S. income taxes. The oil industry took foreign tax credits to reduce its U.S. taxable income by more than $5 billion in 1973, the latest year for which data is available. But some experts estimated the oil companies might have to pay billions in additional U.S. taxes, meaning earnings would be reduced and consumer fuel prices might rise.

Westinghouse asks limit on pickets

Strike-plagued Westinghouse Electric Corp. Wednesday requested an injunction to limit wildcat picketing at one of its plants. The injunction was sought against the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers at Westinghouse's Choswick plant outside Pittsburgh, Pa. The IBEW members walked out Monday and 38 Westinghouse plants across the country are affected. The strikers were joined Tuesday when about half of the 21,700 members of the International Union of Electrical Workers went out to protest their union's extension of their contract with Westinghouse on a day-to-day basis.

There was no end in sight to hospital strikes in New York City and Seattle, Wash. In other labor disputes, R. A. Riley, president of Firestone Tire & Rubber Co., sent a letter to workers who have been on strike since April 21 detailing the company's latest offer. Some 1,800 nonprofessional employees struck Cincinnati General Hospital and the University of Cincinnati Hospital. They were pressing demands for higher pay.

United to ask 2% fare increase

United Airlines announced Wednesday it will ask the Civil Aeronautics Board for a 2 per cent fare increase to become effective Sept. 15 in the 48 contiguous states. The Elk Grove Township-based airline said it felt it would be justified in asking an immediate increase because the CAB recently had shown an error in its method of determining return on investment.

Pupil designs phone book cover

The new Illinois Bell Telephone Co. directories for Arlington Heights and Wheeling feature a cover illustration by Sandra Kallantzis, a student at Forest View High School in Arlington Heights. The picture, entitled "George calls for a reservation," depicts George Washington in a phone booth. Mary Pechinis, an Illinois Bell manager, said distribution of the Wheeling directories started July 13. Manager Florence Cox said distribution in Arlington Heights started July 14. Area residents who do not receive their copy of the directories by July 30 may call an Illinois Bell service office to arrange delivery.

Stock gains irregular; Dow down

NEW YORK (UPI) — The stock market registered an irregular gain in active trading on the New York Stock Exchange Wednesday, although the Dow Jones industrial average gave up a fraction to profit taking.

The Dow, a 5.15-point loser Tuesday, slipped another 0.90 point to 1,005.16 after seesawing throughout the day. It had climbed to a 41-month high level Monday as the result of a two-day, 19.23-point rally.

On a broader scale, the NYSE common stock index gained 0.18 to 56.61 and the average price of an NYSE common share increased by 11 cents. Advances topped declines, 54 to 551, among the 1,875 issues crossing the tape.

Standard & Poor's new 500-stock index, which includes some over-the-counter stocks, gained 0.28 to 105.95, a new 1976 high.

Big Board volume totaled 23,840,000 shares, down from the 27,550,000 traded Tuesday, the busiest day in a month.

Dems give Carter 1st ballot victory

From Herald news services
NEW YORK — Jimmy Carter now the Democratic presidential nomination on the first ballot Wednesday from a united cheering convention confident he will lead the party back into the White House in November.

In the traditional manner, Carter remained in his hotel suite watching on television as the Ohio delegation gave him 172 votes to put him well over the 1,505 needed for the nomination.

Carter received a total of 2,278 votes. Rep Morris Udall was second with 329½, and Gov Edmund G. Brown Jr. had 300½. There were 136 votes for other candidates.

Illinois vote cast by Chicago Mayor Richard J. Daley, chairman of the state delegation, was Jimmy Carter 164, California Gov Edmund Brown 2, Arizona Rep Morris Udall 1, Alabama Gov George Wallace 1, and anti-abortion candidate Ellen McCormick 1.

THE VOTE WAS made unanimous on the motion by the Georgia delegation after Brown made a ceremonial gesture and turned almost all of California's votes over to Carter.

Pandemonium broke out in Madison Square Garden. Democrats, united as they have not been in more than a decade, set off an uproar on the Garden floor. Carter smiled in the suite watching the action on three television sets.

The Democrats had their leader, a soft-spoken, tough and shrewd politician from rural Georgia who rolled over better-known and higher-touted competitors in a stunning series of primary wins.

Carter was still picking his running-mate in secrecy. Convention tipsters were betting it would be Sen Edmund Muskie of Maine or Sen Walter Mondale of Minnesota, but Carter would not announce his choice until today.

Carter insisted all six finalists were still under consideration Wednesday afternoon, including Senators Frank Church of Idaho, John Glenn of Ohio, Henry Jackson of Washington and Adlai Stevenson of Illinois.

CARTER'S NOMINATORS seized upon Gerald Ford's 1974 pardon of Richard Nixon and made it a campaign issue, condemning the "unequal justice" of Ford's act and saying it had contributed to the low national morale. They said Carter was the man to "heal the wounds" and lead "a new coalition" campaign to the presidency.

The delegates loved it, cheering wildly.

Alabama — homestate of fallen warrior Gov. Wallace — kicked off the balloting at 10:51 p.m. EDT by casting 30 votes for Carter, as Wallace's unity gesture, and five for their hero, Wallace himself.

Although Carter clinched the nomination more than a month ago, the names of Udall, Brown and McCormick were also placed in nomination. But their moment in the spotlight was no more than a symbolic gesture.

ABIDING BY tradition, Carter remained closeted in his command post in a hotel 21 floors above Manhattan, watching his nomination on television — a victory few thought possible at the start of the primaries in February.

But Carter's family came for the dramatic moment to Madison Square Garden, jammed with happy, giddy delegates who celebrated by dancing in the aisles, brought together once again by the Georgian after years of disaster, discord and disunity.

The convention hall was a sea of color — red, white and blue bunting. But the dominant color was Carter's green and white which marked hats and signs, banners and placards.

Under convention rules, no demonstrations were allowed, but that failed to stop the legions of Carter supporters from coming to their feet and roaring "We want Carter, We want Carter, We want Carter," which filled Madison Square Garden.

Yet, in contrast to the tumultuous demonstrations of the past — when delegates marched through the aisles, when balloons floated from the ceilings and when bands played — the demonstration was reserved and the Carter legions were quickly gavelled to order.

NEW JERSEY Rep Peter Rodino, the man who headed the congressional inquiry into the Nixon impeachment, placed Carter in nomination at 9:19 p.m. "as the next President of the United States."

Rodino said that Carter's record "shows a promise of the kind of leadership which can heal the wounds of this nation and kindle once again the spirit which has made this country for two centuries the hope of the world."

"As he brought a united south back into the Democratic party, he will bring a United Democratic party back into the leadership of America."

and united America back to a position of respect and esteem in the eyes of the world."

But he also reminded the delegates that "these are no ordinary times and we cannot settle in these times for an ordinary leader."

"For the first time in our history, the faith of our nation has been shaken by the resignation in disgrace of a president and his vice president, and by the issuance of an untimely pardon which outraged the American sense of equal justice."

CARTER'S nomination was seconded by Margaret Constanza, vice mayor of Rochester N.Y., and Rep Andrew Young, the first black congressman from Georgia and a close political Carter advisor.

Long and loud cheers also greeted Udall who in a rare move seconded his own nomination.

When the roars died down, Udall said "it is all over now" and pledged his support and his help to the man who beat him in every primary.

And in another touch of nostalgia, a roar went up when Sen Edward Kennedy, Ethel Kennedy, Jackie Kennedy Onassis, their children and other relatives were introduced.

Garden party in green, white

by STEVE BROWN
(Herald Political Writer)

NEW YORK — Democrats duffed by an uncontroversial national convention, waited until the votes were in before erupting over the nomination of James Earl Carter Jr.

The Illinois delegation cast 164 votes for Carter, and gave California Gov Edmund G. Brown 2, anti-abortion candidate Ellen McCormick 1, Rep Morris Udall, 1 and Alabama Gov George Wallace 1. The lone Udall vote was cast by Edee Rothman, of Skokie, an alternate delegate substituting for State Rep Aaron Jaffe, D-Skokie who was unable to attend the convention because of an illness in his family. The single vote for McCormick was cast by Clarence "Doc" Larkin of Joliet.

DELEGATES AND guests filled Madison Square Garden with a sea of green and white Jimmy Carter signs. Even Jacqueline Kennedy Onassis helped tug a massive banner inscribed "Jimmy" across the VIP section.

Carter met Wednesday with several groups including labor leaders, governors and several state delegations.

At a meeting with delegations from Wyoming, Utah, Montana, North Dakota and Idaho, Carter said he would not take any state for granted.

He also predicted that his lead in the polls over both President Ford and former California Gov Ronald Reagan will shrink in the coming months.

"Those polls will show us closer together. This will happen in the general election campaign. We worked for three and one-half years with an absolute and total commitment. We never intended to lose the nomination, and we will not lose the general election," Carter said.

Carter did practically nothing to end the suspense over who he will tab as his running mate. After a meeting with Carter, Wisconsin Gov Patrick Lucey said Carter now is considering fewer than six vice presidential choices. Lucey said that U.S. Sen Adlai Stevenson III, D-Ill., one of the six U.S. senators who make up the list of possible vice presidential candidates, was not mentioned at the meeting. Observers believe that U.S. Sen Edmund Muskie, D-Maine, or U.S. Sen Walter Mondale, D-Minn., will get the nod from Carter today. Carter will announce his selection at a press conference at 9 a.m. Chicago time.

Reagan-Carter battle? God help us: average citizen

In ancient times, long before Jimmy Carter's tooth-shine nationally, young braves sought out wise old chiefs to learn their path. In cover the "units of knowledge" forecast the heavens, and otherwise keep themselves in formed about modern day events.

That is no longer necessary. Now braves merely can ride their ponies into Rolling Meadows, off a couple hard left turns onto Willow Lane and stop out at Richard Johnson's house.

Deep inside that suburban cubicle lives Johnson, who is a steel company employee, the father of four children, owner of two poodles and a collection of fine wines.

Four (4-15-76) the National Public Affairs Center for Television (N-PACT) decided that Dick Johnson represented the typical American.

N-PACT filmed two television specials with Johnson. For one they sent him scurrying into Never-Never Land for a campaign week with Sen George McGovern the 1972 Democratic presidential candidate.

Now, we have become embroiled in another election year, and Dick Johnson, Mr. Average American, is being sought out again.

A KNOCK RATTLED his front door the other day. Dick answered in a rush. "I just got through listening to a fiery speech by Hubert Humphrey," Dick said.

"Mercy! He's quite a guy. I thought he'd make a run at the presidency, but he didn't. I voted for him in '68, but I guess it didn't help much."

For nearly two hours, Dick roamed through the 1976 political spectrum dropping hints and reacting with wonder at the success of Jimmy Carter, whom the Democrats nominated Wednesday evening to carry their presidential banner.

"I'm a Democrat, but still I don't know if I'll vote for Carter," Dick admitted. "What might influence the final vote is who he'll choose for his running mate."

"To be real honest with you," Dick said, "right now I'd probably vote for (President) Ford."

Once before Dick switched parties and voted for a Republican presidential candidate. That was just four years ago when a week with McGovern convinced Dick that George was not his man.

DICK ISN'T convinced Carter is his man this time either. He would have preferred other Democrats, especially Minnesota Sen Humphrey or Massachusetts Sen Edward Kennedy.

Today

Mike Klein's people

"To be very honest, I am a Kennedy man," he said. "I would have voted for Kennedy the last time."

Like so many other Democrats, Dick waited for Humphrey to do something. Anything. "He could have convinced a lot of people to vote for him," he said. "Maybe he knows something we don't. Maybe his health isn't so good."

It would be "an upset" should Carter win in November, Dick said. He just does not have the experience, even though his charisma has carried Carter to fantastic party support, Dick said.

"Anybody who aspires to be president should have a few years under the belt in Congress," he insisted. "If Carter does get in there, I'll be very surprised."

There is, of course, another political party that will stage its convention next month. It is the Republican, and it is their convention that will supply summertime fireworks this election year.

Here are some people who might not choose to nominate their incumbent president. Rather than lining up behind nice guy Gerald Ford, they might revolt in favor of Ronald Reagan, another who causes voters to wonder about the substance behind the smile.

"Ford and Reagan are so close," Dick said, "that no matter what I said, or you said, we'd both be guessing. If it's Reagan, I know I won't vote for him. I just don't like the man."

TALK ABOUT Gerald Ford and here's a man that's honest," Dick said. "He stepped into one heckuva dilemma (following Tricky Dick). I don't think people expected wonders from the man."

"The thing that Ford has to do for my vote is get a good vice presidential candidate," he said.

And so it goes for Dick Johnson, who is typically confused like most Americans. He wondered about a Ford-Reagan ticket, but dismissed that idea.

Dick decided that Ford would not want Reagan on his ticket, nor would Reagan's pride allow him to accept an offer.

Dick kept returning to those vice presidential candidates, who he said could decide the election. How much is Sen George Mondale, D-Minn., worth to Carter? Certainly less than Kennedy. But more than Edmund Muskie, D-Maine, Illinois' Adlai Stevenson, Idaho's Frank Church or others?

And what of the Republican VP candidate? There's been so little discussion of that.

Dick paused to consider a very real possibility in this Bicentennial election year. "If it comes to a battle between Reagan and Carter, Lord help everybody," he said.

And he followed that with one heavily circulated thought. Dick said, "I don't know why the hell Humphrey didn't get into the act."

Decision today on US Games plan

MONTREAL — Taiwan refused Wednesday to march into the Olympics without its national flag and the president of the U.S. Olympic Committee said "It is very much a possibility" the United States will withdraw from the Games.

"Other countries have told us they might follow us if we did so," said USOC President Philip O. Krumm.

"If our athletes were not already here we would already have considered our participation canceled," Krumm said. "We would have canceled in 10 minutes."

Krumm said the United States would decide by noon Thursday whether to stay or quit the 21st summer Games, scheduled to start Saturday. He said this would give the Canadian government time to study Taiwan's latest proposal for its participation.

The developments followed by a day an International Olympic Committee offer to have Taiwan compete with no name, no flag and no national anthem, a proposal that was killed when an official in Taipei called it "an insult."

Taiwan responded Wednesday with a counter-offer that would permit two Yachtsmen already accredited for the Games in Kingston, Ontario, about 150 miles from here, to march in the opening ceremony Saturday under colors of the Republic of China, and then have the entire team go home without competing.

"We can't make any decision until the IOC makes a final decision on the matter," said Robert Kane, vice president of the USOC, adding:

"It is not inconceivable that (withdrawal) could happen but we certainly don't want to pull out. After all, all our athletes are here and are ready to compete."

Kane and other senior USOC officials met in private Wednesday in the Olympic Village while awaiting the next move by the IOC's executive board. A tentative agreement was reached Tuesday that would have had the Taiwan team compete without a name, national flag or national anthem, but officials in Taipei said that was unacceptable.

The U.S. has played a leading role in mediating the dispute with the Canadian government over Taiwan's participation, but Kane said the committee had not received any directive from Washington.

"President Ford is interested, of course," Kane said. "But he has not told us what kind of decision we should make. He has told us it is up to us."

Philip O. Krumm, president of the USOC, outlined the United States' position to the IOC executive board Wednesday morning. A USOC official said Krumm laid down some "conditions" that would have to be met to keep the U.S. in the Games.

In Washington, President Ford's press secretary said the President "is weighing a number of options," but also stressed Ford could not issue orders to the USOC since the committee has no governmental connection.

Meanwhile, there was a demand from Washington that the U.S. withdraw from the Games for another reason.

Sen. James L. Buckley, the conservative upstate New York Republican, said the United States should quit the games if the IOC denies press credentials to Radio Free Europe.

While all of this was going on, the largest contingent of U.S. athletes, 225 basketball players, track and field, cycling, diving, pentathlon, team handball players and wrestlers were scheduled to arrive in the Olympic Village Wednesday. That would bring the total U.S. delegation on hand to 443 of the total 534. The remainder are scheduled to arrive Thursday.

Spokesmen here for the Taiwan Olympic team claimed they had received "no instructions from home on whether to accept" Tuesday's no-name, no-flag, no-anthem compromise.

Forest View and Hersey, the first Dist. 214 teams to play soccer.

Soccer should provide opportunity for students

by DON FRISKE
(First of two parts)

Soccer has been added to High School Dist. 214 to provide athletic opportunity — not turmoil — and that is how it is generally accepted by athletic directors and coaches.

The sport, widely known in Europe and throughout the world, is starting to catch on in this country, but it is not seen as any immediate threat to existing fall sports.

Late last month, the Dist. 214 Board of Education voted 4-1 to start soccer in the athletic programs at Arlington, Buffalo Grove, Elk Grove, Prospect, Rolling Meadows and Wheeling.

The decision was based on interest shown in soccer programs at Hersey and Forest View. These schools played the sport last fall as 75-100 students became involved.

Soccer was tested on an intramural basis at the remaining schools to assess the potential participation of students.

"We ran it on an intramural basis and about 30-40 students expressed interest," said Tom O'Driscoll, Athletic Director at Rolling Meadows. "We also ran a survey of incoming freshmen and another 40 or so expressed interest."

Ken Carter, athletic director at Hersey, said the program worked out well at the school and there have been discussions on expanding soccer to three competitive levels instead of two.

"I think it offered an opportunity for more boys that were not out for football or cross country before. It just opened a whole new area," Carter said.

O'Driscoll, who has three of his own children participating in Palatine soccer programs, said he does not feel the addition of soccer will take anything away from the other sports.

"It's a different group of kids than those presently involved in the program," O'Driscoll said. "It appears to be filling a need for those not involved in other sports."

The smaller, quicker students the ones expected to play soccer. Dick Kinneman, head of Dist. 214 physical education, said he believes this will be the case.

"I've been talking to athletic directors in schools where soccer has been going for about five years and they say the other sports have not suffered in any way," Kinneman said.

He further pointed out that when swimming was introduced into the district during the past decade there was no visible loss to the other winter sports.

"I don't think anybody noticed a deterioration of the other sports. If there will be any at all with soccer, I don't think it will be noticeable," Kinneman said.

The two main problems for the schools to be concerned with now, according to Kinneman and others, are the increase in the already crowded practice facilities at many schools and finding a qualified soccer coach.

"Many schools are crowded for space and are going to other facilities," Kinneman said.

Carter said he got good cooperation from nearby MacArthur Junior High and Prospect Heights park district and O'Driscoll said he will work with the local park district for practice fields.

At Hersey, the games were scheduled on Tuesdays and Thursdays on the varsity football field, with some being played at night. At Rolling Meadows, O'Driscoll said the games will probably be scheduled for Fridays when the football team is away.

"The disadvantage of soccer is that it will push some of us for space," O'Driscoll said. "The advantage is that it is a super sport and I think it will continue to grow."

In terms of coaching, the schools will have to look toward their faculty at the present time and hope to find a qualified person. Many felt that soccer would be accepted and had a person in mind for some time now.

"We had a coach who had some soccer background and who taught at the school, so we were fortunate," Carter said. "Finding a qualified coach will be a problem for some schools."

O'Driscoll agreed that the first soccer coach will have to come out of the present faculty. Another possibility would be a club sponsor, which many of the hockey clubs started with a few years ago at the schools.

Soccer was new at Barrington High School last fall, where there are two soccer playing fields. Athletic Director Bob Madding was pleased with the initial season.

"I think soccer is definitely a growing sport and it's great to have in the program," Madding said. "I think we had a lot less of the little guys out for football. It picks up a lot of the kids that would like to be involved in athletics that just aren't big enough physically to play football."

Now that soccer is an official sport, the next step it must take is to have its own conference. Kinneman said that will be discussed this coming year.

Another important factor in the sport's growth will be community interest.

Olympics needs celestial clout

Mr. Avery Brundage
Former President of International Olympic Committee
c/o Twilight Zone
Dear Avery,

You never met me before you died. Since I've heard you were a good and decent human being, I'm guessing you went to a place where there's plenty of celestial clout.

I want to tell you right off that I wasn't too crazy with the way you handled things in the old days. Let's face it, you were a pretty old-fashioned president.

But your way of running things doesn't seem all that bad in light of what's been happening to your beloved Olympic Games.

When you were president, there was never any doubt about who was running the show. But your replacement — a pompous looking and acting dude named Lord Killanin — doesn't have his act together yet. Even after four years of rehearsing it, he still isn't in control.

Almost every day another country threatens to pull out because of the mishandling of the Olympics. If you haven't heard the latest in this controversy, it goes something like this:

- Nationalist China is still out unless it junks its name and its flag and competes as Taiwan, marching behind an Olympic flag and using the Olympic anthem.

- The Council of African Sport is supposed to have called on black American athletes to boycott the Games if New Zealand participates.

- The United States is threatening to withdraw if the Nationalist Chinese team doesn't compete.

- Even Radio Free Europe has been thrust into the turmoil. The Soviet Union is pressuring the International Olympic Committee to withhold the network's credentials.

On this last point, James Buckley, the conservative U.S. senator from New York, has asked the U.S. team to protest by not participating if the credentials are denied.

That in itself is incredible. Avery, can you imagine asking an American athlete to forget the four years of preparation for Montreal because a radio network can't broadcast the Games?

The Games are not for radio listeners, the politicians, the terrorists, the wealthy who can afford tickets or the Lord Killanins of the world. They're for the athletes.

Many men and women only dream of performing in the Olympic Games. Those who are fortunate to make their country's team have the distinct honor of testing their athletic abilities against the world's top amateurs.

Sure, the Olympic Games will never be 100% pure. There will always be some politics. But people had hoped that this year's Olympiad would make up for the murder-marred 1972 affair. A cleansing was expected after the Munich bloodbath.

That's where you come in, Avery. If you can put in a good word with the Bibb Boss, maybe he will see to it that this year's Games turn out okay.

Right now it's beginning to resemble a world war without guns. Politics and nationalism have overshadowed the Olympic spirit of friendly competition and brotherhood.

There's probably not a ghost of a chance that you'll read this. But somehow, I've got a feeling that you'll get the message. You know what they say about the power of the press and all that.

Rest in peace,
An Olympic fan

The highs and lows of Mexico City

1968: drugs and racism

by OLGA CONNOLLY
(Third in a series)

By the XIXth Olympic Games in Mexico in 1968 the international sports scene was inundated by drug, which affected especially the weightlifting, throwing and women's events.

The anabolic steroids are synthetic products based on the biological formula of the male hormone testosterone. The steroids are credited with increasing the body's ability to retain protein, and thus increase the muscular power and bulk.

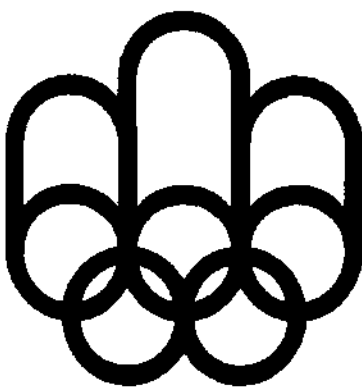

The natural testosterone, of course, also accounts for the development of the male secondary characteristics such as growing a beard, body hair or baldness.

Women whose natural supply of the hormone is negligible respond to the anabolic treatment with explosive increase in physical strength. But since the men produce their own steroid hormone, their response to the synthetic one is less reliable.

Naturally, the International Olympic Committee has outlawed the usage of the drug. But the rule is not enforceable. The techniques for measuring hormonal levels are complicated, and as individuals vary norms are unreliable. Moreover, the anabolic steroids are useful mainly during the off-season, a power-building preparation. There is no need to take them in the Olympic Games.

So the problem is completely different from that of doping, and probably cannot be solved. The Olympic Committee's physicians concluded in their research that the anabolic steroids are not as effective as people once thought, anyway. But the athletes surmise that if a drug can help them increase their power by 50 pounds, they may as well take it.

The male hormone treatment notwithstanding, in Mexico City the doctors began to administer the now-routine sex test. The serious medical technician told me that my chromosomal count, rather than my being a mother of four children, was a better protection for my claim to being a woman. The chromosomal count just cannot be tricked. Alphabetically simplified, the scraping of the cells from the mouth of a man when checked under the microscope spells XY. If it reads XX, it's a woman. And the other way around.

The Olympic movement lacks ethics because it lacks commitment. Its motto, "citius, altius, fortius," is not much of a philosophy. "Swifter, higher, stronger," can as well mean "more competition, more animosity, more hormones."

Human emotions ran high in Mexico City. The athletic challenge was magnified by the high altitude, the humanistic challenge by the increasing tension in the outside world. The rift between the instinctive desires of the people and the barriers that separate them, appeared in the XIXth Olympics with stunning boldness. Once again, the Olympic Village had to perform a miracle.

I felt it from the instant the bus pulled in from the airport. An instant embrace from an old Czechoslovak coach. My being surrounded by Czechoslovak athletes. Their stories about the changed attitudes during the 1968 Spring in Prague. Their bliss

MEXICO CITY exploded with drama in 1968 when Americans Tommie Smith and John Carlos protested with Black Power salutes on the victory stand.

He further pointed out that when swimming was introduced into the district during the past decade there was no visible loss to the other winter sports.

"I don't think anybody noticed a deterioration of the other sports. If there will be any at all with soccer, I don't think it will be noticeable," Kinneman said.

The two main problems for the schools to be concerned with now, according to Kinneman and others, are the increase in the already crowded practice facilities at many schools and finding a qualified soccer coach.

"Many schools are crowded for space and are going to other facilities," Kinneman said.

Carter said he got good cooperation from nearby MacArthur Junior High and Prospect Heights park district and O'Driscoll said he will work with the local park district for practice fields.

At Hersey, the games were scheduled on Tuesdays and Thursdays on the varsity football field, with some being played at night. At Rolling Meadows, O'Driscoll said the games will probably be scheduled for Fridays when the football team is away.

"The disadvantage of soccer is that it will push some of us for space," O'Driscoll said. "The advantage is that it is a super sport and I think it will continue to grow."

In terms of coaching, the schools will have to look toward their faculty at the present time and hope to find a qualified person. Many felt that soccer would be accepted and had a person in mind for some time now.

"We had a coach who had some soccer background and who taught at the school, so we were fortunate," Carter said. "Finding a qualified coach will be a problem for some schools."

O'Driscoll agreed that the first soccer coach will have to come out of the present faculty. Another possibility would be a club sponsor, which many of the hockey clubs started with a few years ago at the schools.

Soccer was new at Barrington High School last fall, where there are two soccer playing fields. Athletic Director Bob Madding was pleased with the initial season.

"I think soccer is definitely a growing sport and it's great to have in the program," Madding said. "I think we had a lot less of the little guys out for football. It picks up a lot of the kids that would like to be involved in athletics that just aren't big enough physically to play football."

Now that soccer is an official sport, the next step it must take is to have its own conference. Kinneman said that will be discussed this coming year.

Another important factor in the sport's growth will be community interest.

Olympics needs celestial clout

Former President
of International Olympic Committee
c/o Twilight Zone

Dear Avery,

You never met me before you died. Since I've heard you were a good and decent human being, I'm guessing you went to a place where there's plenty of celestial clout.

I want to tell you right off that I wasn't too crazy with the way you handled things in the old days. Let's face it, you were a pretty old-fashioned president.

But your way of running things doesn't seem all that bad in light of what's been happening to your beloved Olympic Games.

When you were president, there was never any doubt about who was running the show. But your replacement — a pompous looking and acting dude named Lord Killanin — doesn't have his act together yet. Even after four years of rehearsing it, he still isn't in control.

Almost every day another country threatens to pull out because of the mishandling of the Olympics. If you haven't heard the latest in this controversy, it goes something like this:

- Nationalist China is still out unless it junks its name and its flag and competes as Taiwan, marching behind an Olympic flag and using the Olympic anthem.

- The Council of African Sport is supposed to have called on black American athletes to boycott the Games if New Zealand participates.

- The United States is threatening to withdraw if the Nationalist Chinese team doesn't compete.

- Even Radio Free Europe has been thrust into the turmoil. The Soviet Union is pressuring the International Olympic Committee to withhold the network's credentials.

On this last point, James Buckley, the conservative U.S. senator from New York, has asked the U.S. team to protest by not participating if the credentials are denied.

That in itself is incredible. Avery, can you imagine asking an American athlete to forget the four years of preparation for Montreal because a radio network can't broadcast the Games?

The Games are not for radio listeners, the politicians, the terrorists, the wealthy who can afford tickets or the Lord Killanins of the world. They're for the athletes.

Many men and women only dream of performing in the Olympic Games. Those who are fortunate to make their country's team have the distinct honor of testing their athletic abilities against the world's top amateurs.

Sure, the Olympic Games will never be lily pure. There will always be some politics. But people had hoped that this year's Olympiad would make up for the murder-marred 1972 affair. A cleansing was expected after the Munich bloodbath.

That's where you come in, Avery. If you can put in a good word with the Hil Boss, maybe he will see to it that this year's Games turn out okay.

Right now it's beginning to resemble a world war without guns. Politics and nationalism have overshadowed the Olympic spirit of friendly competition and brotherhood.

There's probably not a ghost of a chance that you'll read this. But, somehow, I've got a feeling that you'll get the message. You know what they say about the power of the press and all that.

Rest in peace,
An Olympic fan

1968: drugs and racism

by OLGA CONNOLLY
(Third in a Series)

By the XIXth Olympic Games in Mexico in 1968 the international sports scene was inundated by drugs which affected especially the weightlifting, throwing and women's events.

The anabolic steroids are synthetic products based on the biological formula of the male hormone, testosterone. The steroids are credited with increasing the body's ability to retain protein, and thus increase the muscular power and bulk.

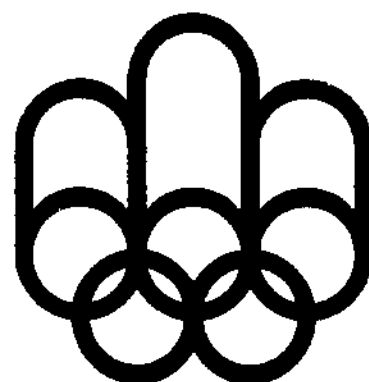

The natural testosterone, of course, also accounts for the development of the male secondary characteristics such as growing a beard, body hair or baldness.

Women whose natural supply of the hormone is negligible respond to the anabolic treatment with explosive increase in physical strength. But since the men produce their own steroid hormone, their response to the synthetic one is less reliable.

Naturally, the International Olympic Committee has outlawed the usage of the drug. But the rule is not enforceable. The techniques for measuring hormonal levels are complicated, and as individuals vary, norms are unreliable. Moreover, the anabolic steroids are useful mainly during the off-season, power-building preparation. There is no need to take them in the Olympic Games.

So the problem is completely different from that of doping, and probably cannot be solved. The Olympic Committee's physicians concluded in their research that the anabolic steroids are not as effective as people once thought, anyway. But the athletes surmise that if a drug can help them increase their power by 50 pounds, they may as well take it.

The male hormone treatment notwithstanding, in Mexico City the doctors began to administer the now-routine sex test. The serious medical technician told me that my chromosomal count, rather than my being a mother of four children, was a better protection for my claim to being a woman. The chromosomal count just cannot be tricked. Alphabetically simplified, the scraping of the cells from the mouth of a man when checked under the microscope spells XY. If it reads XX, he's a woman. And the other way around.

The Olympic movement lacks ethics because it lacks commitment. Its motto, "citius, altius, fortius," is not much of a philosophy. "Swifter, higher, stronger," can as well mean "more competition, more animosity, more hormones."

Human emotions ran high in Mexico City. The athletic challenge was magnified by the high altitude; the humanistic challenge by the increasing tension in the outside world. The rift between the instinctive desires of the people and the barriers that separate them, appeared in the XIXth Olympics with stunning boldness. Once again, the Olympic Village had to perform a miracle.

I felt it from the instant the bus pulled in from the airport. An instant embrace from an old Czechoslovak coach. My being surrounded by Czechoslovak athletes. Their stories about the changed attitudes during the 1968 Spring in Prague. Their bliss

MEXICO CITY exploded with drama in 1968 when Americans Tommie Smith and John Carlos protested with Black Power salutes on the victory stand.

Owners delay pact approval

PHILADELPHIA — Major league baseball owners today unexpectedly delayed approval of a compromise agreement on the hotly-disputed reserve clause.

Baseball Commission Bowie Kuhn said after a three-hour closed door meeting that the owners agreed to make a decision by 2 p.m. next Monday.

"It was a very constructive meeting," he said. "I can't say it was unanimously in favor but I can say it was strongly in favor."

He said he believed there could be "sufficient support to ratify" the agreement announced Monday.

Asked if the majority of the owners voted to reject the pact, Kuhn said he "would not want to speculate on that."

Sox swap Coggins for Nordhagen

CHICAGO — The Chicago White Sox Wednesday acquired right-handed hitting outfielder Wayne Nordhagen from the Philadelphia Phillies' farm system in exchange for outfielder Rich Coggins.

The trade was achieved when both players cleared waivers by the rest of the eligible teams in both leagues.

The Sox immediately placed Nordhagen, 28, a 6-foot-2, 195-pounder, on their roster.

Nordhagen broke into professional baseball in 1968 in the New York Yankees organization and also played in the Atlanta Braves, St. Louis Cardinals and Phillies' organizations.

His best year was 1975 at Tulsa of the American Association, where he hit .357. This year at Oklahoma City in the American Association he was hitting .310 in 74 games with 65 runs batted in.

Coggins was hitting .156 in 32 games with the White Sox. Philadelphia is assigning Coggins to their Oklahoma City farm club.

Cubs option Schultz to Wichita

CHICAGO — The Chicago Cubs announced Wednesday that they had called up Wayne Tyrone from their Wichita farm club.

To make room on the roster, the Cubs optioned left-handed pitcher Buddy Schultz to the same club. In 25 appearances with the Cubs this season, Schultz was 1-1 with a 5.14 ERA.

Tyrone is the brother of Jim Tyrone, another member of the Cubs organization who played briefly with Chicago in 1972, 1974 and 1975.

Wayne Tyrone, 25, a 6-foot-1, 185 pounder, hit .286 in 28 games with the Aros this season. Tyrone slatted eight homers, seven doubles and two triples in 24 times at bat for a .703 slugging percentage.

Tyrone played 50 games earlier this season at Midland, Tex., of the Texas League, after having spent the last two seasons at the same club. Tyrone hit 29 homers with 108 RBIs in 1974.

Royals' Busby to undergo surgery

KANSAS CITY — Steve Busby, the Kansas City's most successful pitcher the past three seasons, will undergo surgery to repair his injured right arm and likely will miss the rest of the season, the Royals announced Wednesday.

Busby, who threw a no-hitter against the Milwaukee Brewers on June 19, 1974 and also no-hit the Detroit Tigers on April 27, 1973, has won 56 games for the Royals over the past three seasons. He will be operated on by Dr. Robert Kerlan in Los Angeles to repair a torn rotator cuff in his right arm.

Busby, who will be 27 in September, has had arm trouble for most of the past year but surgery wasn't deemed necessary until Dr. Kerlan recommended his arm last week. He has pitched sparingly this season, posting a 3-3 record and a 4.40 earned run average in 72 innings of work.

Sayers to be A.D. at SIU

CARBONDALE, Ill. — Gale Sayers, who George Halas rates as the greatest running back in the history of professional football, will be named athletic director at Southern Illinois University Thursday, a reliable source said.

The school has announced a news conference at 9:30 a.m. CDT Thursday, but athletic department officials declined to say what would be discussed.

Sayers, 33, has been working since his retirement as an athletic department official at the University of Kansas, his alma mater. He spent a day and a half earlier this week in interviews on the SIU campus, where he was the last of five finalists for the head post vacated by Doug Weaver, who left to become athletic director at Georgia Tech.

He has made his home in Lawrence, Kans.

Sayers wound up a brilliant seven-year career with the Halas-owned Chicago Bears in 1972 when he lost his fight to overcome repeated knee injuries and hung up his spikes at age 29.

He still holds 14 individual Bears records, including a career average of five yards per rushing attempt. His NFL single season scoring of 22 touchdowns stood for 11 seasons.

Pacers to make first NBA payment

INDIANAPOLIS — The Indiana Pacers will come up with $1 million Thursday as partial payment for entry into the National Basketball Association.

At the same time, Coach and General Manager Bobby Leonard will kick a few chairs in an effort to sell tickets.

It's costing the Pacers and three other members of the now defunct American Basketball Association $3.2 million in cash to get into the NBA. Payment No. 1, or $1 million, was due Thursday.

The money will be transferred from an Indianapolis bank to an escrow account in New York, a Pacer spokesman said. No one actually will travel to New York to present the money in person. It will be handled on paper through the involved banks.

O.J. sets mid-August deadline

NEW YORK — Buffalo Bills running back O. J. Simpson, looking to take his football talents to the West Coast, said Wednesday there is an "excellent" chance he will be playing for the Los Angeles Rams this season, but if a deal is not worked out by mid-August he'll quit pro football.

"The Rams are ready to give the Bills an offer it would be hard to turn down," Simpson said. "The chances of going to Los Angeles are excellent."

The former Heisman Trophy winner said he has been in contact with both clubs but does not know which players would be involved in such a deal.

AHA hopes to stop horse race

DENVER (UPI) — The American Humane Association, which has taken a dim view of a cross-country horse race currently at the midway point, will try to stop the event because four of the animals have died and several others are in poor condition.

Association spokesman Warren Cox said state laws will be evoked if necessary to remove poorly conditioned horses from the race.

The race from Saratoga Springs, N.Y., to Sacramento, Calif., has reached Kansas City, Mo., where the humane society Monday ordered 15 horses eliminated because of exhaustion and weight loss. About 50 other horses were pulled from the race earlier.

'No drunk's going to tackle old Tom'

Looking back can be intriguing

by MURRAY OLDERMAN

SAN FRANCISCO — A great deal of the intrigue of sports is looking back. Tom Harmon, old No. 90 of Michigan, remembers well the first game of his senior year. It was on his birthday anniversary, Sept. 28, 1940, at the University of California's Memorial Stadium in Berkeley.

"We took the opening kickoff back for a touchdown," he recalls. Actually he returned it 94 yards for the score.

"Then," he continued, "I scored on a run of 72 yards and in the third quarter I caught a punt on my own 11 and broke for the sideline. My blockers opened an alley and by the time I got to their 10-yard line there was nobody in front of me. It was clear sailing to the goal line."

"While I'm running along the sideline, I see this guy ahead of me coming out of the stands and I think to myself, 'Oh, oh, I better watch out.' Well, he cuts right under the goal post, and reaches the 2-yard-line when he lunges at me."

"No drunk's going to tackle old Tom. I gave him a sidestep, and he went sprawling."

"After the game, as I was coming out of the dressing room, the cops had him in tow. They asked me what I wanted done with him — they were going to put him in the jug. And I said, 'Now let's forget it. It's all over.' He was just an old Blue who had soaked up a little too much."

Every year, for the 35 years since,

Tom Harmon has received a card at Christmas and a card on his birthday, Sept. 28. Last year, Tom was invited to play in a San Francisco 49er invitational golf tournament. His partner was a man named Bud Brennan, who is a successful realtor in the Bay area. They also went to dinner that night.

The same Bud Brennan has signed all those Christmas and birthday cards for 35 years. He's also the man who came out of the stands trying to tackle No. 90 on that hot September day all those years ago.

"A pretty good golfer, too," muses Tom.

Leonard Koppett has been a sports writer for 30 years, since his graduation from Columbia University. In all the athletic annals of Columbia, there has never been a greater day than Jan. 1, 1934, in the Rose Bowl when a heavily favored Stanford team was upset by the New Yorkers, 7-0. The only touchdown was scored by a back named Al Barabas running 17 yards on what was then known as a naked reverse.

The West Coast sports correspondent for the New York Times, Koppett now lives in Palo Alto, the home of Stanford University. Recently, Koppett put new California license plates on his car. The license number: KF 79.

In football lore, "KF 79" is famed as the play on which Barabas scored the in having tasted the freedom of socialism with a human face swelled again in the propitious surrounding of the Village of the Crossing Worlds, although two months before it had been all over at home.

In the aftermath of the Soviet invasion, the Czechoslovak athletes did not speak to the Soviets. Yes, they had been friends for many years. Yes, they used to like them. But the shame of their government's cruelty divided them. The athletes — human beings — did not change, but the events tore them apart.

I was really preoccupied by a split within the U.S. Olympic team over another issue which is a symptom of an old ulcerating affliction within the Family of Man. It is the hereditary disease of racism.

"Some Stanford grad, class of '34, watching me drive by," chortles Koppett, "is going to have a heart attack."

Otto Graham was at the height of his career as the quarterback of the Cleveland Browns when the citizens of Bay Village, Ohio, where Otto lived, were shocked by the news that on the night of July 4, 1954, Marilyn Shepard had been murdered. And that her husband, Dr. Sam Shepard, a well known osteopath, had been accused of the crime.

"We were neighbors and friends of Sam and Marilyn," remembers Otto. "We belonged to the same dance club. Why, the Wednesday before we went with them, and our sons to the auto races together."

When Otto heard about the murder the next morning, he came home and told his wife, Beverly, the news, and the first question she asked him was, "Did Sam do it?"

Otto was privileged to go to the Shepard house and see the murder room — the police had clamped a tight security lid on the case. "There was blood all over the walls," he recalls, "like someone had painted it there."

Later he went to see Dr. Sam in the hospital, the only visitor outside of legal authorities and the accused's im-fessor, Harry Edwards, posed some disquieting questions about the nearly total lack of black coaches, trainers, and physicians in the U.S. Olympic delegations, and in the university and other athletic programs in general. He also posed some disquieting answers.

The many outstanding black athletes should be given a solid career opportunity in the field of sports administration, Edwards said, and suggested that the black athletes abandon the Olympic medal hunt until the equal career opportunity is put in better balance. Edwards' suggestion of the black boycott sent emotions on a rampage.

Objective thinking was out. Even those who should have known better failed to understand the extent of the sacrifice the black athletes were considering to make. For most of them, the Olympic boycott would have buried years of labor, dreams and self-denial directed to the one goal of competing in the Olympic Games. Most would not be able to try again.

Avery Brundage, president of the International Olympic Committee, said haughtily that, "we can win the Olympic Games without them." Others shouted about treason. Very few were able to perceive what the black athletes were really asked to offer, and therefore the obvious validity of the social issue at stake.

The black athletes ended up on the U.S. Olympic team. And, as it happened before with the Hungarians, the Czechs, the Slovaks and others who fought their national and social struggles during the time of the Olympics, the bigness of the event mollified temporarily even their grievance. But racism is a special issue. In talking to so many men and women from non-white nations, the black athletes also became more aware that their mood was universal.

And so one day, at the moment of sweeping emotion, as they stood on the top of the world, in the moment that was their very own, under the subconscious realization of their oneness with mankind, sprinters Tommie Smith and John Carlos raised clenched fists on the Olympic victory pedestal. I remembered my physical feeling years before of embracing the amorphous masses. I could see the same embrace, but expressed differently by athletes of different background.

But no one asked the Olympic champion and his friend what depth of feelings had swept them.

What happened to the sanctity of the Olympic heroes on whose temples used to be placed the divinely blessed wreaths of wild olives? What happened to those noble men? Their souls? Who was left to listen to them?

There are no Olympic heroes any more. Only medal-making machines.

Carlos and Smith were evicted from the Olympic Village. In the dining room the U.S. team manager told me: "Our athletes have too much freedom. I think that the Soviet team is much better disciplined. We should teach that to our young people." I left, suppressing the urge to throw up.

But Mexico is too beautiful, too spirited, too indomitable, too creative to leave anyone depressed. Mexico saved the day.

The track of the stadium was surrounded by police equipped with poles to be used against any athlete who would attempt to enter it. The show was tightly set. But there was a minor oversight.

At the first sound of the mariachi band the athletes in the stands leaped up. Individuals, dozens, then hundreds began to climb the moat that separated the seats from the track; and the Mexican police extended their poles to help them. Within minutes the dam broke and poured its fresh waters through the television screens into every corner of the world.

The closing ceremony in Mexico City was a melee of laughter and dancing, embraces and promises to be back again, shouts, music and songs that really never ended.

People who have viewed it in their living rooms told me it was the most moving Olympic ceremony they have ever seen.

THE SPARK OF GENIUS

LIGHTS UP OUR 200TH BIRTHDAY

THOMAS EDISON AND THE TALKING MACHINE

One hundred and one years after our nation was born great orchestras played in America's parlors.

Thomas Alva Edison gave his countrymen home entertainment. In some ways his invention of the phonograph meant as much as his incandescent light bulb. From a thick brass cylinder covered with tin foil the sound of the world's great musicians and singers, the excitement of drama and the fun of comedy came into American homes everywhere. It was 1877 and Thomas Edison was just 30 years old. He had introduced a new dimension of pleasure to American life.

Sorry, Chris

In Wednesday's Herald, Chris Marszalek's name was accidentally misspelled. We're sorry for the error.

Marszalek is presently competing in the U.S. Amateur Public Links Golf Championships in Coon Rapids, Minn. His opening rounds of 73 and 72 qualified the Arlington Heights golfer for the 64-man match play field.

Also competing is Tom Jacobson, who has a 152 total. He's Schaumburg High School's head golf coach.

McLean Junior date set

Junior golfers from 13 to 21 years of age are encouraged to enter the 11th Annual Al McLean Memorial Junior Open.

The event will be played at the Wilmette Park District Course from August 9-11.

Competition will be held in three age groups.

Thirteen and 14 year olds compete for a 36-hole total on August 9-10. To enter these boys should have a handicap of 16 or less.

Young men 15 to 17 and 18 to 21 will play 18 holes August 11. To enter these Juniors should have a handicap of 10 or less.

Entries and details are available by writing Frank Weale at 3900 Fairway Drive Wilmette Ill 60091.

Also, please phone 256-6100, extension 56. Entries close July 30.

Trophies will be awarded to the champion and next four low scorers in each age group. In all 150 of the finest golfers in the Midwest are expected to vie for honors.

Sports intrigue is looking back

mediate family to do so.

I figured when a man's in trouble is when he needs a friend," explains Otto.

When Shepard refused to take a lie detector test or make any effort to cooperate with the authorities, Otto swung around to the belief that Sam did it — and still holds that belief.

The Grahams were more than casually interested in the sensational trial proceedings that followed. At the height of it, reviews Otto, a New York newspaper came out with a story that Beverly was having an affair with Sam. What happened was that we were all at a party and Sam had a new two-seater sports car. Beverly wanted to see what it was like. He drove her from the party in it and I followed in another car. That's all there was to it.

Dr. Sam Shepard convicted for the murder was later retried and acquitted. He died a couple of years ago. A recent three-hour television dramatization renewed interest in the highly publicized case.

To me, says Otto, now director of athletics at the Coast Guard Academy, it was all new.

Old Orchard hosts cancer golf outing

The 14th annual Evelyn Steinberg Memorial Foundation golf day will be held at Old Orchard Country Club on Wednesday.

This cancer research tourney is open to the public. The entire morning's tee off times will be open. Reservations will be confirmed after receipt of a $35 entry fee.

This admission price will cover brunch, greens fee and cart, dinner, locker room facilities and gifts. If you want to take part but do not wish to play, the cost is $15.

Between 6 and 7 p.m., Count Yogi will put on a unique exhibition. Yogi calls himself the world's greatest golfer when it comes to straight or trick shots.

Midget gridders schedule sign up

The Mount Prospect Midget Football Assn. will conduct its weigh-in on Saturday from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. at the Mount Prospect Country Club.

All registered boys must weigh in on the official scale before practice begins. Team assignments will be made on the basis of age and weight. There will be three divisions: bantam, junior and senior.

Late registration will also be accepted during Saturday's session. Any boy between the ages of eight and 14 (on or before Dec. 1, 1976) and living in the village of Mount Prospect or the park district is eligible.

Registration fee is $20 per boy and $10 for each additional boy per family. Late registrants must be accompanied by an adult and must present proof of age.

Ford on TV tosses Dems curveball

President Ford stayed for only two innings of the All-Star game in Philadelphia Tuesday, but it was long enough to give him more than twice the television exposure the Democrats got at their national convention. According to the Nielsen ratings, Ford — and the baseball game — drew almost 2½ times as many persons to their TV sets in the heavily Democratic New York area as the Democrats. Forty-seven per cent of the viewers watched the game. Only 20 per cent watched the convention from Madison Square Garden on two networks.

The Democrats were even defeated in the ratings by an old movie on a third station and by a talk show and repeat of a soap opera episode on a fourth, according to Nielsen. Monday night, Humphrey Bogart in "Casablanca" single-handedly chased the country's largest political party from the air in New York. Tuesday night, 47 per cent of the TV audience in the New York area tuned in ABC to watch Ford throw out two baseballs to start the All-Star Game and to talk with the players. CBS and NBC both showed the Democrats from state to finish and got 11 per cent and 9 per cent of the audience respectively.

Carter, woman agree

The Democratic Rules Committee Wednesday adopted a compromise agreement between Jimmy Carter and women delegates to "promote" equal representation between men and women at the 1980 convention. There was no debate on the rules compromise, which was a toned-down version of the women's original goal of a mandatory 50-50 split. The compromise guarantees that there will be no divisive debate on the convention floor over the issue of women's rights, just as Carter forces earlier blocked debate on abortion and other potentially hot issues. The women's caucus approved the compromise Monday. It would "promote" equality in state delegations beginning at the 1978 mid-term convention, and provide enforcement by the national party.

VP 'hotline' black phone

The six senators waiting for a telephone call from Jimmy Carter probably will get it on a special black telephone installed by the Secret Service. Sen. John H. Glenn Jr., D-Ohio, said Wednesday he had no idea how he would learn whether Carter had selected him for vice president, but a special black phone installed in his suite bypassed the hotel switchboard. He said similar preparations were made for other potential nominees.

Pantsuit wins with women

The nomination is unanimous. The pantsuit is the No. 1 candidate in women's wardrobes at the Democratic National Convention. Jimmy Carter's wife Rosalynn has been wearing pantsuits regularly Tuesday in a meeting with reporters, she wore a lemon yellow pantsuit with printed scarf in assorted yellows at her throat. "Miss Lillian," Jimmy Carter's mother has been in pantsuits much of the week.

It has been the trousers-and-tops fashion for daytime all this week at the convention. For evening gatherings, outside Madison Square Garden, some delegates have found time to change into long skirts. But as Mrs. T. D. Harden, 62, an alternate delegate from Amory, Miss., explained: "You know you don't really have time to change. What you start with in the morning is what you stay with."

Curator finds slim pickin

The Smithsonian Institution sent curator Herbert R. Collins to the Democratic convention to collect political memorabilia—buttons, banners, funny hats and the like — but he's having a terrible time. People are reluctant to give up their stuff, even to history. "The pickings are pretty bad," Collins said Wednesday. "Political paraphernalia isn't as good as it used to be. So much of it is plastic or styrofoam or manufactured and sold by hawkers for profit. We look for stuff that was really used at the convention, things that are unique and make a splash." The Smithsonian has an exhibition of convention memorabilia and Collins was sent to New York — and will go to the Republican convention in Kansas City — to acquire more.

Delegates shmoozing it up

Schmoozing is what kids do when they should be practicing the piano and what Democrats have been doing whenever National Chairman Robert Strauss hollers at them to clear the aisles in Madison Square Garden. To schmooze, wrote Leo Rosten in "The Jays of Yiddish," is to engage in "idle chit-chat, to gossip, to have a prolonged heart-to-heart talk," as in "They had a little schmooz and settled everything." Waiting for Jimmy Carter Wednesday, there was nothing else for a Democrat to do but schmooz in the manner of Estragon and Valdimir, two characters in the Samuel Becket play, who do it through three acts while "waiting for Godot," somebody they don't know very well and are a little bit afraid of.

Ted out of campaign

Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, a nearly forgotten man at the convention, said Wednesday he will not have a role in Jimmy Carter's presidential campaign. "I have my own reelection campaign," the Massachusetts Democrat told a reporter who asked whether he would be active in Carter's campaign.

Draft dodger to seek post

Draft resister Fritz Eflaw said Wednesday his name will be entered in nomination for vice president to dramatize the issue of unconditional amnesty but he intends no disruption of the Democratic National Convention. Supporters of unconditional amnesty said they have obtained more than 80 signatures — 30 more than needed — to nominate Eflaw, an uncommitted delegate who lives in London and still faces draft evasion charges. "We don't want to do anything destructive," Eflaw said. "We just want to raise the issue. It's not intended to be at cross-purposes with the party."

It'll cost you big bucks

So you want a lake home?

by BONITA BRODT

Marge Yeats is in the market for vacation property, but she is having a difficult time finding the land she wants.

She is looking for a waterfront vacation home to use on the weekends that is no more than a two-hour drive from her Palatine home.

But after more than a month of searching, Ms. Yeats, a real estate broker with Century 21 in Arlington Heights, has found that vacation property located on a lake is "hard to find and very expensive when you do find some."

ACCORDING TO other local real estate brokers, Ms. Yeats' problem is a familiar one. They say that lakefront property continues to be the most popular site for vacation and second homes, despite the fact that waterfront land prices have skyrocketed in recent years.

"The demand for second homes — vacation homes — is just as strong today as it has always been," said Bill Bork, a Mundelein real estate broker, "but people have to be willing to pay. The cost of land has increased to the point that many simply cannot afford the property."

In her search for a weekend vacation home, Ms. Yeats said she has visited Green Lake, Lake Geneva and Lauderdale Lake in Wisconsin. There, she said she found land prices ranging from $360 for a front foot of waterfront land at Lauderdale Lake; $400 at Green Lake and $1,000 at Lake Geneva.

For a prime section of lakeside property, she said prices averaged around $46,000 per acre. Land away from the lakeshore is not as expensive, she said.

FOR THE PERSON who wants to own a nearby vacation house, local brokers say the Chain-of-Lakes area in northwest Lake County is one of the most popular areas. There, land prices range from $6,000 for a lot away from the water up to $25,000 for a prime lakefront spot "if you can find it," Bork said.

Vacation homes used only in the summer months by the owner are not as popular as they once were in the Chain-of-Lakes area, Bork said. Although some still rent out property from Labor Day to Memorial Day and then occupy it themselves in the summer, the trend is to year-round second homes.

"Most owners are finding that they like to use these homes in winter," Bork said. Most second homes started as summer cottages and now are converted to year-round homes, Bork said.

And for the Chain-of-Lakes owner who uses his home all year, a number of winter recreations including snowmobiling, ice fishing and snow skiing are nearby.

RICHARD WILSON of Kole Real Estate, Palatine, owns vacation property in Horseshoe Bend, Ark. He has been in the real estate business eight years, during that time helping many customers to locate vacation property.

"With the recent popularity of campers, I am not sure that people want to own as much land as they did a few years ago," he said. "I find that more people will buy cheap land far away from home so they can travel on a long weekend basis rather than to buy an expensive vacation spot near home."

Areas Wilson has found to be popular with customers include Door County, Wis., Iron Mountain, Mich., and the Chain-of-Lakes area.

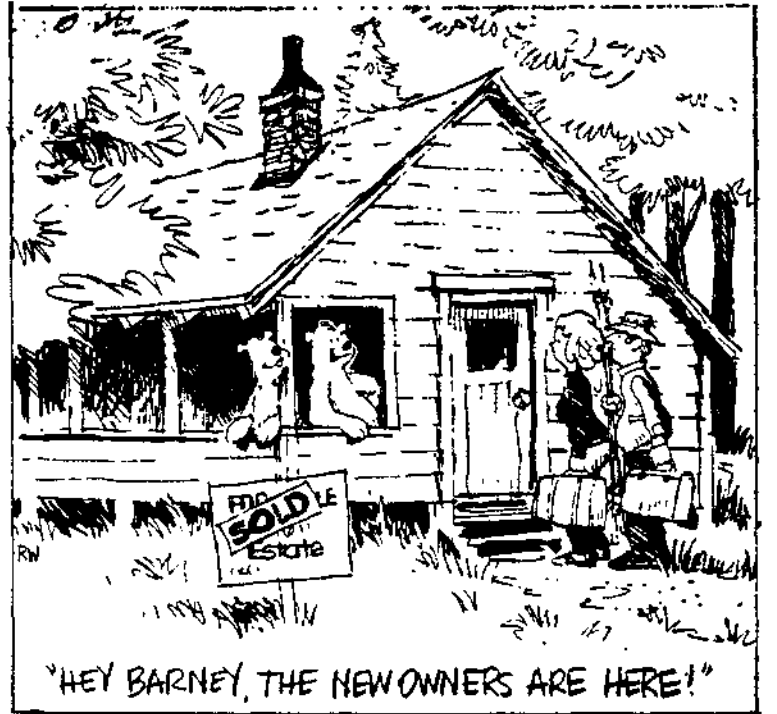

He said many choose their vacation homes with the intent of moving into them fulltime after retirement.

"This is especially true when people choose farms for vacation land — they vacation there when young, fully intending to move into the farm when they retire," he said.

TO ILLUSTRATE how waterfront land prices have jumped in recent years, Wilson said that a lakeshore lot at Horseshoe Bend sold for about $800 eight years ago. Today, he said the same land sells for between $20,000 and $25,000.

He also said that waterfront prices at Apple Canyon, another lake area vacation development in Galena, have almost doubled in recent years, with lakeshore property today selling for about $22,000.

Another approach to vacation property popular with Northwest suburbanites is condominium apartment living. One such development is in Ephraim, Wis., called the Knudson House in Door County.

There, located on an acre-and-a-half, are nine condominium apartment units with one to three bedroom facilities. According to Jim Jacobs, a manager, the condominium owner brokers the unit through the management for rentals.

Jacobs said to build a condominium apartment there, land prices for a minimum lot of 1,000 square feet would range from between $25,000 and $35,000 per lot. He said that owners use the condominium units as their second homes.

Most business in the Knudson House development is from families who rent the condominium units on a weekly vacation basis, he said. Weekly rentals of this kind usually cost between $250 and $500, depending on unit size, he said.

Make sure your realtor knows the area well

Local real estate brokers offer these tips to persons interested in buying vacation property.

First of all, find a reputable broker familiar with the area you are considering. Although you may think that you have asked all the questions, brokers say only a broker familiar with the area can benefit your search.

"Without a realtor that knows the area and the management well, you could be sold the wrong lot and never realize it," said Palatine real estate broker Richard Wilson.

Mundelein real estate broker Bill Bork says when buying lakefront property, you have to be certain the property you consider is not prone to excess flooding year-round.

"You won't know the answer, and it is sometimes doubtful if a seller will tell you that unless you ask. The only way you can be sure is if you can rely on a local realtor in the area," he said.

If you desire property near a lake, Wilson suggests it can be more economical in the long run to buy lakeshore property rather than land farther away from the water.

"The idea here is that when you invest your money, you want to be able to get it back as fast as you can when you want it. A lakeshore lot will probably cost about two times as much as one farther away, but it will sell faster when you want to get rid of it," he said.

Wilson also said when deliberating whether to buy waterfront property, you should consider convenience.

"People should decide whether they want to jump out their back door into the lake, or walk through 4 or 5 yards to get there. They should also find out if they will have access to docking areas for a boat if they live far away from shore," he said.

Arlington Heights realtor Marge Yeats encourages a potential buyer to check with the local department of sanitation and health before buying a house, making sure that the well fits building codes.

"I almost got taken. I found a beautiful piece of waterfront property on Green Lake. It was a two bedroom house built in 1969, and they asked for $48,000. I was ready to put in a bid, and then I happened to call the local sanitary health department only to find that the well in the house was not acceptable under the local building code," she said.

She also emphasized finding a lake that is deep enough for boating without an excess of weeds.

"People sometimes forget to ask those little things, and the consequences can be disappointing," she said.

If you want vacation property that will actually be a second home, realtors recommended that you find a place with good security. "You must have a full-time neighbor next door, or chances are that your home won't be without damages for long," Wilson said.

If the vacation home you choose will be your full-time home after retirement, realtors said to make sure you will have access to transportation, stores, doctors and that the home is located in a favorable climate.

When closing ownership on a vacation home, make sure to hire an attorney to terminate your ownership, realtors said.

New to country living? Check the septic tanks

Each year, more and more Americans desert the "big cities" and move to suburban or rural areas, lured by the prospects of cleaner air and a more spacious place for the children.

There are, of course many advantages to "country living," but life-long city dwellers soon discover they are unfamiliar with many of the things their rural counterparts take for granted.

Take, for example, the city dweller who moves to a rural area and encounters a septic tank for the first time in his life. He may not know exactly what a septic tank is, how it works, or how to care for it and maintain it. It is not uncommon, in fact, for a person to purchase a house without knowing it's on a septic system until after he has moved in.

The Illinois Dept. of Public Health has a few tips for would-be or new septic tank owners.

FIRST, BEFORE purchasing a home in a suburban or rural area, ask the owner or real estate agent whether the house is serviced by a septic tank. If the answer is "yes," ask the owner to give you a signed statement indicating that the system is in good working order.

Next, be certain the system has the capacity to handle your family. A septic tank designed to serve a three-bedroom house, for example, should have a minimum capacity of 1,000 gallons. For each additional bedroom, add 250 gallons. And if you add a garbage disposal, the size of the septic tank should be increased by 50 per cent.

Assuming your septic tank system is in good condition and large enough to accommodate your family, how do you take care of it after you move in?

Contrary to what many people may believe, it is not necessary to add yeast, chemicals or any other additives to your septic tank. Natural organisms will "get the action going."

BE CAREFUL about what you put into your system. Avoid using your septic system to dispose of large objects, disposable diapers, large amounts of grease or undiluted caustic solutions. Bleach from a clothes washer should not cause a problem. Putting too much solid waste into your system can clog it up. If your system does clog up, it will start to back up into your house just as a clogged sewer would.

Your septic tank should be cleaned out about every two years. You can locate septic tank cleaners by looking in the yellow pages of your telephone directory.

All in all, however, using a septic tank probably isn't much different from being served by a city sewer system, provided you give it a "little consideration" and maintain it. Remember, you are now the superintendent of your own sanitary district.

If you want more information or advice about construction and maintenance of private sewage disposal systems, contact your local health department or write to Illinois Dept. of Public Health, Division of General Sanitation, 535 West Jefferson, Springfield, Ill. 62761.

Landscaping at commercial, industrial sites target of insect invasion, says architect

Owners and managers of large commercial and institutional properties, including shopping centers, hospitals, and office buildings, should be aware of the threat to landscaping posed by the severe insect infestation in the Chicago area this summer.

"Especially around newer properties, landscaping has not had a chance to become established because of soil compaction, and therefore the plants are susceptible to insect attack," said Dick Brickman, president of Theodore Brickman Co., Long Grove, landscape architects and contractors who work for large commercial and institutional customers.

Brickman reported that because of the short winter and early warm spring, the insects are out in force.

"So far this year we have seen major infestations of inchworms, pine saw fly, aphids, mealy bugs, cottony maple scale, soft shell scale, leaf crumpler, and leaf miner," he said. "We're also on the verge of a major red spider and borer problem."

Inchworms, which chew the leaves of deciduous trees, are especially bad this year because the short mild winter did not kill as many of the soil-protected eggs as is usual.

Aphids, which normally are associated with roses, have been attacking all types of leafy plants, sucking the sap from the foliage and causing the leaves to curl. Another pest this year is the skeletonizer or pine saw fly which chews pine needles, with the mugho pine as a favorite target. Mealy bugs are especially prevalent in Japanese yews and Douglas firs.

In cotoneaster, the leaf crumpler sucks juices from the base of the leaves, causing them to shrivel. Alders, hawthorns, and to some extent birches, are being attacked by the leaf miner which gets between the layers of the leaves.

This year, cottony maple scale — which shows up as a fuzzy ball on the branches — is being found not only on silver maple, but on many other deciduous trees as well, and on Boston ivy. Soft shell scale is showing up on euonymus and the Peking variety of cotoneaster.

Red spider shows up on evergreens, but is easy to control by a water spray from the end of a garden hose every five to seven days.

Most other insect infestations can be controlled with varying degrees of effectiveness by application of malathion, while lindane is recommended for leaf miner and borers. Insect control sprays used today present some danger to birds and may only be safely used as long as label instructions are followed, Brickman said.

Brickman noted that the homeowner has less of a problem with these insects than the owner or manager of a commercial or institutional property, although even for the homeowner, the insect problem can be a headache.

"For one thing, the ground around a single-family home probably isn't compacted as much as the soil around a shopping center or office building, where a lot of heavy machinery has been at work," he said. "It may take two or three seasons before deep frost penetrates the compacted soil and breaks it up, thus allowing the plant to take hold. Meanwhile, the plant is in a weakened condition and is more easily harmed by insects than an established plant."

Reflects asset age

Depreciation a tax break

DEAR MR. MELTZER: I am a doctor and my practice is doing very well. I have so much income that my accountant advised me to find some investments I can use for tax shelter.

In 1975 I bought a fast-food building with a long-term lease. My accountant just sent me a copy of my income tax return which he has filed for me. I was very anxious to see what effect my tax shelter had. He told me this would show up in a deduction known as "depreciation."

He divided my sale price into land and building, and only depreciated the building part. Isn't he making a mistake? — DOCTOR NO

Depreciation is a deduction the Internal Revenue Service allows a taxpayer, to reflect the wearing out of a physical asset. In other words, as your building gets older, the Internal Revenue Service allows you to take as an expense an allowance to reflect the parts that are wearing out.

Land never gets older, nor does it ever wear out. Therefore, your investment was allocated between land and building, and only the building part depreciated. You will probably find that your tax shelter is not as good as you thought it would be because most fast-food operations are located on very valuable land and are rather inexpensive buildings.

DEAR MR. MELTZER: I have been living in my present apartment for nearly five years. During all that time, I paid my rent faithfully the first of each month. This past month, for the first time since I have lived there, I was 15 days late paying my rent. I had been laid off from my job and it was necessary for me to make arrangements to borrow money to meet my commitments.

When I brought my rent check to the landlord's office, he refused to take it unless I added a 5 per cent "late charge." Though my lease has nothing in it about a late charge, the landlord advises me that "everybody pays a late charge" if the rent is not paid by the 10th of the month.

Must I pay this? — FAITHFUL TENANT

No, don't pay it! If there is nothing in your lease about a "late charge," you are not obligated to pay it.

Without authority for a late charge in the lease, an agent cannot add this charge unless the tenant agrees voluntarily to pay it.

DEAR MR. MELTZER: I am renting a building and the landlord wants to insert a clause in my lease known as an escalator clause. He says this protects him if real estate taxes increase. Can you explain this? — OVERTAXED

An escalator clause in a lease states that if there is an increase in the real estate taxes charged by the municipal authority during the term of the lease, that increase must be paid by the tenant. For example, if the taxes at the time the lease is signed are $100, this $100 is paid by the landlord.

If the taxes are increased in the next year to $125, then the tenant must pay the $25 increase. It does not make a difference whether the excess tax results from a reassessment of the building or an increase in the tax rate unless it is specified in the lease.

Escalator clauses are very common in commercial real estate. Currently, there is a trend to include some sort of escalator protection for the landlord in residential leases.

DEAR MR. MELTZER: I took your advice. It cost me lots of money and messed me up. You're always preaching about getting an attorney. I did. The only problems that mine knew nothing about real estate.

At settlement, he allowed all kinds of unwarranted charges to go in. Even an amateur could have spotted that the papers were drawn favoring the broker and the seller. Since moving in, I have discovered four major things wrong with the house. He should have protected me against this, but he didn't. Since you got me into this mess with your recommendations, you had better tell me how to get out. — FOULED UP

I regret that you engaged incompetent professional help. I know from experience that incompetent professional help is worse than nothing at all.

I also regret I know no way of helping you out of your troubles. They all fall into the category of "bad judgment and opinion." A professional person is not liable for bad judgment. You punish him by not asking his services again.

Building suppliers profits up

With recovery in the construction industry picking up momentum in the opening quarter of 1976, makers of building products posted after-tax profit gains of 65 per cent over the recession - blighted first quarter of 1975, reports the F. W. Dodge Division of McGraw-Hill Information Systems Co.

Sales of the same representative group of building product manufacturers were up 17 per cent from a year ago.

The report is based on the Dodge Division's periodic review of a group of 63 building products firms in 14 different product categories. George A. Christie, vice president and chief economist of Dodge, cautioned that the figures are less an indication of the strength of the current recovery than they are of just how bad conditions were a year ago.

Pointing out that the opening quarter of 1975 was the low point of the construction industry's recession, he said that "since then, with single family housing in the lead and supplemented by the energy-building boom, a recovery has been slowly emerging."

According to the Dodge economist, "Much of the sales increase in the first quarter appears to have come from inventory rebuilding. Heavy inventory liquidation during the recession left many distribution pipelines rather thin. Now, with the promise of two years of recovery ahead, these are being refilled," said Christie.

First-quarter profits of firms in the 14 product categories reviewed by Dodge were:

Multiproducts (6 companies): over 100 per cent.

Glass (3 companies): over 100 per cent.

HVAC (4 companies): over 100 per cent.

Controls (4 companies): over 100 per cent.

Forest Products (6 companies): up 60 per cent.

Gypsum (2 companies): up 72 per cent.

Heavy Equipment (6 companies): up 38 per cent.

Plumbing & Fixtures (3 companies): up 32 per cent.

Tools & Hardware (5 companies): up 30 per cent.

Electrical Fixtures (5 companies): up 28 per cent.

Aluminum (3 companies): down 24 per cent.

Iron & Steel (4 companies): down 47 per cent.

Cement (9 companies): percentage not computed, year-ago deficit earnings.

Coatings (3 companies): percentage not computed, year-ago deficit earnings.

Institute offers sales classes for Realtors

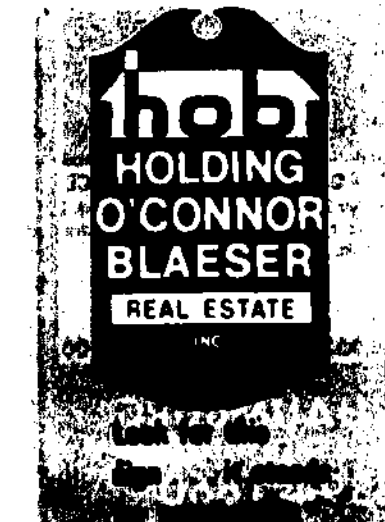

Six different courses in real estate, ranging from basics to advanced techniques, will be taught in three different locations by the newly formed Institute for the Development of Sales Potential, Inc.

Approved by the State of Illinois as an instructional institution for training real estate associates who wish to take the Illinois brokers examination, the Institute for the Development of Sales Potential presents courses on "Real Estate Transactions" for those who wish to take the brokers' examination; "Finance" for those who want to learn the basics of mortgages, liens, leases, etc.; "Appraisal" which includes land value and analysis as well as market and income approaches; "Contracts and Conveyances," dealing with deeds, real estate law, etc.; "Advanced Real Estate Principles," and a refresher course for license reinstatement.

With the exception of "Real Estate Transactions," which is a 30-hour course, all of the courses are for brokers and are 60 hours' credit.

The courses are held in Palatine, Waukegan and Rockford.

Persons desiring information about specific courses, schedules and tuition are invited to call Larry Ham at 358-6000.

Million dollar club

Ted Kociszewski of Mullins Real Estate has gone over the million mark each of his first two full years in real estate.

A real estate sales representative in the firm's Hanover Park office, he topped $1 million in May.

Kociszewski, born in Germany, lived in Belgium until 1956, immigrated to the U.S. and became a naturalized citizen in 1971. He graduated from the University of Illinois in 1972 with a B.A. in liberal arts and sciences with a major in economics and can speak four languages.

He is an associate member of

the Illinois Association of Realtors and the Northwest Suburban Board of Realtors.

CAROL JOHNSON, sales associate serving from Annen & Busse, Inc., Realtors, Schaumburg office since 1974, surpassed her Million Dollar Sales goal in mid-May, breaking that office's record for earliest in the year to reach million dollar sales.

Mrs. Johnson and her husband David with their two children are eight-year residents of Schaumburg. She has been involved as finance chairman for the League of Women Voters, secretary of the Township Mental Health Board, active at Lord of Life Lutheran Church, and is past president of the Timbercrest Homeowners Association. She was honored by the Village of Schaumburg in 1973 as their Outstanding Young Women award recipient. She is presently on the board of directors of the Salvation Army Counseling Center.

Mrs. Johnson has reached her million dollar sales mark for the second consecutive year.

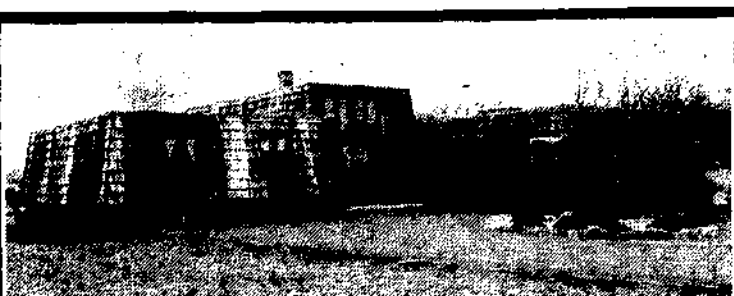

Vic Soderstrom

JOHN RICHEY and VIC SODERSTROM, sales representatives in Baird & Warner's Arlington Heights sales office, 220 E. Northwest Hwy., participated in contracts totaling more than $1 million in sales for 1975. This is the sixth consecutive year in which both men have exceeded the million dollar goal.

John Richey

Both are members of the MAP, MLS million dollar sales club and the Baird & Warner Star Sales Club. Richey has been active in Northwest suburban real estate sales for nine years and Soderstrom is a 19-year Northwest suburban real estate sales veteran.

When mortgage switches hands

Banks can hike home buy interest

Ah, the death of innocence!
It comes in stages: when you find out that Easter bunnies don't really lay eggs . . . that owning a car entails making car payments . . . that the beautiful girl in History II has had breath.

DEAR MR. CAMPBELL:

We are buying our first home. We had been advised to look for a house being sold by the owner and with an "assumable" mortgage. It just so happens that the home we are buying has both of these attractions.

Our spirits were quickly dampened when we were told by the manager of the savings and loan that we could not assume the mortgage at its interest rate of 7 per cent. The bank can, and will, raise it to 8½ per cent because the mortgage states something to this effect: "mortgage can be assumed with the consent of this association." Please let others know of this condition as I understand that most mortgages taken in the past five years have been written like this without the mortgagees' proper understanding. — Mrs. S. A. (Niagara, N.Y.)

ANSWER: Not too many years ago, the phrase you cited merely meant that the lender had the right to turn thumbs down on the assumption of the mortgage if the buyer didn't seem to be financially capable of taking it over.

Now, although it isn't universal, this "consent" phrase is being used as justification for hiking the rate. One real estate man pointed out that it is negotiable to the extent that you don't have to buy the deal: that you can, indeed, shop around until you find an assumable mortgage that doesn't have this kicker built into it.

But it's a tough decision to make if this is the house you want.

DEAR MR. CAMPBELL:

I have been having problems with a tenant of mine similar to those that you recently discussed.

How do I file for eviction: These tenants are ALWAYS late in their rent payments. — Mr. A.B.M. (Phoenix, Ariz.)

About real estate

by Don G. Campbell

ANSWER: It's a fairly routine procedure known as "summary or dispossession" proceedings and non-payment of rent is the most common basis.

Laws will vary slightly, but the standard procedures for such proceedings to be handled by justices of the peace (JP) in country districts, and city or municipal courts in the cities. (Call your local JP or municipal court to see what form your petition must take.) The tenant then has to be notified and is assigned a day to appear and answer the petition.

If he fails to appear, or the court rules against him, then he is legally evicted. If he doesn't leave peacefully, then you turn the court's ruling over to your marshal, or sheriff (again, depending on local law).

DEAR MR. CAMPBELL:

In a recent column you wrote about the "once in a lifetime" $20,000 capital gains exemption for 65-year-olds who sell their home. You also indicated that the IRS may be flexible on the requirement of five years' occupancy out of the past eight years.

Since I'm contemplating such a move, I called the IRS to get it "from the horses mouth." They said that the regulation calls for five years, 60 months or 1,825 days. I pointed out that a taxpayer can be married in December (or have a child) and be qualified for those exemptions in that year. I asked, if one should be obliged to give possession a month or two short of five years, would they not consider prorating the actual occupancy period for the $20,000 exemption. They had no answer. — Mrs. E. R. (Riverwoods, Ill.)

ANSWER: I've had other correspondence on this matter and it seems to boil down to which IRS official you approach on it. One highly-placed IRS official told me he has never known his office to challenge this occupancy rule over a matter of a few months if the taxpayer's principal residence for the past five years.

I've had other correspondents report to me that the IRS official they consulted went strictly by the book — 1,825 days, period.

DEAR MR. CAMPBELL:

Can the city legally take ten feet of my property to widen a street that has no business being widened? — Mrs. T. J. (Long Beach, Calif.)

ANSWER: Sure, but not without paying you for it. Didn't they notify you of a hearing?

LET'S TALK IT OVER
JERRY BOUSCHARD

There was a time, following the great depression, when home buyers exercised a great deal of caution in buying a home. They worried about paying interest at 3½ or 4 per cent for 20 years or more. For good or bad, that attitude is long gone. Few heads of families are concerned about paying off a mortgage. They know there is little likelihood that they'll live in the house for the duration of the mortgage.

Today's buyer is more concerned with living well in a home that provides the features he wants. If he can afford the down payment and the monthly payments, the price and interest rate are often of secondary importance.

In selling real estate, it's important to understand the market and market trends. It will pay you to list your property with us. "Call Us."

Physical condition major real estate buy factor

The physical aspects of a real estate property and the management are too often slighted by syndicators and investors, said Richard R. Wood, vice president and general manager of the Commercial/Industrial Investment Division of Baird & Warner, Inc.

"While the pro forma income, expenses and tax benefits may project a golden stream out to 20 years, the physical maintenance and replacement costs of a property may be totally ignored, making the financial projections questionable," Wood said.

In addition, a property, such as an apartment building, office tower, shopping center, or multitenant industrial structure, is not a static investment. "It's a business, and must be managed, so that rents are collected, maintenance is performed, and the property looked after," Wood said. "Unless this is done, the investors may not realize the promised benefits."

Knowing something about the physical aspects of the property is especially important because of rising energy and replacement or maintenance costs. A well-built building should cost less to operate and take care of than one built shoddily, and such buildings will command a premium.

"Brokers and syndicators, especially, and to some extent investors, should know something about construction and engineering, or at least call in an expert who can give a realistic picture," said Wood, who is also president elect of the Real Estate Security and Syndication Institute of the National Association of Realtors.

An investor should ask questions about the type of roofing, quality of insulation, and flooring materials used. These will have a bearing on operating and replacement costs.

In the last 15 years, Wood said, a degree of shoddiness has crept into construction, producing some buildings that are "movie sets" that don't have the long range economic values attributed to them.

Office buildings have been built with no back-up heating and air-conditioning systems and with roofs, walls, and windows that have little or no insulation against weather extremes.

"Not that we do not want to buy, or that a good economic investment cannot be made, if the office building has 50 per cent non-insulating glass, or that the apartment building has the thinnest carpet," he continued. "But if this is so, then we should be able to accurately determine the effect on our investment of extreme temperature control costs and frequent carpet replacement."

On the subject of managing the property, Wood noted that good management is expensive but necessary.

"The success of the investment depends in large measure on efficiencies, budgeting and planning, money use technique, communications, knowledge, judgments, decisions, marketing, and people," Wood said. "The syndicator or developer may do all these things himself, or he may call in a property management specialist. The point is, management must be provided for, or else the building may not deliver what the investor expects."

Because so little new construction is taking place today, available real estate is commanding more and more investor interest, he noted. But this should not stampede investors into buying just any property.

Future bright for home improvement loans: banks

There is good news this summer for homeowners who want to fix up and paint up.

The banking industry — which supplied $4.8 billion of the nation's total $8.3 billion in home improvement loans last year — is forecasting an increased loan availability.

In a national survey of its installment lending division's Advisory the American Bankers Assn. (ABA) reported today that 85 per cent of the 199 banks responding plan to expand their home improvement lending. Another 15 per cent plan to hold steady and only 1 per cent will reduce loans for home improvements.

The Advisory Board banks represent a demographic sampling of the nation's nearly 14,000 banks.

The typical home improvement loan last year was for $3,000 and required no collateral. Interest rates ran from 10-14 per cent with a payback period of five to seven years.

Many member banks, says the ABA, also offer FHA Title I guarantee loans at a fixed annual rate of 12 per cent, a fixed maximum of $10,000 and a payback period of up to 12 years. Amounts under $7,500 require no collateral.

The 1975 home improvement lending total was down slightly from the $8.4 billion borrowed by consumers in 1974. Of that, banks supplied $4.7 billion. In 1973, some $7.5 billion was loaned by all financial institutions, with $4.1 billion borrowed by bank customers.

Building stability seen after carpenter settlement

"Stability for the next three years, is the cautious appraisal by Chicago-area home builders of settlements reached with carpenters this month, a survey revealed.

The builders, represented by the Residential Construction Employers' Council (RCEC), and the Chicago District Council of Carpenters accepted a three-year contract last week after final bargaining had ironed out non-money points including union recognition of RCEC. The carpenters had been without a contract since June 1, when their one-year contract expired.

The Cook County pact was followed by another with the Will County carpenters. The carpenters however voted to strike on jobs not covered by the RCEC contract.

Settlement with the carpenters was the major labor hurdle for the RCEC builders who are mainly suburban in operation and employ carpenters accounting for about 70 per cent of their work force.

For the carpenters, the new contract will increase their present $10.15 hourly scale by $1.04 an hour in wages and benefits over the next three years.

The benefit for builders is the three-year contract and the recognition of RCEC as the builders' spokesman. "It is fair and reasonable to the industry," said Robert Kennedy, president of Kennedy Brothers, Inc. "The men are entitled to the money and the industry needs three years just to settle down and build."

Joel Levitz, vice-president of Heatheridge Development Co., said, "Builders have come through a couple of poor years but these were also difficult years for the workers, what with inflation and high unemployment. That is why I foresee this settlement working to our mutual advantage."

But Peter Bianchini, vice-president of operations for Lexington Development Corp., tempered satisfaction with the observation that, "We are paying an inflationary premium. It is inflationary because there is no real increase in productivity. However, I think it is worth it because this contract also guarantees us labor stability."

Bianchini, whose company is building the $16.5 million Lexington Green coach-house community in Schaumburg, noted that wages and a 20 to 30 per cent increase in lumber costs are the main factors that will push building costs higher this year and inevitably raise the price of a new home. Joseph L. Pagliaro, president of O'Brien & Pann, Inc., mortgage bankers and developers, said, "The settlement is inflationary and the raise in labor because the cost of this contract will cause trouble in the marketplace and make it harder to own a home."

Still the settlement and stability couldn't have come at a better time for the builders who are feeling a freshening breeze of sales after two years becalmed in the general economic doldrums.

People are in the mood to buy, said James P. Joyce, president of Kaufman & Broad Homes, Inc. "Now we can get down to satisfying buyer demand and have three years in hand to work out our problems."

I think the settlement will set a trend in the industry, Joyce added. "We have other contracts to negotiate but this is one of the sanest contracts we've ever had and it should be a big step toward holding down real inflationary cost increases."

The settlement brought an end to selective strikes by the carpenters against RCEC directors and canceled a threatened lockout by RCEC members.

This was put in sharp focus by Ted Doufexis, executive vice president of Home Builders of Greater Chicago and a member of the RCEC negotiating team. "The money settlement was reached early," Doufexis said. "It is a pattern for future negotiations because the carpenters set the standards with us."

Our other differences were settled in a reasonable manner I think. They concerned issues unique to the home construction industry and agreement was possible because both sides recognized that we need to keep working to recover. A strike or lockout now, or anything that stops work, would wipe out the first bright spot in the industry in the last two years."

Open meetings required to interview bidders: Scott

Atty Gen William J. Scott has issued a legal opinion that the Public Meetings Act requires that meetings of public building commissions to interview prospective bidders for construction projects must be open to the public.

Peoria County State's Attorney Michael M. Mihm has questioned whether meetings held to discuss bidder's personal financial conditions available personnel and equipment and scheduling of other work were exempt from the act because they were investigative in nature.

The Public Meetings Act permits closed sessions "to consider information regarding appointment, employment, or dismissal of an employee or officer." Scott's opinion noted that prospective bidders are independent contractors and therefore do not qualify for the exemption applying to employed personnel. The Attorney General said however, that the act permits meetings to be "closed" when so required by a Federal regulation. A federal regulation could apply when a project is supported by federal funds.

NOTICE

Beginning on Wednesday, August 4, 1976, the Housing Authority of the County of Cook will accept applications for the Section 8 Housing Assistance Payments Program.

Applications will be accepted on a first come, first served basis and certificates of participation will be issued on a priority basis to residents of and workers in the suburban Cook County area north of Devon Avenue and outside the City of Evanston.

Elderly persons (62 years or older) and families who qualify by reason of income to receive rent assistance, will pay no more than 25% of their income to rent privately owned units which are within the area of jurisdiction of the Housing Authority of the County of Cook. Units currently occupied may qualify. If persons currently receiving housing assistance from HACC or on a waiting list thereof wish to be considered for this program they must apply specifically but will not lose their unit or place on the waiting list.

Applications from the families and elderly handicapped or disabled will be taken starting at 9:00 a.m. in the Rand Park Fieldhouse, 2025 Miner Street in Des Plaines.

This is an equal opportunity housing program.

Construction index nears all-time high during May

The Dodge Index of construction contract value broke into the 200's again in May as $9,835,969,000 of newly started construction of all kinds lifted the index from April's 189 to the year's high of 205, announced the F. W. Dodge Division of McGraw-Hill Information Systems Co.

The seasonally adjusted Dodge Index uses 1967 as its 100 base.

"May was only the fourth time the Dodge Index reached beyond 200," said George A. Christie, vice president and chief economist of F. W. Dodge. "Each time it has been energy-related construction that has provided the extra thrust."

On the previous occasions when the Index soared above 200 — during the spring and summer of 1975 — it was mainly due to large segments of work on the multi-billion dollar trans-Alaska pipeline. In the latest month, however, stateside electric power and petro-chemical jobs made most of the difference.

"The presence of these exceptionally large projects in both the May 1976 total as well as in the year-ago month makes May-to-May comparisons difficult," the Dodge economist said. While the latest month's Dodge Index was the second highest ever, contract value was nevertheless two per cent below the year-ago total.

"Most of the distortion due to last May's pipeline contracting is concentrated in the nonresidential building category, where a strong recovery has been taking hold over the past several months," said Christie. Yet the value of May's contracts for these commercial, industrial, and institutional buildings, at $2,819,293,000, was actually down from the same 1975 month.

This decline in nonresidential contracting was due to the inclusion in last May's total of an exceptionally costly refinery in the Prudhoe Bay area, on Alaska's north slope, Christie said.

"A better indication of the strength of the recent recovery of nonresidential construction is that in seasonally adjusted terms, contracting for commercial, industrial and other nonresidential buildings has run off a series of five consecutive monthly gains since last December's cyclical low point," he said.

May contracts for residential buildings totaled $3,955,048,000, a gain of 29 per cent from the same month of 1975. Single-family building continued to hover at the strong rate of just over one million units in the latest month, while apartment starts, after a long stretch of inactivity, advanced their highest rate in a year and a half.

More than a billion dollars of new electric power plant construction helped to push May's contracts for total nonbuilding construction to a strong $3,061,628,000. However, this total was still five per cent short of last May's amount, when highway construction was being stimulated by the release of impounded billions from the Highway Trust Fund.

Without such extra support this spring, highway work has dropped back more than 20 per cent.

Sharon Hanson of St. Collette School and Christine Ripoli of St. Hubert School were among the winners of this year's St. Paul Federal $100 tuition grants.

The two girls, their parents and representatives of their schools were on hand for a banquet honoring 30 graduating students at Nielsen's Restaurant.

Every year, St. Paul awards a $100 tuition grant to a qualified student from each of the participating schools in St. Paul Federal's School Savings Program.

Peter Wyckoff, owner of Conn Music Centers in Woodfield Shopping Center, Schaumburg, and Lakehurst Shopping Center, Waukegan, has received the Connie Award Cup for being one of the top ten dealers in the country for Conn Organ Corp. It's hard to watch the triplets outdoors, said Pat Disch. "One heads under a car, another goes to a neighbor's yard and a third is eating dirt."

Living with triplets

Little time for the odds and ends

The bottle of wine is still a must in the Jim and Pat Disch home in Des Plaines. And it can be found in the refrigerator next to rows and rows of their children's bottles — baby bottles, that is.

It's no wonder Jim and Pat appreciate a soothing sip of comfort now and then. A year ago on June 13 Pat gave birth to triplets and Jim recently understated life in the Disch home when he said, "It's certainly been a busy year."

But the next couple of years promise to be even more so, although there won't always be three dozen diaper changes each day.

Their youngest — by 17 minutes — Sean Christopher, just learned to walk. And Kimberly Allison and Kevin Garrick aren't far behind.

SOMEWHAT REMARKABLY, Jim and Pat seem as calm as they did a year ago when a Herald reporter first interviewed them. At that time, the triplets were content to sleep and eat their days away.

Their 20-pound babies are not as content with that lifestyle now. In fact, the three occasionally fight with each other and have already managed to smear petroleum jelly across the entire kitchen floor.

"We've had to learn to keep up with them," commented Jim, a producer at WGN television. "There's not much time to get odds and ends done around the house."

And there have been some unexpected problems, according to Jim and Pat. The biggest one is expense.

When the triplets ate baby food (they are "off" that now), Pat said she had to buy about 70 jars a week.

In the past year they spent about $885 on disposable diapers and $520 on milk. The triplets have outgrown their car seats and the new ones will total about $105, said the Disches.

"No one helped us adjust to the triplets," added Pat. "Doctors are no big help except when delivering them. They say 'Oh, you'll manage.' But how? No one tells you that."

"For a long time I was really dumb and used three bowls and three spoons to feed them," she continued. I guess we were worried about germs, but that's silly since they're always into each other's stuff anyway."

SEVERAL MONTHS AGO Pat, a former third grade teacher, joined a twins club to get help with the unique problems of multiple births — problems in learning development, child-

A question of who's responsible for shoddy goods

The Federal Trade Commission may be having some second thoughts about its recently enacted rule giving consumers the right to stop payment to banks and credit card companies when merchandise bought on credit turns out to be shoddy.

The banking industry certainly doesn't like the rule and this month proposed legislation in Congress to overturn it — curiously, in the name of "protecting consumers' rights."

To backtrack a moment, in May 14 the FTC enacted a rule abolishing the "holder in due course doctrine." That doctrine was established in English common law when the rule of the marketplace was "buyer beware." It held that a third party in a sales transaction (such as a bank or credit card company) was not liable for any defect in the goods that had been sold in the transaction.

For example, a consumer buys a refrigerator on credit, and the merchant sells the credit contract to a finance company. The refrigerator subsequently breaks down, but the consumer must continue making payments to the finance company, which disclaims responsibility for the refrigerator. And the merchant also refuses to heed the consumer's complaints because the merchant has already been paid by the finance company.

TESTIMONY BEFORE the FTC indicated that many consumers, often those most economically disadvantaged, were being squeezed in this predicament. Moreover, the FTC found that banks and merchants often have agreements by which merchants who do not themselves handle financing send customers to a particular bank to get a loan.

Some 40 states have laws modifying the holder in due course doctrine and granting consumers some protection, but many of these laws are inadequate, according to the FTC. Illinois is one of eight states having no restrictions against holder in due course.

Enter the FTC rule, which in effect makes financial institutions the ultimate guarantors of consumer product quality.

The banking industry is saying it is unfair to them and an inefficient way of getting at the problem. The FTC reportedly is thinking maybe they are right.

An FTC official who asked not to be named told The Herald, "I don't think Washington realizes the implications of this rule. It was not really well thought out, and I don't think it will continue very long in its present form."

The FTC is currently considering an

by Monica Wilch Perin amendment that would expand the rule to cover all consumer loans — even those a consumer obtains directly from a lending institution without specifying what he is going to purchase or from whom. But the official predicted this will not go into effect and that if anything, the rule will be cut back.

"THE SCHLOCK operators are the people who were taking advantage of the holder in due course, and I think it's better for the FTC to go after the schlock operators than to go after the bankers," the official said.

The official added that the FTC's proposed Unfair Credit Practices rule would go a long way toward correcting many of these retail credit problems.

Meanwhile, the American Bankers Association claims that as a result of the ruling, "some banks already have had to cut back on consumer credit." Actually, ABA officials admit it's too early to know what effect, if any, the ruling has had on the availability of credit.

What they do have is "a stack of letters from upset and angry bankers who are concerned about their liability," according to the ABA's Ed Smith.

ABA LEGISLATIVE specialist Ron Tullis said the legislation they have proposed "basically would take everyone back to prior to May 14, where we've been for the last 200 years. Holder in due course is an incentive to bankers to make loans and it has worked well."

What consumers do not need is to be taken back to where they were 200 years ago — holder in due course has NOT worked well for them. It is time the banking community quit trying to deny this fact and lend their support in placing the responsibility for consumer goods where it belongs — squarely on the merchant.

Can't eat all you want and stay slim

My husband and I need to lose a lot of weight. We have both faced the fact that what started as a middle-aged spread has ballooned into a problem of major proportions.

Since we have decided to do it, we would like to do it and get it over with. We thought rather than diet for months to get rid of our fat that we would go on a low carbohydrate, high protein diet. I have heard that all one really has to do is eliminate all carbohydrates for about a week or two, then keep the carbohydrates down to a very low level. One can eat anything else and still have the fat just melt away.

Before we start on this diet, we thought we would like to know for certain that it would not damage us in any way. I recall that there was a lot of fuss in the papers about the diet when it first came out. Will you tell us if it is safe for us to follow or not?

I don't recommend it! Despite the exaggerated claims made in the promotion of the diet you speak of there is no magic way you can eat all you want to eat and stay slim — unless the food on the diet is sufficiently unappealing that all you want of it contains a limited number of calories.

The initial dramatic weight losses with such diets is not because the person loses fat at all. It is because the body loses its normal water content and is dried out. When you severely restrict your carbohydrate intake you cause the kidneys to eliminate an excess amount of salt from the body and with that goes a lot of water. This initial weight loss from dehydration will level off in a couple of weeks.

However, the sudden loss of water — not fat — in the first week, coupled with emptying out the digestive system is enough to hook the unwary individual into thinking that a miracle has taken place and some will stay with the diet until they have lost actual fat because they have really been eating less calories. Almost all the diet frauds you see highly advertised depend on tricking you with that initial water loss and, of course, on that human falling of wanting success without pain, riches without work and a slim attractive body while gorging on high-calorie foods.

I AM SENDING you a copy of The Health Letter number 2-2, Low Carbohydrate Diet Fads so you can get a better idea of how these diets work or affect your body and why so many of the things claimed for such diets are just not so. Others who want information on low carbohydrate diets can send a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope with 50 cents for it. Just address your letter to me in care of Paddock Publications, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019.

When you lose water with one of the diet gimmicks and the scales show you lost pounds, just remember that as soon as you quit the diet and regain the water your body needs for normal health that you will regain the pounds.

I have mentioned repeatedly that I do not approve of crash diets. I know you are impatient, but it took years to get the way you are. It will take a long time to lose weight safely and sensibly, to regain your former physical appearance. A pound of fat contains about 3500 calories. Your job is to use the excess calories stored as fat while you are taking in less calories. A well-balanced, sensible diet combined with adequate regular physical activity is your best bet for both your health and your appearance.

A flaw in freezing left meat tasteless

Dear Dorothy: Here's a puzzler. Trying to help out at my daughter's, I decided to make stew with a well-marbled chuck roast from the freezer. It thawed, but without red juices. Cubed and browned it and thought I must be mistaken when there seemed to be no taste to it. Went ahead anyway. Even with all the trappings, the meat had not the slightest flavor. Ever happen to you? — Flora Hite

One thing seems clear, something went awry in the freezing. It's possible the meat had been frozen and thawed once before; if so, the juices came out then. Too, there is the chance the meat wasn't wrapped properly and freezer burn had set in and sucked out all the juices. Third possibility: not only wrapped a bit carelessly, but put in the freezer with several things at the same time. Result, a too-high temperature to freeze the meat properly. Whatever the cause, it's a good argument for following correct freezing procedure.

Dear Dorothy: Meant to write last year when I decided to make my first batch of rose potpourri. You advised orris root powder and I couldn't find it until someone suggested a health food store. Others might like to know this — Jennie Haynes

Many thanks. And if anyone has trouble finding the other ingredients like rose-soluble fluid or oil of rose geranium, I have the names of mail order houses which sell such unusual products.

Dear Dorothy: We have a septic tank and I keep wondering if the chlorine bleach we use in the regular routine might foul up the tank or the laterals. Do you know? — Betty Gant

The ordinary use of bleaches, diluted as is usually done, will have no adverse effect on tanks or laterals.

Quiz yourself on how to care for polyester fabrics

Time was when tossing washable white garments into the washing machine, adding hot water and bleach was the procedure on wash day. Not so today. With the increasing number of synthetic fabrics and blend combinations as well as technological advances in color dyeing, you have to keep up-to-date on your laundry "know-hows." Test yourself. A perfect score of 12 (points for a right answer) shows you're up-to-date.

QUESTIONS:

1. Almost all 100 per cent polyester fabrics, white and colored can be safely washed with detergent and liquid chlorine bleach. T—F—
2. It is not necessary to remove polyesters from the dryer immediately. T—F—
3. The new polyester flame retardant children's sleepwear is colorfast and washable with detergent and liquid chlorine bleach. T—F—
4. Polyester knits can be dried in an automatic dryer at any temperature. T—F—
5. When washing a blend of polyester (cotton/polyester), one should always test on a hidden seam to see if the fabric is bleach-safe. T—F—
6. The addition of an antistatic or fabric softener to rinse water will reduce static electricity in polyester fabrics. T—F—

Time to think 'cool' gardening

If you are one of those folks who didn't get your vegetable garden planted this spring for one reason or another, or if you had a crop failure, you've got a second chance waiting. Fall crops are ready to be sown.

Most persons are not oriented to fall planting if they already have goodies producing. I think the reason is that most gardeners are too weary from prodding their crops into growth and from fighting weeds and bugs to consider a second gardening season.

But the advantages of planting now for late fall harvest are many: there will be fewer bug attacks, activity from vacations and kids home from school and general summer hubbub starts to decline and the weather will be cooler for working in the garden... plus, no mosquitoes!

HERE ARE SOME OF the vegetables to consider: peas, onions, lettuce, kohlrabi, radishes, kale, Swiss chard, spinach, beets, carrots, parsnips, turnips, broccoli, Brussels sprouts, Chinese cabbage.

The first eight mentioned are fast-maturing crops that can be sown as late as Aug. 8, the first three even later. (With kohlrabi, the transplant seedlings can be set in Aug. 8, not the seeds sown.) Kohlrabi, broccoli, Chinese cabbage and Brussels sprouts should be seeded now, unless you can pick up small flats of transplants.

If transplants are available, the cabbage crops mentioned can wait until as late as the last of July. However, nurseries and garden centers are not geared for summer planting either because the demand for flats is not so great as in spring, so you may have difficulty obtaining flats in July.

BEETS AND CARROTS should be sown about the 15th of July. Onions, peas and radishes can be planted quite late — even the last week of August.

A few tips for the success of a late garden are in order. Good surface drainage will help protect against water-logged soil during heavy rainfall, so a garden providing gentle sloping is best.

Mulching with three or four inches of straw as the weather gets colder and harvest gets closer will protect the very late crops like Brussels sprouts and cabbage, broccoli and

by Mary B. Good

Chinese cabbage from alternate freezing and thawing.

The red cabbage and Savoy variety of cabbage are the hardiest and best for winter use. Still, they cannot be harvested when frozen. Wait for a thaw to pick. (This seems like madness — talking about freezing vegetables now in this heat, but fall gardeners have to anticipate such things.)

THE FLAVOR OF Brussels sprouts, collard and kale is improved by cold and they can take temperatures as low as 10 degrees above zero. (See, you're feeling cooler already!) Brussels sprouts should be cooked soon after picking if they have been partially frozen by the cold weather or they'll get soft and spoil rapidly.

Beets and carrots can last only until late November without a covering. If harvested and buried in a well-drained location, they can last all winter.

Some crops that should not be considered for fall planting are corn, beans, tomatoes and peppers. These are strictly hot weather crops. The first frost would wipe them out. To plant them for the late garden would be like sending a native of the tropics to live in Alaska. Pumpkins and squash are two more vegetables that would not be suitable for the fall garden.

Still, it's nice to know that there are some vegetables that can survive quite well during the cool of fall and even the cold of early winter. If you haven't given a thought to cool weather gardening, it is a whole new adventure.

Rearing triplets keeps 'em busy

hood stages and sickness. Members also vent frustrations.

"With the twins club I'm finding out everyone has the same feelings. Sometimes when Jim leaves for work, I think he's escaping, that he's getting away from the triplets for awhile. But all the women in the club feel the same way."

Besides dealing with such emotions and cookbook-care problems, Pat and Jim spend hours playing with their children. They are proud to point out that each triplet is thoroughly individual, which is something they couldn't say last year when Kevin and Sean were thought to be identical.

THEY REFER TO Kevin as "Mr. Charm" or "Mr. PR" (public relations). Sean is the "most independent" and first to learn things like standing and walking. Kim "is very aggressive and will hit her brothers," to get what she wants. (However, father Jim quickly added that Kim is "also very feminine — she has very big feelings.")

Still, when Pat walks into the children's room and finds them fighting, "I just walk out," she said. "They've got to learn to settle their own problems and live together."

The Dischs are adamant about their responsibility as parents.

"Most people who find out we have triplets say, 'Oh, my God, what are you going to do?' But they're (the babies) our responsibility — we couldn't be happier about having them. It's a waste of energy to worry about it."

AND ENERGY IS AT a premium

"OUR BIG PROBLEM was, physically, how do you same-age children. Statistically triplets occur in do it?" said Pat, referring to rearing her three about one of every 27,000 deliveries.

for Jim and Pat. Caring three babies up and down steps in their split-level home, picking up after them and caring for the children's needs are exhausting, mentally and physically.

"You have to be really organized," said Pat. "Be ready ahead of them with their bottles and diapers and see that they are comfortable."

"I've seen children crabbing around, but it's the parents' fault a lot of times. Parents can do a lot to destroy their kids," she said.

Still, Jim and Pat are careful about allowing each other enough time away from the children. Jim plays racquet ball with his friends once a week, Pat takes evening courses and they found a good triplet-sitter, "a saint" named Denise.

"SO WE GET OUT ONCE a week to visit friends or go to a movie. We have to," Jim explained.

But Jim and Pat also enjoy spending quiet moments with their children. "Quite often we'll sneak up to the playroom and just watch them," said Pat. "There's something special in each one I hope we can help them bring their strengths out."

"You're either going to enjoy the experience or hate it," she continued. "It would be a lot easier to hate it, I guess . . . but that's not the attitude we have."

They'll train for combat

USAF seeks 100 women

by K. MACK SISK

The Air Force is looking for 100 women this summer to undergo anti-terrorist combat training which could go a long way in determining how tough female assignments will become in future military service.

The women will go through basic training and security police school at Lackland AFB, San Antonio, Tex., beginning in October, then will participate in the rugged antiterrorist program at Camp Bullis, 20 miles northwest of San Antonio, where the Air Force operates the world's largest police academy.

Five female officers already have completed successfully the program which involves the tossing of grenades, firing of M16 rifles, M60 machineguns, M79 grenade launchers and the use of illumination devices and mines. The training also covers map and compass reading, land navigation, field hygiene, camouflage concealment, fire movement, combat tactics, counterattack techniques, field patrol and riot control.

THE GRAND FINALE of the strenuous training involves a 24-hour realistic test in which trainees ward off their own instructors posing as heavily armed terrorists. During the period, sleep is a luxury, and the women will eat C-rations on the run through the rugged terrain of Camp Bullis.

IA. Col. William K. Rector, acting head of the program, said he liked what he saw so far with the first five women and predicts the 100 females who will go through the training will open up the security field to them permanently.

"We think they can do it, but it's never been tried before," Rector said.

After completing the course, the women will be assigned to four USAF installations in the United States and abroad for a year's observation. "Then we'll determine whether it's a go or no go," Rector said.

WOMEN ALREADY have been widely integrated into the security police forces of air force bases and have performed admirably "taking their normal knocks just like the guys," Rector said, but this will be the first time they will be exposed to combat.

Secretaries going to Houston meeting

Four members of Park-Plaines Chapter of The National Secretaries Association will attend the 31st annual international convention at the Hyatt Regency Hotel in Houston, Tex., July 19-23.

Chapter president Louise Killo, who is with Arlington Heights School District 25, will serve as delegate. Florence Smalley of Des Plaines, a secretary at Jolson Builders, Inc., Mount Prospect, will be the alternate. Gloria Boye, with the City of Park Ridge, and Betty Timroth, with the City of Des Plaines, will also attend.

The format of the convention will pursue the 1976 theme of the year, "Pride: Nation, Secretaryship, Association."

type situations at installations where there are threats of terrorist attacks.

The Air Force already has entrusted to women security officers the safety of bases throughout the service, but the antiterrorist trainees will be assigned to flight lines and missile sites more susceptible to terrorist threats. Rector said their admission to the Air Force Academy in Colorado this year and future training of female pilots cleared the way for an expanded female role in combat situations formerly limited to men.

"They're going to be living in the same field conditions (as men)," Rector said. "Some are apprehensive, just as the guys are, at firing live ammo and live grenades."

RECTOR, A robust 17-year Air Force veteran, said he welcomed the women into the formerly all-male program which trains 22,000 men for civilian and military police work each year. "I have no objection to them at all. If they do the job, let's put them to work," he said.

"When I first arrived, I thought I would be playing a cops and robbers type game," said 2nd Lt. Noreen A. Alberico, Rutland, Vt., one of the first women to complete the program. "But now I understand it and I'm looking at it as a job, not as a game."

"I wanted a job which would give me a greater feeling of accomplishment," said 1st Lt. Pamela A. Krauss, Hempstead, N.Y. "With the training I received here, I'll be better able to understand my job when I get to my next base."

"I enjoyed the training," said 2nd Lt. Patricia D. Shafer, Anaheim, Calif. "I had some trouble relating the training to a job, but then there's that one chance I may have to use it someday."

STARS &amp; STRIPES

Number 29 in a series

IN SEARCH OF THE STARS

On Sunday afternoon, July 20, 1969, Apollo 11 brought men to the surface of the moon.

In the time-honored tradition of explorers they carried with them the flag of their country.

That flag is there now, braided by a wire spring to keep it unfurled on the windless moon.

There will be no legends about the making of the flag. Manufacturers' names were deliberately removed from the many offered for the mission before any selection was made.

Now is there any attempt to take singular honor or glory special gain for that flag from the greatest of man's scientific achievements? A simple plaque near it reads:

"Here men from the planet Earth first set foot on the moon, July 1969 A.D. We came in peace for all mankind."

Future historians may wonder how it came to be that one of Earth's youngest nations was able in less than 100 years to take men from the saddle of a horse and start him on a journey to the stars.

The answer is in the stars of its flag—a story of men seeking to be free and fresh, joining others to create "under God" a constellation as bright and lasting as any in the firmament.

Weddings

Susan Finnegan— Jerry V. Gooch

The wedding day of a Palatine couple, Susan Marie Finnegan and Jerry V. Gooch, was an occasion to honor three marriages.

Susan and Jerry were the new bridal pair feted at a reception June 12 at the Camelot Restaurant, Des Plaines. Susan's parents, the Robert W. Finnegan, also were being congratulated for their recent 25th wedding anniversary and Susan's grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Andrew T. Chwalisz of Barrington, for their recent 51st.

With 150 guests invited for dinner and dancing, it was a festive party for all three couples.

SUSAN AND JERRY had exchanged vows and rings earlier that afternoon at a nuptial mass in St. Theresa Catholic Church, Palatine.

Jerry is the son of Mrs. Geraldine Gooch of Mesa, Ariz., and Lee Gooch of Hardy, Ark.

The bride's sister, Laure Marie, was her maid of honor and three of her cousins, Jeannie Finnegan and Margaret King, Chicago, and Judith Tresnak, Streamwood, were bridesmaids. Thomas Elder, Salina, Kan., served as best man, with the bride's cousins, Patrick Douglas, Burlington, Wis., and Joseph King, Chicago as groomsmen.

The bride came down the aisle in a white silk organza gown accented with Alencon lace embroidered in seed pearls. A matching lace crown held her fingertip veil, and she carried white phalaenopsis, stephanotis and baby's breath.

Mr. and Mrs. Jerry V. Gooch

HER ATTENDANTS were gowned alike in french blue voile and carried spring bouquets of blue daisies, white carnations and baby's breath. They also wore floral headpieces that matched their bouquets.

Returning from a week at Lake of the Ozarks, the newlyweds are living in Palatine. Jerry is employed by TRW Cinch, Elk Grove.

The bride attended Harper College after graduating in '71 from Palatine High. The groom majored in business at Kansas State University where he was affiliated with Kappa Sigma fraternity.

Susan Marie Farley—Thomas M. Allen

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas M. Allen

Lavender and blue made up the color scheme surrounding Susan Marie Farley as she became the bride of Thomas Morton Allen on June 19 in Trinity United Methodist Church, Mount Prospect.

Both families of the couple, the Gerald Farleys and the Arthur Allens, live in Mount Prospect and the groom is a graduate of Prospect High School. Now a senior majoring in civil engineering at Bradley University, he and Susan are making their home in Peoria.

She graduated from Mercy Hospital School of Nursing in Des Moines and is a nurse at St. Francis Hospital, Peoria.

FOR THE 2 p.m. wedding the bride wore a white organza and Venice lace gown with a matching fingertip veil trimmed in Venice lace daisies. In her bouquet were blue and lavender carnations with white daisies and pompons.

Her attendants wore lavender crepe gowns embroidered with blue and lavender flowers on the neckline. Their bouquets were of blue and lavender daisies, carnations and baby's breath, and matching floral headpieces completed their attire.

Maid of honor was Mary Weatherby and bridesmaids were Nancy Godwin and Luann Lathrum, all of Indianola, Iowa, where the bride lived during her school days.

TWO CANDLELIGHTERS preceded the bridal procession, both dressed in blue with hairpieces of blue and lavender daisies. They were Marilyn Kenyon, cousin of the groom from Bloomington, Minn., and Sandra Dunshie, the bride's cousin from Glen Burnie, Md.

Jeff Laying, Rockford, served as best man; Don Adams, Streator, and Roger Zipprich, Michael, Ill., as groomsmen. The guests were seated by the couple's brothers, Dave Farley and Bill Allen.

The newlyweds spent a week at the Wisconsin Dells after their reception for 200 in the church hall.

A reminder to brides

If wedding bells will soon be ringing in your family, we want to hear them, too.

The Herald reminds brides-to-be of the deadlines in effect for reporting wedding news. Full information is printed on forms available in all the Herald offices.

For detailed wedding story (including gown descriptions) information is due within three weeks following wedding date. Information received in Herald office after three weeks and up to five weeks following wedding date will be used for a brief story or caption.

Accompanying picture should be a black and white glossy close-up photo (bouquet and up) of bridal pair or bride alone. At the discretion of the editors and the Herald photo department, color photos may or may not be used, depending on color tones, contrast and clarity. Small snapshots are not acceptable.

We suggest the bride or some member of the family select a photo for the newspaper immediately upon receiving photographer's proof. Better yet — have the photographer make a selection and send it immediately to the Herald office. Any delay may mean missing the deadline.

If your photographer cannot comply with deadlines, write-up will be published without a photo providing information is in the Herald office before the deadline.

The bride who wishes her photo returned may pick it up at the Herald office at 217 W. Campbell, Arlington Heights, or send along a self-addressed, stamped envelope.

There is no charge for publishing this news.

Deena Bennett— David Allen Beightol

An aspen grove in the Rockies near Kremmling, Colo., was the setting for the June 19 wedding of Deena Bennett, daughter of the Orion Bennetts of Arlington Heights, and David Allen Beightol, son of the Ward Beightols of Denver.

Their vows were exchanged at 11:30 a.m. in the grove on property owned by the groom. The ceremony included a song written and played on guitar by David, accompanied by Marty Hill of Aurora, Colo., his best man, on auto harp.

A tree was also planted by the couple to forever mark the site of the ceremony. A reception followed nearby in a cabin in the mountains.

The newlyweds met at Metropolitan State College in Denver where Deena graduated in May with a degree in fine arts, after attending Sacred Heart of Mary High. She is now setting up a ceramics studio in Evergreen, Colo.

DAVID STUDIED at Southern Colorado State and Metropolitan after serving in the navy and now has his own commercial photography studio in Denver.

For her wedding, Deena wore a gown she made of white polyester trimmed in lace and carried pink roses with baby's breath.

Her only attendant was her friend since kindergarten, Christine VanHuele of Arlington Heights. Christine's gown, which she made herself, was of white polyester with a pastel floral print and her bouquet was of pink roses, pastel daisies and baby's breath.

After a honeymoon in California, the newlyweds settled in a new home in Denver.

ANSWERS TO POLYESTER QUIZ:

1. T and dried with a minimum of effort.
2. F. Remove immediately while still warm and place on hangers to prevent wrinkling.
3. T and the bleach acts as a disinfectant and deodorizer.
4. F. Set automatic dryer at permanent press or cool setting to avoid any possibility of shrinkage.
5. T. For testing, mix 1 tablespoon liquid chlorine bleach to 1/4 cup water. Apply 1 drop of solution to a hidden seam of fabric. Be sure liquid penetrates. Let solution stand 1 minute on fabric. Blot dry with paper toweling. If no color change, fabric is bleachable.
6. T. Add to final rinse.

Better never than late

The ostrich is supposed to stick his head in the sand and assume that makes him invisible.

North's pass over West's two spades was an example of what we have called the "Ostrich bid."

As North explained later, he had no defense and passed in the hope that East and West would not go on. Then after East did bid four spades North decided to take the save at five diamonds.

The defense took two spades and shifted to a heart. Later South played ace and a low club from dummy and managed to get out for down two.

Needless to say, South was most un-

Win at bridge

by Oswald and Jim Jacoby

happy about the whole thing. The fact that he had made a good play in clubs was no consolation at all.

Suppose North had bid three diamonds. East would have gone on to four spades and South would have passed. North would have passed also and his side would wind up with a profit since East just can't make his spade game.

A special occasion calls for a special menu. Hamburgers and hot dogs are fine in their place, but outdoor dining requires something more. For elegance and excitement it's hard to find anything to top rock lobster tails.

The tails can be served either hot or cold. On the outdoor grill, the sight of shells turning bright red is appetizing. But for the hostess who prefers to have the cooking done ahead of time, the lobster can be boiled, chilled and served with a creamy sauce.

Rock Lobster and Fresh Air

HOW TO BARBECUE SOUTH AFRICAN ROCK LOBSTER TAILS

Thaw tails. Cut underside membrane around edge and remove. Grasp tail in both hands and crack shell firmly lengthwise. This will prevent curling. Or, insert skewers to keep tail flat. When fire is hot, place tails flesh side towards heat first and grill for 5 minutes. Turn tails, brush with butter or basting sauce and continue grilling until meat has lost its transparency and is opaque. This will take from 5 to 20 minutes, depending on heat of the fire and size of the rock lobster tails.

HOW TO BOIL ROCK LOBSTER TAILS

Drop rock lobster tails, either frozen or thawed, into boiling salted water. When water reboils, lower heat and begin counting time, following timetable. Drain immediately, drench with cold water and cut away underside membrane with kitchen shears. Insert fingers between shell and meat at meaty end of tail and work meat loose from shell and remove meat in one piece. Chill until ready for use. Serve on round platter with slices of hard-boiled eggs and cucumbers and a bowl of Creamy Thousand Island Sauce.

BASTING SAUCES FOR BARBECUING

SWEET AND SOUR

- 1/4 cup oil
- 2 teaspoons salt
- 1 clove garlic, mashed
- 1/2 cup firmly packed dark brown sugar
- 1 can frozen orange juice, undiluted
- 1 cup cider vinegar

Combine all ingredients in a saucepan and simmer for 5 minutes. Brush rock lobster tails with sauce and serve remaining sauce hot as dip for cooked rock lobster tails. Makes 2 1/2 cups sauce.

ROQUEFORT

- 1 1/2 cups oil
- 1/4 cup (3 ounces) crumbled Roquefort cheese
- 1/2 cup lemon juice
- 1 teaspoon each of salt and paprika
- 1/2 teaspoon white pepper

Put all ingredients into a jar with a tight-fitting lid. Shake until well blended. Use as a basting sauce when barbecuing rock lobster tails and serve as a dip for barbecued tails. Makes 2 1/2 cups.

DIP SAUCE FOR HOT BARBECUED TAILS

CHEESY HORSE RADISH

- 1 package (3 ounces) cream cheese
- 1/2 tablespoons well-drained white horseradish
- 1 1/2 cups heavy cream
- Salt

Mash cream cheese until soft. Gradually beat in horseradish and 1/2 cup of the cream. Whip remaining cream until stiff and fold into horseradish mixture. Add salt to taste. Chill until ready to serve with hot rock lobster tails. Yield: about 3 cups sauce.

DIP SAUCE FOR COLD BOILED TAILS

CREAMY THOUSAND ISLAND

- 1 1/2 cups prepared Thousand Island dressing
- 1 cup sour cream
- 2 tablespoons lime juice
- 1/4 teaspoon Angostura aromatic bitters

Combine ingredients and mix thoroughly. Place in bowl in center of large tray and serve as dip sauce. Yield: about 2 1/2 cups sauce.

KETCHUP BREAD

- 1 loaf Italian bread about 12 to 14 inches long
- 1/4 cup soft butter or margarine
- 1/2 cup ketchup
- 2 cups (8 ounces) grated sharp American cheese
- 1/4 cup chopped parsley

Cut bread into halves lengthwise. Thinly spread cut surfaces with butter. Place butter side down on grill rack 8 inches above grey charcoal until brown. Spread ketchup on toasted bread. Sprinkle ketchup with cheese and parsley. Wrap halves loosely in foil, sealing tightly. Place crust side down on grill rack 8 inches above coals, for 10 to 15 minutes. Do not turn. Cut each half into crosswise slices. Serve hot.

Beet and Citrus Salad

Summer luncheon features salads

Molded salad, attractively sculptured with glistening surfaces, refreshes the eye and cools the mouth. It can be a meal by itself, such as this Beet and Citrus Salad, which is perfect for lunch on a sunny afternoon.

Measurements are given in both metric and American Standard units. Usually dry ingredients are measured in grams in the metric system. But food and utensil manufacturers have developed cups and spoons for both liquid and dry ingredients to make conversion easier for cooks.

Cooking with metrics

BEET AND CITRUS SALAD

- 1 jar (454 grams or 1 pound) sliced pickled beets, drained and chopped
- Beet juice
- Water
- 1 package (85 grams or 3 ounces) lemon-flavored gelatin
- 125 milliliters or 1/2 cup orange juice
- 10 milliliters or 2 teaspoons horseradish
- 5 milliliters or 1 teaspoon salt
- 250 milliliters or 1 cup thinly sliced celery
- 250 milliliters or 1 cup cottage cheese, sieved

Measure beet juice and add enough water to make 250 milliliters (1 cup). Place in saucepan; heat until it t. Dissolve the gelatin in the hot liquid. Add orange juice, horseradish and salt. Chill until slightly thickened. Fold beets, celery and cottage cheese into gelatin. Spoon into individual molds and chill until firm. Serves 6.

Old chicken from India

He may have had the heart of a chicken, but he was anything but chicken-hearted. We refer to the wild red jungle fowl from the bamboo forests of India, our present-day domestic bird's ancestor. He looked like an overgrown Bantam rooster, and was often bred for cockfighting, which became a popular pastime in the Far East. People wagered money, property and even their wives on the outcome (Was the show called "You Bet Your Wife"?). Anyway, some good came of it all. Because of these competitive exhibitions, the breed improved over the centuries. In this country, P.T. Barnum and others staged poultry shows in the mid-1800s, and interest in better poultry continued to grow. The result is the tender, meaty and delicious product we enjoy today.

Do you know how many beans make five? Beans were once as wild as prehistoric man. But over in Mesopotamia about 1,000 years ago, they became domesticated and were used in many countries, not only as food but also to count with. In ancient Greece, they counted votes with beans — white ones for, black ones against. In early Rome, beans with black spots — black-eyed peas — were used in funeral sacrifices because they were thought to be a symbol of death. Today, in Britain, a single white bean is often baked in the Twelfth Night Cake celebrating the feast of the Epiphany. Whoever gets the bean is leader of the festivities.

Menu variety easy with low-fat diet

It is difficult for most persons to diet. And those whose doctors have given them a diet earmarked to help lower their cholesterol will be happy to note that they can eat well and enjoyably.

Recipes using skim milk, corn or peanut oil, low cholesterol margarines and egg substitutes or egg whites only to keep up one's morale because these fit into a changed eating pattern. You can still have desserts, for example, such as a pound cake torte or an apple tart or a white cake with frosting using these approved ingredients.

ORANGE POUND CAKE TORTE

- 1-1/3 cups unsifted flour
- 1/2 teaspoon baking powder
- 1/4 teaspoon salt
- 1/2 cup (1 stick) corn oil margarine
- 1/2 cup sugar
- 1 teaspoon grated orange peel
- 1/2 cup cholesterol-free egg substitute (at room temperature)
- 1 teaspoon vanilla extract
- 1/4 cup skim milk (at room temperature)
- 6 tablespoons strawberry preserves

Orange Glaze

Combine flour, baking powder and salt; set aside.

Cream margarine, sugar and orange peel together until light. Add cholesterol-free egg substitute and vanilla; beat just until smooth. Add dry ingredients to creamed mixture and mix with rotary beater or on medium speed of electric mixer until blended, about 1 minute, scraping bowl occasionally. Gradually add skim milk, then mix on medium speed for about 1 minute, scraping bowl occasionally.

Turn batter into an 8 1/2 by 4 1/2 by 2 1/2-inch loaf pan greased on bottom only.

Bake at 350 degrees about 50 minutes, or until done. Cool in pan, on wire rack, for 20 minutes. Remove from pan and finishing cooling on wire rack.

Cut cake horizontally into 3 even slices. Place first layer on cake plate, cut side up; spread with 3 tablespoons strawberry preserves. Repeat with second slice of cake and remaining preserves. Top with last slice. Frost with Orange Glaze. Makes 1 loaf torte.

Orange Glaze

In small bowl combine 1/2 cup confectioners' sugar and 1 teaspoon grated orange peel. Gradually add 2 to 3 teaspoons orange juice, stirring with fork until well blended.

WHITE MOUNTAIN PROMISE CAKE

- 2 1/2 cups sifted cake flour
- 3 teaspoons baking powder
- 1/4 teaspoon salt
- 1/2 cup soft margarine
- 1 1/2 cups sugar
- 1 teaspoon vanilla
- 1 teaspoon almond extract
- 1 cup skimmed milk
- 6 egg whites
- 1/2 teaspoon cream of tartar

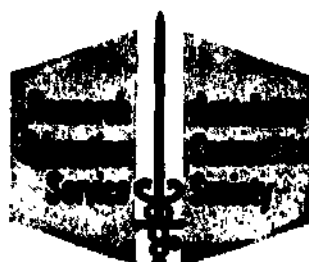

Sift together flour, baking powder and salt. In large bowl mix margarine, sugar, vanilla and almond extract. Alternately blend in flour mixture and milk. Beat egg whites with cream of tartar until stiff but not dry. Gently but thoroughly fold into cake batter. Turn into 9-inch tube pan that has been brushed with margarine and dusted with flour. Bake in 350-degree oven 1 hour and 10 minutes, until cake is golden brown and pulls away from side of pan and a cake tester inserted in cake comes out clean. Cool 15 minutes. Remove from pan and finish cooling on rack. Frost with White Mountain Frosting. Makes 16 servings.

WHITE MOUNTAIN FROSTING

- 1 cup sugar
- 1/3 cup water
- 1/8 teaspoon cream of tartar
- 2 egg whites
- 1/2 teaspoon vanilla

In medium saucepan mix sugar, water and cream of tartar. Place over low heat, cover and cook 3 minutes, remove cover and boil until syrup reaches 240 degrees on candy thermometer. Remove from heat. In medium bowl beat egg whites until stiff, then gradually pour syrup into egg whites, beating constantly. Beat until thick enough to form peaks; beat in vanilla.

Shortcakes don't need strawberries

Mention shortcake and most immediately think of strawberry shortcake. However, here is a buttermilk shortcake made with fresh peaches especially in mind. Another different dessert for summer celebrating is a cheesecake-type custard to treat with a rich plum sauce. This treat is made ahead, spooned into glasses for attractive, easy serving.

PEACHES 'N' BUTTERMILK SHORTCAKE

2 cups sifted flour
2 teaspoons baking powder
1 teaspoon salt
1/2 cup butter
2/3 cup buttermilk
4 fresh peaches, peeled, sliced and sugared
1 cup whipping cream, whipped and sweetened

Resift flour with baking powder and salt into mixing bowl. Cut in 6 tablespoons butter with a pastry blender until mixture resembles coarse meal. Stir in buttermilk. Shape dough into a ball. Roll out to 1/2 inch thickness on a lightly floured board. Cut dough into 4-inch rounds. Bake in 450 degree oven 18 to 20 minutes. Split biscuits while warm; spread with remaining butter. Serve in individual dishes with peaches between split layers and on top. Spread whipped cream over both layers. Makes 4 servings.

CHEESECAKE IN A GLASS

Cheesecake:
1 tablespoon lemon juice
Thin yellow peel of 1/2 lemon
1 envelope unflavored gelatin
1/2 cup hot water
1/3 cup sugar
2 egg yolks
1 package (8 ounces) cream cheese
4 regular-sized ice cubes
1 cup dairy sour cream
Plum Sauce:
12 fresh ripe plums, quartered and pitted
1 cup sugar
3/4 cup water
Crust (optional):
1/4 cup Zwieback or cookie crumbs
1 teaspoon sugar

Cheesecake: Put lemon juice, peel, gelatin and hot water into blender container. Blend at high speed 40 seconds (or use rotary beater). Scrape down sides with spatula; blend again. Add sugar, yolks and cream cheese. Blend 10 seconds. Add ice cubes one at a time and sour cream; blend until smooth. Pour into covered refrigerator container. Chill until set.

Plum sauce: Put plums, sugar and water in saucepan. Bring to a boil, stirring gently to dissolve sugar; cover and simmer 8 minutes. Remove 12 plum slices with slotted spoon; reserve for garnish. Pour remaining plums and juice into blender container. Blend on high speed until smooth. Taste for sweetness, adding more sugar if desired; blend again, if necessary. Pour into pitcher and refrigerate.

Crust: In small mixing bowl, combine Zwieback crumbs with sugar, cover and set aside.
To serve: Sprinkle crumbs into 6 tall stemmed dessert glasses. Spoon cheesecake into glasses, dividing evenly. Top each serving with reserved poached plum slices. Serve with Plum Sauce. Makes 5 to 6 servings.

Snack sales rise as times get better

Snacks are back and Americans are eating them.

A trade publication says snack sales in supermarkets increased last year, after three years of problems.

In a ranking of 76 grocery categories, snacks were sixth best in sales and No. 1 in profit margins, according to Progressive Grocer.

The magazine said an improved economy was the major factor. It said consumers kept buying snacks through hard times, but tended to look for bargains.

"Retailers now report some evidence that shoppers are less prone to stick with budget snacks as their pockets start jingling again," the magazine said. "Also, many jobless 'squandered' precious pennies on chips and the like, perhaps because it was their only treat in bad times. And one astute Eastern buyer notes that the recession caused more entertaining at home — which hyped snack sales. "It ties in with wine sales."

The article also said improvement in quantity and quality of cooking oils and potatoes also helped snack sales. It quoted one manufacturer as saying the controversy over nutrition has nearly vanished, and people are buying snacks for fun, although they also have a high energy factor.

Tuna crepes cook into a creamy success

by LOIS SEILER

Tuna crepes have long had a way of winning compliments for Susan Orloff, Buffalo Grove. When the recipe won first place at Aviva Pioneer Women's Taste and Tell luncheon, Susan's confidence in the recipe was justified.

Her light-textured crepes are filled with a tasty mixture of tuna, mushrooms, onions, cheese and pimiento moistened with mushroom soup. Susan lets guests help themselves to a yummy cheese sauce, which is poured over the crepes.

As accompaniments she suggests a refreshing gelatin mold and a Caesar salad. Because the crepes are rich and filling, no dessert is needed.

Her favorite gelatin mold is refreshing for hot weather. She combines lime gelatin with vanilla ice cream, crushed pineapple, fruit cocktail and chopped nuts. A pretty, creamy green, it looks as cool as it tastes.

A DINNER THAT makes a hit with Susan's husband, Jerry, and son, Gregg, is Beef Mandarin. The cooking time is short because the meat is sliced thin and sauteed quickly to keep it rare, and the pea pods must remain crisp.

Susan keeps a kosher kitchen and thus uses a hanging tenderloin, but a sirloin steak may be substituted. She cautions against over-cooking since the meat will toughen. The variety of seasonings give this dish a sweet yet salty flavor that is extremely appetizing. Susan suggests a big tossed salad or gelatin mold as an accompaniment.

Vice president in charge of membership for Aviva Pioneer Women, Susan has been in charge of the club's gift shop and is a member of the bowling league and couples gourmet. A volunteer teacher's aid at Irving School, she also teaches Sunday school at Temple Chai in Buffalo Grove.

TUNA CREPES

Crepes:
3 eggs
¾ cup milk
¾ cup water
1 cup sifted flour
½ teaspoon salt
2 tablespoons melted butter
Place all ingredients in blender and blend until smooth. Pour just enough batter into a lightly greased, hot 7 to 8-inch skillet to coat bottom. Cook until delicately brown. Do not turn over. Turn out of pan. Stack finished crepes. Do not move them until they are cooled or they will fall apart. Makes about 10 to 12.

Filling:
½ pound fresh mushrooms, sliced
¼ cup butter
2 to 3 cans (7-ounce size) tuna, flaked and drained
½ can undiluted mushroom soup
1 cup grated Cheddar cheese
½ teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
1 small onion, minced
Juice of ½ lemon
1 tablespoon sugar
1 teaspoon salt
½ small jar sliced pimiento
Saute mushrooms in 2 tablespoons butter. Melt remaining butter and set aside.
Combine all remaining ingredients and mix in sauteed mushrooms. Divide filling among the crepes and roll each as you would a jelly roll. Arrange in a shallow baking dish, seam side down. Brush crepes with reserved melted butter and bake at 400 degrees for 15 minutes.

Sauce:
½ can undiluted mushroom soup
¼ cup grated cheddar cheese
½ jar sliced pimiento
Milk to desired thickness
Mix ingredients in saucepan, heat through and pour over hot crepes. This may be served in a gravy boat and guests can help themselves. Serves 6.

Note: Chicken or crabmeat may be substituted for the tuna, if desired.

LIME GELATIN MOLD

2 small packages lime gelatin
2 cups boiling water
1 quart vanilla ice cream
1 (No. 2) can crushed pineapple and juice
1 (No. 2½) can fruit cocktail, drained
½ cup chopped nuts (optional)
Dissolve gelatin in boiling water. Add ice cream to hot mixture and stir until dissolved. Add pineapple and juice and chill until partially thickened. Fold in fruit cocktail and nuts, if desired. Turn into an oiled, 1½ to 2-quart ring mold or bundt pan and chill until firm.
Unmold onto lettuce and garnish with fruit, if desired. Serves 10 to 12.

BEEF MANDARIN

1½ pounds hanging tenderloin or sirloin, sliced thin
Lawry's Seasoned Salt
¼ teaspoon garlic powder
½ teaspoon onion powder

3 tablespoons oil
1 envelope brown gravy mix
1 cup water
2 tablespoons soy sauce
2 tablespoons brown sugar
1 large jar button mushrooms
1 package frozen pea pods
Sprinkle meat with seasoned salt, garlic and onion powder. Saute in oil just a few minutes until brown on the outside but pink inside. Add gravy mix and water; stir and cook. If too thick, add more water. Add soy sauce, brown sugar and mushrooms. Heat through. The last few minutes, add pea pods and just heat through. Pea pods should remain crisp. Serve over cooked rice. Serves 4.

TUNA CREPES can be made ahead and baked just 15 minutes before serving, says Susan Orloff, Buffalo Grove. She makes crepes for luncheons as well as a light meal for a summer night.

Crockery cooking

Cost and convenience spark slow-cooking revival

by BARBARA LADD

Some cooks swear by them, saying they could never get along without. Others use slow-cookers once or twice before retiring to the dusty back shelves holding other idle appliances. But the fact is that the slow-cooker is one of the most popular small appliances around.

Since 1971, when Rival Manufacturing Co. introduced something named "Crock-Pot," the slow-cooked, old-fashioned flavors of stews, soups and pot roasts have enjoyed a revival.

Today there are more than 20 different brands of slow-cookers on the market.

THE IDEA behind slow-cookers is to make a meal that takes forever to cook without watching, stirring or timing, said Dorothy Landgraf, home economics adviser with the Cooperative Extension Service at Rolling Meadows. She recently taught a workshop on slow-cookers.

The slow-cookers basically are covered stoneware pots surrounded by low wattage heat when in operation. They can be either continuous-heat units or thermostat ones, which cycle heat on and off during the cooking process.

When the slow cookers first hit the market there was concern by nutritionists that the low temperatures might pose a health hazard.

"FOOD SHOULD not sit between 40 and 140 degrees for more than two hours," said Mrs. Landgraf. A cooking temperature of 140 degrees is needed to kill trichinosis parasites as well as harmful bacteria.

In a study last year by Consumers Union, all of the continuous-heat units heated food to well above 140 degrees in a sufficiently short time, the report stated.

But the report did criticize some of the thermostat models that have keep-warm settings below their lowest slow-cook setting.

"SOME OF THE early vintage slow-cookers produced I would stop and caution," said Mrs. Landgraf. Some of the cheap, chain-store models might also be questionable, she added.

To help guarantee safety of the meats cooked in the slow-cookers, Mrs. Landgraf recommends turning the setting to high for the first hour and browning the pieces.

When the ingredients are in the refrigerator at 40 degrees and then put in the slow cooker it takes awhile for the meat to reach 140 degrees," she explained. "I know browning takes one more pan to wash, but it's worth it."

Browning isn't only an advantage with safety. Meats tend to have a pink cast to them instead of the "done" look of browned meat. And flavor is improved by a short browning period, said Mrs. Landgraf.

Another simple trick to shortening the time for the meat to reach 140 degrees is to cut chunks into smaller pieces, she said.

VEGETABLES also need to be cut in small pieces since they don't cook as fast as meats, she said.

When adapting recipes to slow cookers, use only half the water required in regular recipes and don't sauté vegetables, said Mrs. Landgraf. Other than those hints, it just takes a lot of practice.

Mrs. Landgraf said that slow cooking is an economical method of preparing food. For example, studies indicate that a meat dish cooked in the oven costs $0.375 while the same dish fixed in the slow cooker costs about $0.25.

When choosing a slow cooker Mrs.

REGARDLESS OF STYLE or brand, all slow-cookers should bring their contents up to 140 degrees in a two-hour period for safety, said Dorothy Landgraf, Extension home economist, who recently conducted a workshop on slow-cookers in Rolling Meadows. To test a slow-cooker, she said to fill the appliance with cold water and record how long it takes for a kitchen thermometer to reach 140 degrees on the various settings.

Landgraf recommends asking the following questions of yourself:

- Do I need this appliance?
- Will I use it often enough to warrant the purchase?
- Will another appliance I already have work just as well for me in another way?

- Do I have adequate counter and storage space for it?
- Do I have suitable outlets in convenient locations for the use of this appliance?

If, after answering those questions, a slow cooker sounds desirable, Extension home economists recommend the following points to look for in the store.

Make sure the slow cooker is stable against tipping and the handles are well-insulated against overheating. The size and shape should be convenient for use and storage.

"SOME OF THE older models used to mar the table and countertops," said Mrs. Landgraf. "But I haven't heard of much problem with that lately."

Another point to consider when buying a slow-cooker is ease or difficulty when cleaning it, she said. The appliance should be approved by the Underwriter's Laboratory and have a satisfactory guarantee.

"The biggest criticism I've heard with slow-cookers is that everything tastes alike," said Mrs. Landgraf. "But you know what I use mine for? At buffets it's an excellent thing to keep food warm."

IF LAST-MINUTE cooking is inconvenient, slow-cookers can be an asset to menu-planning. For example, ears of corn, cleaned and re-wrapped in their husks, can be steamed in a slow-cooker containing a small amount of water, according to Dorothy Landgraf.

Historical year influences menu

What better way to celebrate the Bicentennial than with a summer menu planned around an American favorite combination of fried chicken, homemade biscuits and corn on the cob. With these go fresh tomatoes, cucum-

She makes sweet potato into salad

That was fun, wasn't it? I mean the Bicentennial. The whole weekend had a real party atmosphere. I think we should do this about every five years, provided I can learn to spell whatever it would be called.

One of the best moments was the evening of July 4th at Arlington Park when the entire crowd of what must have been at least 40,000 people in the grandstand decided to stand while they were singing "God Bless America." They weren't asked. It was a spontaneous demonstration of what everyone was feeling.

It almost made that long wait for the fireworks worthwhile. Every year when I find myself at a fireworks demonstration Fourth of July evening, I wonder why I am there and why I didn't stay home as I promised myself last year I was going to do.

This year, while waiting for the fireworks, I made myself another promise. I am no longer going to support any candidate for public office who

SUSIE'S HERBED FRIED CHICKEN

- 2 (2½ to 3 pounds each) chickens cut into eighths
- 1 cup all-purpose flour
- ½ cup dry bread crumbs
- 1 tablespoon onion powder
- 2 teaspoons paprika
- 2 teaspoons salt
- 1½ teaspoons poultry seasoning
- ¼ teaspoon ground black pepper.
- Oil

Dredge chicken pieces in flour mixed with bread crumbs, onion powder, paprika, salt, poultry seasoning and black pepper. Fry a few pieces at a time in deep oil preheated to 400 degrees until golden and tender, about 20 minutes. Or, if desired, pour oil to depth of 1-inch in a large skillet. Heat until hot. Add chicken to skillet, being careful not to overcrowd. Brown slowly on both sides. Return all browned chicken to skillet. Cover and cook slowly, turning once until chicken is tender, about 30 minutes. Remove cover last 5 minutes of cooking for a crispy crust. Makes 8 to 10 portions.

WILLIAMSBURG BUNS

- 1 cup milk
- ½ cup sugar
- ¼ cup sherry (or cider)
- ¼ cup margarine
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1 package active dry yeast
- ¼ cup warm water (105 to 115 degrees)
- 5 cups flour (about)
- 1 teaspoon nutmeg
- 1 teaspoon mace
- 2 eggs, well beaten

melted margarine

Grease 36 (2½ by 1¼ inch) muffin cups. Scald milk; remove from heat and stir in sugar, sherry, margarine and salt. Cool to lukewarm. Sprinkle yeast in warm water and stir to dissolve. Stir 1 cup of the flour, nutmeg and mace into lukewarm milk mixture. Stir in yeast. Add eggs; beat until smooth. Stir in remaining flour, a little at a time, until dough can be easily handled.

Turn dough onto lightly floured surface. Knead until smooth and elastic.

Place in oiled bowl smooth side down, then turn over dough so smooth side is up. Cover. Let rise in warm place until doubled, about 90 minutes. Punch down.

Divide into 3 balls. Divide each ball into 12 equal parts. Shape into balls and place in muffin pans. Let rise again until doubled in bulk, about 45 minutes. Brush balls with melted margarine. Bake in 350 degree oven 20 to 25 minutes or until golden brown. Makes 36 buns.

The working woman cooks

by Joyce Zeller

doesn't feel I should be free and equal, regardless of where he or she stands on other issues.

THE EQUAL Rights Amendment is nothing more than a one-paragraph statement of principle and I'm outraged that the majority of our legislators can't manage to say "aye" when they are asked.

Along about this time I also got to thinking about potato salad. (Like I said, it was a long and tedious wait.) Potato salad is such a handy thing to serve at a summer meal, but it can get pretty monotonous. The next time you want to serve it try this recipe. It's different because it is made of sweet potatoes. It took a couple of tries to get the balance just right between salty and sweet and crunchy and smooth, but this combination of seasonings does the trick.

Sweet potatoes cook in less time than white potatoes, so watch them carefully. Cook them with the skins on until they're just tender then peel them quickly.

SWEET POTATO SALAD

- 1½ pounds sweet potatoes
- ½ cup bottled oil and vinegar salad dressing
- 1 cup diced celery
- 1 teaspoon Nature's Seasons
- ½ cup real mayonnaise

Cook sweet potatoes until tender. Peel while still warm and cut into salad size pieces. Pour on salad dressing and mix carefully. Don't mosh them up. Chill thoroughly. Dissolve Nature's Seasons in mayonnaise. Add to celery and mix lightly again. Serves 6.

Test score distribution change asked in Dist. 62

by JOHN N. FRANK

Des Plaines Dist. 62 parents told the district long-range planning committee Wednesday they would like to see the results of nationally standardized achievement tests reported in a school-by-school manner.

The district currently reports the results of such tests on a districtwide basis.

The committee did not act on the request.

Parents' comments came after Robert Cowell, assistant superintendent in charge of curriculum, presented a preliminary report comparing students' test scores from 1966 to the present.

Cowell said the report will be revised because the district now uses a different version of the Stanford Achievement Tests than it did in 1966. The district gives the test in the fall rather than in the spring as had been done in the past years.

THE PRELIMINARY report shows that Dist. 62 students scored above the national norm on the test although they are not as far above the norm as they were in 1966.

Parents representing various PTA's and citizens groups requested that test results be released on a school-by-school and grade-by-grade basis enabling parents to have an objective standard by which to measure teaching effectiveness.

"We want to be able to say 'Hey, you're not teaching reading, you're not teaching math,'" said one PTA representative. Test results could be reported on a school-by-school rather than a districtwide basis, Cowell said, adding he is "concerned about how that test can be distorted."

In other business, the committee reviewed a report prepared by the administration which forecasts declining district enrollment until 1980 as well as dealing with staff needs, building maintenance and district financing.

The committee also began preparing a questionnaire to be distributed to district residents which would be used to receive citizen input on the district.

City to enforce curfew law

The Des Plaines Police Dept. announced Wednesday it will resume enforcement of the city's curfew ordinance for persons under 18 years old.

Police stopped enforcing the ordinance last Feb. 19 because of a pending lawsuit that challenges the constitutionality of the Illinois curfew statute.

City Atty. Charles Hug said, however, he believes the city can begin enforcing its curfew ordinance while the matter is pending before the Illinois Supreme Court. The Illinois Appellate Court found the state curfew statute unconstitutional.

The ordinance prohibits minors from being in a public place between 10:31 p.m. and 6 a.m. Sunday through Thursday or between 12:01 a.m. and 6 a.m. Saturday and Sunday unless accompanied and supervised by a parent or responsible guardian over 21.

The curfew does not apply to minors who are working or traveling to and from work.

Street upgrade project near completion: official

Most of the work on Des Plaines' annual street improvement program should be completed in about two weeks, a city official said Wednesday.

The $230,000 program includes resurfacing, repaving and sealing about 12 miles of streets and the replacement of 5,000 feet of curbs and gutters throughout the city.

Ellis Perl, assistant city engineer, said the curb and gutter work and the street resurfacing work is "well under way," and that the repaving work is expected to start next week.

ALL OF THE STREET work is being paid for with motor fuel tax funds.

The asphalt repaving work, the most extensive of the improvements, will be done to 25 streets. The process consists of heating and scraping off part of the existing pavement and combining it with additional asphalt to form a new pavement.

The resurfacing work, which will be done to 21 streets, consists of spreading liquid asphalt on the existing pavement and covering it with additional solid asphalt.

Perl said the repaving and resurfacing will increase the structural strength of the streets making major improvements unnecessary for 5 to 10 years.

THE SEALING work, the least extensive of the improvements will be done to 16 streets. It consists of filling cracks with liquid asphalt.

The annual street program is separate from the routine maintenance and repairs performed by the city's public works department throughout the year. Officials said many of the streets not repaired under the annual program this year will be taken care of next year.

Perl said the improvement on Lee Street from Mannheim Road to Howard Street is not part of the annual street program. The city has received a low bid of about $244,000 for the project, which will consist of widening, repaving and installing new curbs and gutters.

The project, which must still receive city and state approval, is scheduled for completion in October, Perl said. Next year the city plans to reconstruct Lee Street from Howard Street to Touhy Avenue.

Public aid rolls down 16.2% in May

The number of persons who received public aid from Maine Township during May was down 16.2 per cent from the previous month and 60.5 per cent from May 1975.

Maine Township Supervisor James J. Dowd said persons qualifying for public aid numbered 83 in May, down from 99 in April and 210 in May of the previous year.

He said May was only the second month since 1973 that the number of persons on public aid fell below 100. The all-time high of 417 was recorded in March 1975.

For the first five months of 1976, Dowd said, the number of persons receiving public aid dropped from 1,747 to 621, a 64.2 per cent decrease from the same period in 1975.

$2.3 million budget OK'd by parks

The Mount Prospect Park Board has adopted a 1976-77 budget of $2,351,980, reflecting a slight decrease from last year.

This year's budget is down $9,071 from last year's budget of $2,361,051.

In addition to serving most of Mount Prospect, the park district serves residents on the west side of Des Plaines.

Park Director Thomas W. Cooper attributed the smaller budget to a drop in the district's tax base. Total assessed valuation fell from $269 million in September 1974 to $268 million in September 1975.

"This is the first time we have had a decline in assessed valuation," Cooper said. "If the money is not there, we can't spend it."

Cooper anticipates an increase in assessed valuation this year because of increased construction and several annexations into the park district. He said, however, the tax rate, currently 38 cents per $100 assessed valuation, will "basically stay the same."

THE TOTAL corporate budget, which includes administrative, maintenance, pool and golf course expenses, decreased to $793,251 from last year's $847,397. Appropriations for recreational operations, equipment and year-round programs total $404,128 compared to last year's $412,844.

Despite a smaller allocation for recreation facilities, Assistant Park Director Thomas T. Taylor said the number of summer programs this year has more than doubled last summer's offerings. "We'll just have to forego larger improvements — additions to our facilities and the purchase of new equipment," Taylor said. "It's more important this summer to offer programs based on the fact there was no summer school."

Cooper said when summer school was in session, there was a decided drop in enrollment in park district activities. "Now we've noticed swimming, tennis and the playgrounds are more popular," he said.

Four face liquor possession charges

Arrested were Steven A. Morry, 17, of 276 King Ln., Des Plaines; John C. Meyers, 19, of 146 S. Danbury, Des Plaines; John S. Pischke, 18, of 330 Beau Dr., Des Plaines, and JoAnn Stubbs, 19, of 1210 Crabtree, Mount Prospect.

According to police reports, police noticed Morry walking in the park area with a can of beer and the other persons drinking beer in a vehicle in the park.

Golf course vote planned for fall

A referendum is planned for early fall to finance construction of the Lochland Links golf course at the Nike Base in Arlington Heights. Thomas Thornton, park district director, said the referendum is to obtain voter approval to issue about $1.4 million in general obligation bonds. The general obligation bonds are necessary because of difficulty in marketing revenue bonds and obtaining a bank loan to finance the project, he said. A village-wide meeting will be held in about two weeks to explain problems of financing the course.

Man killed in tollway accident

A Mount Prospect man was killed early Wednesday when a small truck he was driving struck a median wall on the Northwest Tollway and burst into flames. Richard M. Johnson, 27, of 1919 Cholol Ln., was dead on arrival at Northwest Community Hospital, Arlington Heights. Police said Johnson was driving westbound on the tollway when he apparently lost control of the truck a half-mile from the Kennedy Expressway exchange. There were no other passengers in the vehicle.

Dacy's attorney waives hearing

The defense attorney for Joseph P. Dacy, who is charged with the brutal stabbing murder of a Schaumburg woman last Saturday, waived Dacy's right to a preliminary hearing Wednesday. The case is now set to be heard before Associate Judge Jerome Burke July 29 in the Des Plaines branch of Cook County Circuit Court.

Vanderweel declines reelection

Trustee Nanci L. Vanderweel, a six-year member of the Elk Grove Village Board, has announced she will not seek reelection next April. Mrs. Vanderweel, 39, said "I've just come to the conclusion I want to step aside. I guess I've gotten tired over the years." Before being elected to a two-year village board term in 1971, Mrs. Vanderweel served on the plan commission and former Village Pres. Jack Pahl's presidential task force. She also served on the Mark Hopkins School PSTA, including two years as vice president.

Centex repairs to begin July 26

The Centex Homes Corp. plans to modify furnaces and hot water heaters in 1,136 Elk Grove Village homes for safety reasons beginning July 26. The modifications are needed to correct subcontractors' violations of village building codes and to prevent potential fires and carbon monoxide leaks. Centex officials would not give village officials an estimate of the work's cost, but Village Pres. Charles Zettek said it could cost several hundred thousand dollars. Homeowners will not have to pay for the work.

Request blamed on RTA

by LYNN ASINOF

The Chicago and North Western Ry. Wednesday petitioned the Illinois Commerce Commission for a 15 per cent interim fare increase effective Aug. 1.

Railroad officials said the Regional Transportation Authority forced them to seek the increase by failing to negotiate in good faith for a purchase of service contract. They said the railroad is losing $4 million a year.

Municipal attorneys from the Northwest suburbs, however, said the railroad has not made a serious effort to negotiate with the RTA. They said a fare increase would amount to double taxation.

The 15 per cent increase would result in hikes of between 20 and 25 cents for one-way tickets to the Northwest suburbs.

THE INTERIM increase is being requested to provide immediate relief to the railroad while the ICC conducts hearing on making the 15 per cent fare hike permanent.

The railroad filed its original request for fare hikes in November, but repeatedly asked for hearing postponements because of negotiations with the RTA. Negotiations for purchase of service began two years ago.

"The whole history suggests we have made a serious corporate mistake in waiting this time," said Richard M. Freeman, railroad vice president. He said he was "very pessimistic" that a contract could be approved with the RTA.

Arlington Heights Village Atty. Jack M. Siegel, however, argued that the railroad took a passive role in the negotiations.

ALTHOUGH RAILROAD officials said they reached a tentative contract agreement with two of the suburban RTA directors in April, they admitted that the agreement was never formally presented to the full RTA board.

Freeman said the North Western was prepared to accept $44 million for the purchase of the railroad's equipment and $3 million for fiscal 1976 commuter services and $1.7 million for fiscal 1977 commuter services.

His proposal was submitted to the RTA director Richard Newman, who was supposed to have distributed it to the rest of the RTA board, Freeman said. He said the North Western has not yet received any answer to that proposal.

"I regard the absence of a response for three months as closing of negotiations," Freeman said.

Siegel said "If I was negotiating and I hadn't heard for three months, I would at last make a telephone call."

PALATINE VILLAGE Atty. Bradley M. Glass and Des Plaines City Atty. Charles R. Hug also attempted to show that the railroad did not actively pursue negotiations.

Siegel said that if the North Western wins a fare increase the tax money collected by the RTA will amount to double taxation.

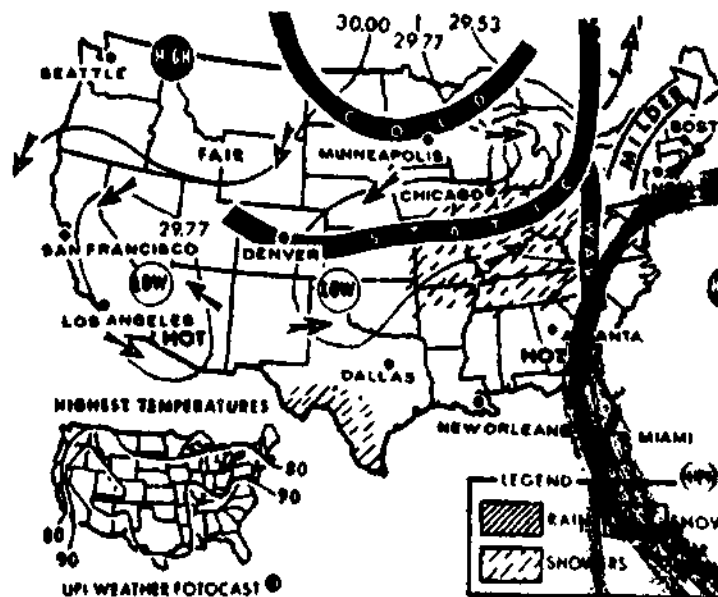

"I think the ICC has a responsibility to make sure these negotiations are carried forward," Siegel said, noting that he would like RTA officials present at the next ICC hearing scheduled for Aug. 5.

The ICC may rule on the interim request before that time, or the request may be included as part of the petition for a permanent 15 per cent hike.

Railroad officials said they are confident they will win the 15 per cent fare increase designed to make commuter lines break even. They said once the fare increase is approved they will immediately file for an additional 20 to 25 per cent hike designed to make commuter services a profitable operation.

Casework official contends:

Society hurts mobility of disabled

by MARSHA S. BOSLEY

The handicapped population has been hindered from making a "normal transition into the working world," said Norman Koshkarian, casework supervisor for the Illinois Division of Vocational Rehabilitation.

Serving 50 suburbs in north and northwest Cook County, the rehabilitation office, 1050 Prospect Plaza, Mount Prospect, is one of 30 agencies of its kind throughout the state. It is funded 80 per cent by the federal government and 20 per cent in the state.

Koshkarian and nine full-time counselors trained in the social sciences work with the physically and emotionally disabled who are vocationally handicapped. "We try to prepare the individual to enter into a working situation where his handicap will not cut short his career," Koshkarian said.

The agency aids the congenitally handicapped as well as those persons who became disabled later in life. Koshkarian said the agency strives to place the handicapped back into society where they can feel they are of value. "In essence, they have been discriminated against, for example, by virtue of architectural barriers in society," he said.

ABOUT 10 PER cent of the U. S. population is disabled. "The problem is that the total population many times is unaware of this part of the population," Koshkarian said. "Like the alcoholic population, we don't see all of them. Not all of them seek treatment. Not everybody wants rehabilitation services."

Koshkarian said persons who visit the agency either have overcome their handicap and seek vocational direction, or are "angry" because they have not adjusted to their problems.

Last year, the agency helped rehabilitate 649 people. About 9,000 were rehabilitated statewide, including persons with psychotic, psychoneurotic, personality and behavioral disorders. Physical disabilities treated include the blind, the deaf, the speech impaired and the paraplegic.

KOSHKARIAN SAID his office handles about 900 ongoing cases, excluding another 300 referrals that must be assigned to the counselors. The referral sources include public schools, private physicians and individuals.

Once an individual is referred to the Division of Vocational Rehabilitation, the agency verifies the disability and provides vocational counseling and future training for jobs such as typing and stenography. Koshkarian said handicapped have been placed in jobs ranging from assembly-line tasks to teaching.

Successful rehabilitation can take from a few weeks to four to five years, Koshkarian said. "No rehabilitation is complete until an individual is employed or just as independent as anyone else," he said.

PTAs, school officials fight seniority-based staff cuts

State PTA and school officials are mounting a campaign this week to persuade Gov. Daniel Walker to veto legislation that would require school districts to cut their teaching staffs on a seniority basis.

The State Board of Education, the Illinois Assn. of School Boards and the Illinois PTA are opposing an amendment, a last minute addition to the heavily amended school aid formula bill sponsored by State Rep. Aaron Jaffe, D-Skokie. The amendment calls for school districts that must dismiss teachers because of declining enrollments or the elimination of courses to do so strictly on the basis of teacher seniority.

The state board has passed a resolution opposing the measure, stating the amendment strips school boards of local control.

State Board Member Carol Johnston of Des Plaines, who made the motion, said under the clause, no provision would be made for the relative skill, training or experience of teachers. Because the last teacher hired would be the first fired, school boards would be forced to dismiss many well qualified teachers, she said.

STATE SUPT. Joseph Cronin said the way teaching forces are reduced has become a serious issue in school systems nationally and would be a subject for local contract negotiations in many school districts.

Local school boards also oppose the amendment. Stuart Kisten, president of the Des Plaines Dist. 62 Board of Education, said, "We've sent some letters and telegrams to legislators already to let them know we're opposed to it. I would feel the legislature is usurping local power."

Kisten said he believes teachers should be retained "on the basis of their ability — not their longevity in the district."

William Henkel, a lobbyist for suburban school districts, said local boards and administrators "are all working independently" to defeat the amendment.

Henkel said the seniority clause "is unworkable. I think Walker will veto the bill."

THE ILLINOIS PTA has put out a "call to action" to units throughout the state asking them to telegraph the governor, supporting the state aid changes in the Jaffe bill but opposing the seniority clause.

Ruth Grundberg, legislative chairperson for the Arlington Heights Council of PTA, said, "The PTA believes that such decisions should be made by local school boards. If this provision becomes law, it could have a direct effect on the education of children. Competency would not be considered."

The Illinois Education Assn., a statewide teachers union, has criticized moves to defeat the amendment. Curtis Plott, executive secretary of the IEA, called the state board resolution "a blatant attack on those teachers who have given the better part of their lives to teaching Illinois school children."

"The seniority rights we won (with the amendment) will protect these more experienced teachers from the better-skilled and indiscriminate firings which have been the rule rather than the exception during the past year," Plott said.

Harold Seamon, executive director of the Illinois Assn. of School Boards, said the amendment "has thrown young teachers to the wolves." Seamon said school districts have been able to reduce teaching staffs by retaining teachers with the best qualifications for each assignment. "Seniority is necessarily one qualification — but only one," he said.

Walker, who is at the Democratic National Convention in New York, has given no indication on how he will treat the seniority clause in the bill, a Walker aide has said. Walker has the option of vetoing any part of the bill or the entire bill.

Inventory planned at Niles library

The Niles Public Library, 6960 Oakton St., Niles, will be closed for inventory Aug. 2-14.

A branch facility at 9010 Milwaukee Ave. will be open daily from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m., Monday through Thursday, from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m., Friday and Saturday and from 1 p.m. to 5 p.m. Sunday for library patrons.

Residents of Niles and parts of Des Plaines in the Niles Public Library District may use their cards at any member library of the North Suburban Library System.

Seniors' flu shot plan to be reviewed by panel

Plans to inoculate Maine Township senior citizens against swine flu in August will be reviewed Wednesday by a committee of health professionals and local officials.

The committee will meet at 7:30 p.m. in the Maine Township offices, 2510 Dempster St., Des Plaines. The public is invited to attend and volunteers are needed to help implement the program.

Chaired by Margaret Chiarelli of Holy Family Hospital, Des Plaines, the committee is formulating plans to inoculate about 12,000 senior citizens against the outbreak of the flu expected this fall and winter. Maine Township has been given the assignment by the Cook County Health Dept.

Those 65 and older will be given a vaccine different than the rest of the population. The vaccine, called bivalent, contains swine flu and a second strain called A/Victoria. It is designed for the elderly and those with chronic diseases, particularly cardiorespiratory and metabolic illnesses. Vaccine for general use will contain only the swine flu strain.

Other committee members include Margaret Wirsén, Maine Township auditor; George Demos, Brookwood Nursing Home; Mary Kay Morrissey, Niles senior citizens program; Samuel Tapson, Des Plaines senior citizen program; and Marcia Erickson, Maine Township social worker.

Blood drive set July 29 at library

The North Suburban Blood Center will conduct a blood drive July 29 at the Des Plaines Public Library, 841 Graceland Ave.

The drive will be from 10 a.m. to noon and 1 to 3 p.m. Persons wishing to donate blood can make an appointment by calling 297-1200, ext. 210.

Under the city's blood program, all residents and their immediate families are assured of receiving free blood replacement if 4 per cent of the city's population donate blood each year.

Residents and the immediate families of those who donate blood are guaranteed free blood replacement even if the city falls short of its goal. All city residents now are covered under the program.

In addition to the city blood program, there is a blood plan for groups and community organizations. Under that plan, all members of an organization and their families are eligible for blood replacement if 20 per cent of the members donate each year.

Donors must be 17 to 65 years old and in good health. Each donor is given a brief medical check and asked to fill out a questionnaire to determine eligibility. Males must weigh at least 125 pounds and females must be at least 110 pounds.

Persons are allowed to donate blood up to a maximum of five times a year.

Dist. 59 janitors get 7% pay hike

Custodians in Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 received a 7 per cent salary increase for the 1976-77 school year.

The school board Monday approved the 1976-77 contract for the Custodial-Maintenance Organization, which was approved by the union in June.

The contract calls for a 7 per cent salary increase for permanent employees and a 4.4 per cent salary increase for custodians on probation.

Hourly salary rates for full-time employees for the 1976-77 school year are: day and night custodians, $5.26; head custodians at elementary schools, $6.90; maintenance men, relief men and head custodians at junior high schools, $6.01.

Hourly salaries for custodians on probation will be: day and night custodians, $4.88; head custodians at elementary schools, $5.39; maintenance men, relief men and head custodians at junior high schools, $5.44.

Flamenco program at pavilion Friday

Flamenco dancer Pascual Olivera and his dance company will perform at 7:30 p.m. Friday at the Memorial Bank Pavilion at Lake Opeka, Lee and Howard Streets, Des Plaines.

The performance is part of the summer entertainment series at Lake Opeka sponsored by the Des Plaines Park District.

The performance is free.

Pet shops hold treasures

In need of a rare gift? Try some hungry piranhas

by JOE SWICKARD

There are piles of puppies, carloads of kittens, scads of snakes, gallons of guppies and oodles of eels.

If it crawls, slithers, swims, hops, runs, floats or flies, the odds are that some pet shop offers it for sale.

In a time when sharpies can make a bundle from selling pet rocks or invisible piranhas (actually empty aquariums), you'd better believe there is a market for the more traditional pets such as ferrets, rats, sungazer lizards, crabs, poisonous lion fish and armadillos, large and small.

Pals Pets, 17 N. Bothwell, Palatine, specializes in denizens of the deep. Customers entering the shop are greeted by a 4-foot blue ribbon eel peeking from a shell in a salt water aquarium.

THE EEL IS A tricky fellow, said

Scott Kriebel, a clerk at Pals Pets. Kriebel said a couple of other eels already have escaped from the aquarium.

"They can crawl away through a very small opening," he said, indicating a tiny gap in the aquarium lid where air hoses enter the tank.

For those of you who can't live without one of the eels, it will cost about $28 to take him home.

Then there is the snake head fish — an ugly brute who looks just like his name. The snake head's tank is covered and weighted down with a good sized stone — and not without reason, Kriebel said.

"He's a mean one. He eats other fish and he'll jump right out of the tank," he said. "This one's already gone through four owners and he's back here again." The charming native of India is available for $25.

A FISH WITH just a little better temperament is the lion fish with 13 poisonous dorsal spines. The sting of the fish causes reactions similar to those of bee stings in an hypersensitive person.

And who can forget the old standby of the Amazon? A pair of visible and voracious piranhas can be had for $25.

The Shasta Pet Center in the Brandenberry Plaza on Rand Road in Arlington Heights will sell you a desert swift for $20. The horny lizard chows down on meal worms and will stare affectionately at you with his beady little eyes.

For youngsters who have never known the thrill of hunting garter snakes with a mayonnaise jar, Shasta will sell one for $1.98.

Hermit crabs were offered at $1.98, but the shop has been sold out for about a month.

THE CRABS, LAND dwelling reptiles about the size of a half dollar, came into demand when the government cracked down on the sale of small turtles.

One enterprising pet shop owner in Ocean City, Md., treats his customers to a tape recording starring "Hermy the Crab," who beckons: "How'd you like to have a hermit in your house, one of America's favorite household pets?"

Hermy continues, "You can take them to school or put them in your purse and carry them to the opera."

Well, if an opera-going crab isn't your idea of an ideal companion, Pet World in the Randhurst Shopping Center has large and small armadillos instead.

With no mention of their tastes in music, large armadillos cost $17.95. The small fellows are a steal at $6.95.

NOAH'S ARK, 2430 E. Oakton St., Elk Grove Village, has a cage full of small, playful otter-like baby ferrets for only $44.95.

Sungazer lizards, parrots, a giant brilliant blue Hyacinth Macaw, and even crickets by the dozens are at Noah's Ark. And who could forget a cuddly mouse-fed ball python?

On second thought, those pet rocks and invisible piranhas aren't so odd after all.

Zettek has tough words for building moratorium

by TOM VON MALDER

"Until I'm assured there is no contribution to water and sewer problems, there will be no new development in this village — not even an outhouse."

Those words by Elk Grove Village Pres. Charles J. Zettek Wednesday signaled at least a partial victory for the 400 village residents who signed a petition requesting a building moratorium until village water problems are solved.

"The people I've talked to since the board meeting feel the board responded favorably to our concerns and our requests," Donald O. Meyer, 1379 Berkenshire Ln., said Wednesday. Meyer is the author of the petition which called for the building moratorium.

"I feel convinced the village board will act to control unabated rapid growth," Meyer said.

ZETTEK SAID it will be up to the village staff to convince him any project can be built without adding to the water and sewer problems. However, his feelings are not shared by all board members, if any, and the idea of a moratorium has yet to be tested.

Zettek made his comment during discussion of Joseph Arvidson's request to build 366 apartments on a 30-acre Devon Avenue site, west of Herkenshire Lane. Zettek did not vote on the matter and the other board members unanimously rejected it because the density was higher than the 100 single-family lots agreed to in the annexation agreement eight years ago.

Study of a possible moratorium will be conducted by the judiciary, planning and zoning committee. No meeting dates have been set. Village Mgr. Charles A. Willis said his staff is ready to research the question but is waiting for instructions from the committee, which may come next week.

Residents may register to ride in

At least one board member, Trustee Edward W. Kenna Jr., has said he feels a building moratorium would be "not really doing anything." Kenna said more building is not planned for the immediate future.

MOST BOARD members said if a moratorium were enacted, it should exclude the 134 homes and 102 commercial buildings currently under construction.

As for the residents, Meyer said they learned at the board meeting that Elk Grove Village must do some long-range planning to stop building from getting ahead of the water supply, as must other communities in the Northwest area which are drawing from the same underground water sources.

Meyer added he felt encouraged the village board would soon permit lawn sprinkling at last one day a week so the lawns will not die, a concern of the homeowners.

Zettek said the board would consider limited sprinkling if an additional well or two are returned to service. Seven of 10 wells are in operation now.

Ride-along plan continues to Aug. 27

The third annual Ride-Along Program sponsored by the Mount Prospect Police Dept., will continue through Aug. 27.

"We decided to make it a summer event because there is not enough manpower to utilize the program year-round," Police Chief Ralph J. Doney said Wednesday. "With the kids off from school, they have more opportunity to ride in the program and see how the police officers operate in the community."

First, participants are given a complete tour of the police department, 112 E. Northwest Hwy. "We give them background into what the police agency is all about," Doney said. "We show them all of the various aspects of the interdepartmental operations."

BEFORE TAKING the ride, groups are oriented to the patrol car. "The officer gives an explanation of the vehicle and the equipment used in it," Doney said. "Then they give instructions as to how police calls are answered."

Ride-Along participants never arrive on the scene at the time a crime is occurring because the police prefer not to expose them to danger.

"Everyone loves the Ride-Along Program," Doney said. He admitted, however, "They are disappointed they don't get into the action."

Approximately 30 people are scheduled for the program each weekend. There have been 101 participants to date in this year's program.

To ride in a patrol car, anyone interested must submit a record check to the police, sign a village release waiver form, or if under 18 have parents sign, and place a request 48 hours before the ride. Children under 14 must be accompanied by an adult.

"We encourage any citizen to take a ride," Doney said. "It is one of the greatest ways to bring the people and the police closer."

Fabish urges

Form own fire district; break from Wheeling

by BILL HURLEY

Edward Fabish, Buffalo Grove Village president Wednesday called for the village to disannex from the Wheeling Rural Fire Protection District and form its own fire department within a year.

"We would like to see it (fire protection) go municipal in the next year, but I honestly don't believe we could make the turnover in that length of time," he said.

Fabish said he has worked on three study committees looking into a possible municipal fire department and has found the biggest problem to be funding.

FABISH SAID A municipality cannot tax as high as a fire district unless a special referendum is passed by village residents. Such referendums have not been popular in Buffalo Grove in the past, he said.

Fabish said if the fire protection was transferred to a municipal operation, the costs would probably increase because it would be more difficult to find volunteer firemen.

Another problem in going municipal would be getting the Long Grove Fire district to disannex the Lake County portion of the village that it provides fire protection for. The district now levies a tax on Lake County Buffalo Grove residents and would be hurt by the loss of revenue. Fabish said there is a "jealous mistrust" between the two fire districts.

"As far as we're concerned, we're happy the way it is. We haven't had any problems," said Melvin Towner, Long Grove fire chief. He said Buffalo Grove would have to build another fire station if it formed a municipal department to give the same amount of service to northern Buffalo Grove, as it currently receives from Long Grove.

FABISH SAID IF Buffalo Grove could get the Long Grove and Wheeling fire districts to disannex the village area but fail to pass a tax referendum, it could consider forming a municipal fire district. Such a district would serve the entire village but would be a separate taxing body with the ability to tax at a higher rate than the village.

The Buffalo Grove Fire Dept., is large enough to protect the entire village although it is restricted to the Cook County portion, according to Buffalo Grove Fire Chief Wayne Winter.

"You're not going to have as efficient fire protection with three departments (the Vernon Rural Fire District covers a small northeast corner of the village) as you would with just one," Winter said.

"OUR DEPARTMENT is large enough to protect our town. Any other

Paramedic plan works, but not without cash woes

by LINDA PUNCH

The advent of paramedic service in the Wheeling Rural Fire Protection District has proved a godsend for residents and a headache for fire officials.

The rigid state requirements and guidelines that guarantee quality service for residents also create a financial crisis for the district. The fire districts answer — passage of an ambulance tax of up to 25 cents per $100 assessed valuation. The district will conduct a referendum on the issue Saturday.

Fire district officials said the ambulance tax is necessary to fund ambulance and paramedic service because general revenue funds can be used only for firefighting purposes. They note the demand for ambulance service has spiraled during the past years along with costs for providing the service.

THE FUNDING OF ambulance service is handled in a patchwork fashion in the district. Wheeling subsidizes the fire department by about $200,000 a year, which covers the service. Village officials also charge a $75 ambulance fee to nonresidents using the service.

During the period from May 1975 to April 1976, Wheeling paramedics answered 1,312 calls. Fire officials said calls this year are about 25 per cent ahead of last year. Wheeling Fire Chief Bernie Koeppen earlier this year said ambulance calls outnumbered fire calls by 2-1.

services which come from other districts is just duplication," he said.

Winter said money used to increase services in the Long Grove department to help cover much of Buffalo Grove is wasted. It could be used to improve services in the Buffalo Grove department if it was responsible for the entire village, he said.

Winter said there are no immediate efforts to create a municipal fire department which would be funded and operated by the village and serve within its boundaries. Buffalo Grove now has no responsibility for fire protection.

"It's a matter of economics. We're a growing village and officials need Koeppen said the operation of an ambulance, including salaries for six full-time paramedics, would cost about $173,276 a year. Wheeling firefighters double as paramedics on the village's two ambulances, reducing the over-all cost.

IN BUFFALO GROVE, donations and ambulance fees are the mainstay of the paramedic program. The village is unable to contribute tax funds to the department because it is a private corporation under contract to the fire district, a separate taxing body.

The Buffalo Grove department recently initiated a program in which families are guaranteed unlimited ambulance service for a $20 a year fee. Residents not enrolled in the program will be charged $70 per call.

Buffalo Grove Fire Chief Wayne Winter said he expects revenue totaling $32,000 from families enrolled in the program. He expects another $20,000 in ambulance fees from regular runs. The fire department budgeted $49,000 for paramedic and ambulance service for 1976. The Buffalo Grove department operates two ambulances.

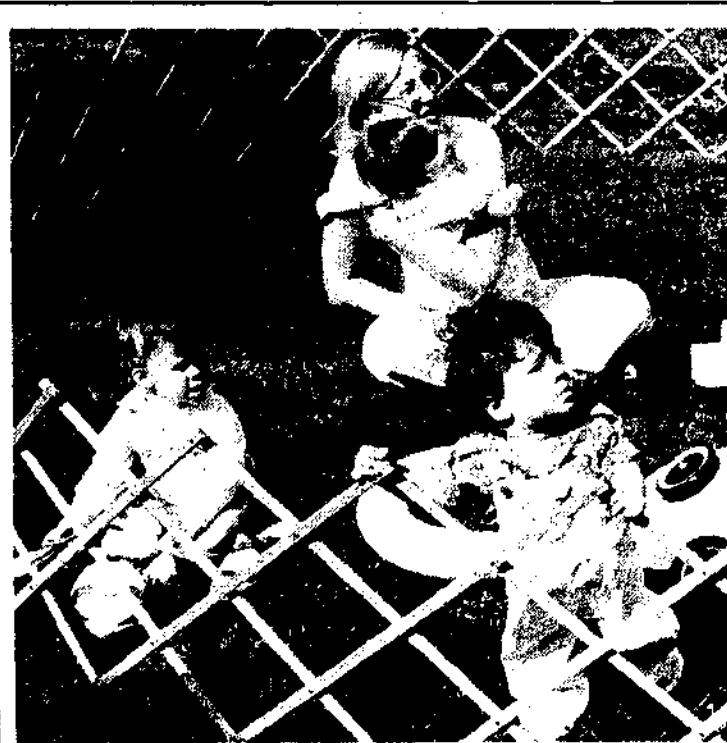

Ambulance calls in Buffalo Grove have more than quadrupled since paramedic service began 3½ years ago. Winter said his department answered a "little more than 600 calls" in 1975. He said demand will increase slightly this year. About 60 per cent of the total fire calls are for ambulance service.

money elsewhere. They figure they don't have to handle this thing right now. Their priorities are in other areas," Winter said.

THE ADVANTAGES of having one fire district for a village include better efficiency in fire protection and the use of money and lower fire insurance costs to residents.

Winter said a village covered by three fire districts is charged higher insurance costs because of poorer efficiency. He said insurance companies rate a village on over-all fire protection. A district with poor fire protection will offset the advantages of another district which has good cov-

Zoners may make changes

The role of the Buffalo Grove Appearance Control Commission is being undermined by a lack of communication with the village board, several commissioners have said.

Commission Chairman Richard Glauner told The Herald he is thinking of resigning to protest village board actions, which he says have frequently overturned the six-member commission recommendations.

Comm. Sherwin Rosenfeld said the commission is unable to get its work done properly because of a lack of board cooperation.

Other members of the commission said they would like to see better guidelines defining the commission's duties and for the board to appoint a liaison to improve inter-agency communication.

VILLAGE PRES. Edward Fabish said he is looking into the possibility of appointing a liaison and should decide by Monday. He said there is a "good possibility" he will serve as a liaison.

The commission is one of three village board advisory bodies. It is the only one not created under state statutes, and the only definition of its duties comes from the village ordinance which created it. Some commission members, however, say the ordinance is vague.

The commission composed primarily of professional architects and landscapers, is designed to review all development plans within the village. Members judge the esthetics and make recommendations for improving the appearance. If developers refuse its recommendations, the commission might advise the board to turn down the project.

But commissioners say without the backing of the board, developers will not listen to the commission. Too often, they say, the board approves architectural plans against their recommendations.

"WHAT'S THE committee recommending for if nobody's listening?" said Glauner. "I don't want more power, I want the board to put more confidence in us."

"The impression I have is that this is a communications problem. I'm not sure the village board is aware of how we're trying to operate," said Comm. Scott Butler.

"I don't blame them for not knowing the difference between poor and excellent plans. They don't have the expertise to measure it in fine detail," he said.

"Good cooperation between the village board and village staff where we can sit down and work these things out could solve the problem," Glauner said.

ROSENFELD SAID the commission needs a clearer definition of its func-

The Buffalo Grove Zoning Board of Appeals has been granted authority to make minor changes in zoning ordinances without village board approval.

The village board voted 4-2 to allow the zoning board to give final approval to variations in yard size or in the building of fences that do not conform to village ordinances.

Previously, all zoning requests were required to have plan commission hearings and village board approval. The hearings are still required.

THE BOARD voted to allow any person objecting to a proposed zoning change to appeal the zoning board's actions to the village board.

Trustee Clarice Rech said she voted against the change because she supports strict control on any variance.

"A variance is a special category. I generally don't like them period," she said.

Trustee Dorothy Carroll also voted against the proposal.

The amended ordinance permits the zoning board to authorize variations for yards no more than 33 per cent smaller than required by zoning ordinances, lots no more than 15 per cent smaller in width than required and fences no more than six feet high.

Major zoning changes that would authorize construction or expansion of a business or industry still need approval by the village board.

Reduction seen in road taxes in Wheeling Twp.

Wheeling Township residents will pay less in road and bridge taxes next year because the recent incorporation of Prospect Heights is slicing the township's road maintenance responsibilities in half.

Highway Comr. Arthur Olsen said he must adjust the Wheeling Township Road and Bridge District's 1976-77 budget to account for the incorporation of the new city earlier this year. The current budget is $645,263.

Prospect Heights formerly comprised 60 per cent of the roads maintained by the township road and bridge district in unincorporated areas. The district has discontinued regular service to Prospect Heights since it became a city in January. The district currently is providing only emergency road maintenance for a charge.

OLSEN SAID A reduction in regular road maintenance expenses will result in a change in this year's budget and future tax levies.

"We plan to delete line item costs for the road work we had planned to do in Prospect Heights from this year's budget, which will result in some savings. But, there are fixed costs that we have that will not change because of the incorporation," Olsen said.

"It will mean that we will decrease the road and bridge tax levy beginning next year (1977-78) because we will not have the need for as much revenue," he said.

The road district will conduct a special meeting at 7:30 p.m. Aug. 31 at the Wheeling Township Hall, 1818 E. Northwest Hwy., Arlington Heights.

OLSEN SAID HE does not know how much the district's road and bridge tax levy will decrease. Wheeling Township residents currently pay about 10 cents per $100 equalized assessed valuation, or about $10 in annual road and bridge taxes for the owner of a house assessed at $10,000.

Municipalities located in Wheeling Township receive one half of the road and bridge tax funds collected by the district each year.

"The incorporation will have no effect on the taxes being received this year because those funds are paying for road and bridge work that was done during the last fiscal year," Olsen said.

In need of a rare gift? Try some hungry piranhas

by JOE SWICKARD

There are piles of puppies, carloads of kittens, sacks of snakes, gallons of guppies and oodles of eels.

If it crawls, slithers, swims, hops, runs, floats or flies, the odds are that some pet shop offers it for sale.

In a time when sharpies can make a bundle from selling pet rocks or invisible piranhas (actually empty aquariums), you'd better believe there is a market for the more traditional pets such as ferrets, rats, sungazer lizards, crabs, poisonous lion fish and armadillos, large and small.

Pals Pets 17 N. Bothwell, Palatine, specializes in denizens of the deep. Customers entering the shop are greeted by a 4-foot blue ribbon eel peeking from a shell in a salt water aquarium.

THE EEL IS A tricky fellow, said Scott Kriebel, a clerk at Pals Pets.

Appearance board seeks defined duties

He said the board has criticized the commission for dealing with functions usually handled by other agencies.

Comr. Dennis Gramm said he sees no problems in village board cooperation. "By and large the board has done a fine job in accepting and reviewing our recommendations," he said.

Comr. Philip Lembo said he is resigning soon, but not because of commission problems. He said his workload is too heavy for him to devote time to the commission.

"This commission started out as a merely advisory capacity and was never intended to be anything stronger than that," he said.

Kriebel said a couple of other eels already have escaped from the aquarium.

"They can crawl away through a very small opening," he said, indicating a tiny gap in the aquarium lid where air hoses enter the tank.

For those of you who can't live without one of the eels, it will cost about $28 to take him home.

Then there is the snake head fish — an ugly brute who looks just like his name. The snake head's tank is covered and weighted down with a good sized stone — and not without reason, Kriebel said.

"He's a mean one. He eats other fish and he'll jump right out of the tank," he said. "This one's already gone through four owners and he's back here again." The charming native of India is available for $25.

A FISH WITH just a little better temperament is the lion fish with 13 poisonous dorsal spines. The sting of the fish causes reactions similar to those of bee stings in an hypersensitive person.

And who can forget the old standby of the Amazon? A pair of visible and voracious piranhas can be had for $25.

The Shasta Pet Center in the Brandenberry Plaza on Rand Road in Arlington Heights will sell you a desert swift for $20. The horny lizard chows down on meal worms and will stare affectionately at you with his beady little eyes.

For youngsters who have never known the thrill of hunting garter snakes with a mayonnaise jar, Shasta will sell one for $1.98.

Hermit crabs were offered at $1.98, but the shop has been sold out for about a month.

THE CRABS, LAND dwelling reptiles about the size of a half dollar, came into demand when the government cracked down on the sale of small turtles.

One enterprising pet shop owner in Ocean City, Md. treats his customers to a tape recording starring "Hermie the Crab," who beckons "How'd you like to have a hermit in your house, one of America's favorite household pets?"

Hermie continues "You can take them to school or put them in your purse and carry them to the opera."

Well, if an opera going crab isn't your idea of an ideal companion, Pet World in the Randhurst Shopping Center has large and small armadillos instead.

With no mention of their tastes in music, large armadillos cost $17.95. The small fellows are a steal at $6.95.

NOAH'S ARK, 2430 E. Oakton St., Elk Grove Village, has a cage full of small playful otter-like baby ferrets for only $44.95.

Sungazer lizards parrots a giant brilliant blue Hyacinth Macaw and even crickets by the dozens are at Noah's Ark. And who could forget a cuddly mouse fed ball python?

On second thought, those pet rocks and invisible piranhas aren't so odd after all.

Society hinders mobility of disabled: official

by MARSHA S. BOSLEY

The handicapped population has been hindered from making a "normal transition into the working world," said Norman Koshkarian, casework supervisor for the Illinois Division of Vocational Rehabilitation.

Serving 59 suburbs in north and northwest Cook County, the rehabilitation office, 1030 Prospect Plaza, Mount Prospect, is one of 30 agencies of its kind throughout the state. It is funded 80 per cent by the federal government and 20 per cent in the state.

Koshkarian and nine full-time counselors trained in the social sciences work with the physically and emotionally disabled who are vocationally handicapped. "We try to prepare the individual to enter into a working situation where his handicap will not cut short his career," Koshkarian said.

The agency aids the congenitally handicapped as well as those persons who became disabled later in life. Koshkarian said the agency strives to place the handicapped back into society where they can feel they are of value. "In essence, they have been discriminated against, for example, by virtue of architectural barriers in society," he said.

ABOUT 10 PER cent of the U.S. population is disabled. "The problem is that the total population many times is unaware of this part of the population," Koshkarian said. Like the alcoholic population, we don't see all of them. Not all of them seek treatment. Not everybody wants rehabilitation services.

Koshkarian said persons who visit the agency either have overcome their handicap and seek vocational direction, or are "angry" because they have not adjusted to their problems.

Last year, the agency helped rehabilitate 649 people. About 9,000 were rehabilitated statewide, including persons with psychotic, psychoneurotic, personality and behavioral disorders. Physical disabilities treated include the blind, the deaf, the speech impaired and the paraplegic.

Lake County seeks $99,000 plan grant

An application for a $99,000 planning grant to update the Lake County comprehensive plan was approved Tuesday by the county board.

The county will pay $69,000 over a two-year period and the federal government $30,000 if the grant application is approved.

KOSHKARIAN SAID his office handles about 900 ongoing cases, excluding another 300 referrals that must be assigned to the counselors. The referral sources include public schools, private physicians and individuals.

Once an individual is referred to the Division of Vocational Rehabilitation, the agency verifies the disability and provides vocational counseling and future training for jobs such as typing and stenography. Koshkarian said handicapped have been placed in jobs ranging from assembly-line tasks to teaching.

Successful rehabilitation can take from a few weeks to four to five years, Koshkarian said. "No rehabilitation is complete until an individual is employed or just as independent as anyone else," he said.

Dist. 125 chief search narrows to 2 candidates

High School Dist. 125 has narrowed down its candidates for superintendent to two persons, Board Pres. W. Mike Swanson said Wednesday.

Swanson said the board will probably choose a superintendent for the Stevenson High School district by Monday. He said, however, an announcement will not be made until the new school chief has signed a contract with the district.

The board has been conducting interviews with candidates to fill the vacancy created by former Supt. Harold Banser's resignation in March.

Banser resigned under fire March 29 stating, "Strong differences of opinion have developed between some members of the board of education and myself which are seriously affecting the education of our students, the morale of the faculty and the everyday work of many dedicated people."

Harold L. Richards, retired superintendent from Blue Island High School Dist. 125, has served as interim superintendent since Banser's resignation became effective in June.

Boards combine to form panel on environment

The Lake County Regional Planning Dept. and the Zoning Board of Appeals have been combined to form the Dept. of Planning, Zoning and Environmental Quality.

The reorganization, proposed by new Planning Director Lane Kendig, is designed to compensate for the high staff turnover in the planning department in the past year.

The reorganization also includes raises for almost everyone in the two departments ranging from $50 to $175 per month.

PLANNING, BUILDING and Zoning Committee Chairman F. T. "Mike" Graham said there has been an almost complete turnover in staff in the department in the past year.

The new department will be able to better utilize a handful of key zoning people with experience, according to Kendig.

An emergency appropriation of $36,900 for the regional planning budget also was approved as a part of the reorganization.

Kendig said he found a $4,900 deficit in the planning department when he took over a month ago. Other items in the emergency appropriation included $16,500 to hire part-time help to complete a housing survey in the county;

- $3,900 for travel expenses related to the housing survey.
- $5,500 to increase department salaries to a competitive level.
- $3,600 as salary for a housing analysis director.
- $2,500 for part time help to get other projects started.

The housing survey is a part of the community block development grant program from the U.S. Dept. of Housing and Urban Development. Kendig said the county is a year behind on the survey, which will evaluate the condition of all the housing in the county.

OTHER DUTIES OF the new department are updating the county's regional plan, preparing a waste water survey under contract to the Northeastern Illinois Planning Commission, preparing planning contracts with local communities and plat reviews.

County Board Member Frank Tersar questioned the salary raises in the new department.

"Will this cause problems with other county employees? We limited everyone else to a $300-a-year raise at budget time," Tersar said.

Graham said the higher salaries were to help resolve the problem of high turnover.

Members of the zoning board of appeals said they were concerned about combining the two departments because they feared they would lose their independence to the county board, Graham said.

Graham said the department revision could be reversed in four months if it is not satisfactory.

Fabish urges disannex from fire district

erage, he said.

Fabish said another problem is that new residents don't know who to call in a village served by three fire districts. "If they call the wrong department, there's going to be some delay," he said.

Officials of the Wheeling fire district met this week with representatives of Wheeling, Buffalo Grove and Prospect Heights and concluded the district has a limited future.

WHEELING HAS TRIED to disannex to form its own department, but the district has so far refused to allow the disannexation.

Wheeling Village Pres. Ted C. Scanlon said it is time for Wheeling, Prospect Heights and Buffalo Grove to break from the rural district and form their own departments.

Prospect Heights Mayor Richard Wolf said his city is "not prepared" for a municipal department.

"If Wheeling pulls out and we pull out, Prospect Heights is going to have one hell of a problem," Fabish said. He said that is something for the village board to consider.

Paddock Olympic tryouts July 20

The Wheeling Park District will hold its annual Paddock Olympic trials from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. Tuesday at Heritage Park, 222 S. Wolf Rd.

The trials are for children 8-13 years old who are residents of the park district. There is no advance registration necessary but participants should be at the park before 9 a.m.

The park district will choose an Olympic team in the 50-yard dash, jump rope, 100-yard dash, tug-of-war, team relays, kickball, standing long jump and the softball throw.

Tennis and softball participants will be chosen at a later date. For further information, call Chuck LaRocco at 537-2222.

UNCHEDULED PAINT JOB. Eastbound traffic on Dundee Road near Elmhurst Road was delayed for about 50 minutes Wednesday as Wheeling public works crews cleaned up bright green paint which had spilled on to the street about noon. The paint poured from a 55-gallon barrel which apparently had rolled off an unidentified truck. Sand was used in an attempt to absorb the paint.

Courses in Latin and photography have been added to the curriculum at Stevenson High School in Prairie View for the 1976-77 school year.

A first-year Latin course will be offered next fall to about 20 students, said Principal William Papke. Papke said the course, which was dropped from the curriculum several years ago, will be offered again because of a "rebirth in Latin-based grammar study."

The Latin course, open to all students from all grades, will be taught by new language teacher Lezek Wolowski, Papke said.

A PHOTOGRAPHY course for beginning and intermediate students also will begin this fall. Papke said 26 students have registered for the beginning course and 11 students are enrolled in the intermediate level.

Stevenson has sponsored a photography club in the past but Papke said the new class will not be a "hobby course." It will be a vocationally-oriented program, covering different aspects of graphics, he said.

The course was offered last year on an independent study basis but this will be the first time photography is part of the regular curriculum, Papke said.

The school also considered adding a music appreciation course to next year's schedule, but too few students registered. The course was intended to "fill the gap" in music instruction outside of the performing area, Papke said.

The principal said the music appreciation course should be offered and it is possible it will be included in the second semester offerings.

Stevenson in the fall will begin offering proficiency tests in foreign languages. Students who have completed French or Spanish courses in junior high school may take an examination to skip the first year of the language on the high school level. Students who enter Stevenson from other schools also are eligible to take the proficiency exams, Papke said.

Friday deadline for absentee ballots

Absentee ballots for Saturday's ambulance tax referendum in the Wheeling Rural Fire Protection District are available at the Buffalo Grove Fire station, 505 W. Dundee Rd., Buffalo Grove, until 5 p.m. Friday.

Ballots may be picked up at the station from 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Residents' victory

Zettek has tough words for building moratorium

by TOM VON MALDER
Until I'm assured there is no contribution to water and sewer problems there will be no new development in this village — not even an outhouse.
Those words by Elk Grove Village Pres Charles J. Zettek Wednesday signaled at least a partial victory for the 100 village residents who signed a petition requesting a building moratorium until village water problems are solved.
The people I've talked to since the board meeting feel the board responded favorably to our concerns, and our requests," Donald O. Meyer, 179 Berkshire Ln., said Wednesday. Meyer is the author of the petition which called for the building moratorium.
"I feel convinced the village board will act to control unabated rapid growth," Meyer said.

ZETTEK SAID it will be up to the village staff to convince him any project can be built without adding to the water and sewer problems. However, his feelings are not shared by all board members, if any, and the idea of a moratorium has yet to be tested.
Zettek made his comment during discussion of Joseph Arvidson's request to build 366 apartments on a 30-acre Devon Avenue site, west of Berkshire Lane. Zettek did not vote on the matter and the other board members unanimously rejected it because the density was higher than the 100 single family lots agreed to in the annexation agreement eight years ago.
Study of a possible moratorium will be conducted by the judiciary, planning and zoning committee. No meeting dates have been set. Village Manager Charles A. Willis said his staff is ready to research the question but is waiting for instructions from the committee which may come next week.

At least one board member, Trustee Edward W. Kenna Jr., has said he feels a building moratorium would be "not really doing anything." Kenna said more building is not planned for the immediate future.
MOST BOARD members said if a moratorium were enacted, it should exclude the 134 homes and 102 commercial buildings currently under construction.
As for the residents, Meyer said they learned at the board meeting that Elk Grove Village must do some long-range planning to stop building from getting ahead of the water supply, as must other communities in the Northwest area which are drawing from the same underground water sources.
Meyer added he felt encouraged the village board would soon permit lawn sprinkling at last one day a week so the lawns will not die, a concern of the homeowners.
Zettek said the board would consider limited sprinkling if an additional well or two are returned to service. Seven of 10 wells are in operation now.

Vanderweel 'tired,' will not run again in April

by TOM VON MALDER
Elk Grove Village Trustee Nanci L. Vanderweel, saying she is "tired," will not seek reelection in April.
I've just come to the conclusion I want to step aside. I guess I've gotten tired over the years," said Mrs. Vanderweel, 19, a six year member of the village board.
Mrs. Vanderweel has talked of not seeking reelection for several weeks but it was not until Tuesday night's often emotional meeting with some 300 village residents over the village's water problems that she made public her intention not to run again.
IN RESPONSE to a woman heckler who accused the board members of making thousands of dollars from their official duties, Mrs. Vanderweel said "I only make $35.82 every month clear and you are going to get that back in April." She then said anyone in the audience would be welcome to run for her seat.
Mrs. Vanderweel confirmed Wednesday that she meant that as her public announcement. "I've had that direction (to not run again) for a couple of months," she said.
The community blood program is the one contribution I've made which I'm most proud of," Mrs. Vanderweel said. "I have made day-to-day contributions too. I have participated in the government."
BEFORE BEING elected to the village board for a two-year term in 1971, Mrs. Vanderweel served on the plan commission and former Village Pres Jack Pahl's presidential task force. She also served on the Mark Hopkins School PTSA, including two years as vice president.

Mrs. Vanderweel's announcement marks the second time she has announced her campaign intention's early. She was the first village board member to announce she would seek reelection in the 1973 campaign, making the announcement in November 1972. In the 1973 election, she was the high vote getter among trustees with 1,962 votes.
Also in 1973, Mrs. Vanderweel was named "Citizen of the Year" by the Elk Grove Village Jaycees, who cited her work organizing and operating the village blood drive.
Also cited was her work with the Horizons '75 committee in planning the village's 20th birthday celebration, Sunday, and her duties as a member of the Girl Scout Council board of directors.
She has lived in the village 13 years.

House burglars sought by police

Elk Grove Village police are still seeking burglars who took about $930 in household merchandise from an Elk Grove home Monday.
The burglars used an unknown tool to enter through a rear kitchen door at the Wayne Daszek residence, 636 Carroll Sq. between 11 a.m. and 9:45 p.m. Monday, police said.
Daszek told police he received two phone calls earlier in the day in which the caller hung up before speaking, police said.

Four face liquor possession charges

Four persons were arrested and charged Tuesday night in Friendship Park, Des Plaines, for possession of alcohol.
Arrested were Steven A. Morry, 17, of 276 King Ln., Des Plaines; John C. Meyers, 19, of 146 S. Danbury, Des Plaines; John S. Pischke, 18, of 330 Beau Dr., Des Plaines; and JoAnn Stubbs, 19, of 1210 Crabtree, Mount Prospect.
According to police reports, police noticed Morry walking in the park area with a can of beer and the other persons drinking beer in a vehicle in the park.

1,136 house alterations face Centex

Centex Homes Corp. will begin modifying furnaces and hot water heaters in 1,136 Elk Grove Village homes for safety reasons July 26.

Jack McDonald, Centex executive vice president, told the village board Tuesday the firm would start with the 412 residences that need new venting equipment. That phase of the work will be completed Sept. 15.

McDonald estimated it would take an additional 120 days to install fire resistant material in 833 homes. He said residents would be notified by mail when their work is scheduled.

The village board unanimously accepted the Centex proposals to correct subcontractors' violations of the village building codes and prevent potential fires and carbon monoxide leaks. The proposals come after three years of study and testing.

Centex officials would not give village officials any estimate for the modification program, but Zettek said "I'm sure it will go to several hundred thousand dollars." Homeowners will not have to pay for the modifications.

The furnace and hot water heater problems were discovered when furnace heat exchangers began to fail. There were an estimated 1,700 furnace failures in homes built between 1962 and 1974 by Centex.

Marvin Salzenstein, president of Polytechnic Inc., Chicago, said the Centex proposal was "the best possible program." Polytechnic is the village's consultant on the furnace issue.

Dist. 59 janitors get 7% pay hike

Custodians in Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 received a 7 per cent salary increase for the 1976-77 school year.

The school board Monday approved the 1976-77 contract for the Custodial-Maintenance Organization, which was approved by the union in June.

The contract calls for a 7 per cent salary increase for permanent employees and a 44 per cent salary increase for custodians on probation.

Hourly salary rates for full-time employees for the 1976-77 school year are: day and night custodians, $5.26; head custodians at elementary schools, $5.90; maintenance men, relief men and head custodians at junior high schools, $6.01.

Hourly salaries for custodians on probation will be: day and night custodians, $4.88; head custodians at elementary schools, $5.39; maintenance men, relief men and head custodians at junior high schools, $5.44.

Case goes to appellate court

Village rejects Jaworski plea

The Elk Grove Village Board has rejected an attempt by Patrolman William Jaworski's attorney to disregard the June 23 court order placing Jaworski in a desk job rather than full active duty.

Jaworski said Wednesday his attorney, Elliott Samuels, will file an appeal with the Illinois Appellate Court seeking to overturn the lower court's action.

"I want to be put back in the work I should be doing or brought up on charges," Jaworski said. "You can't be half a police officer. You either are one or you're not."

SAMUELS, BY LETTER, requested the village board to return Jaworski to the inactive status which existed prior to Circuit Court Judge Raymond K. Berg's ruling and to restore the rights all parties had at that time. He said Jaworski would then agree to withdraw his suit and not to file an appeal.

"I believe this proposed settlement is a fair and equitable method of avoiding future costly litigation in the Illinois Appellate Court," Samuels wrote. "This proposal represents a substantial compromise on the part of my client and is made in good faith."

The board Tuesday refused Samuels' request, affirming Berg's order which permits Jaworski to wear his badge and uniform but not his gun and which suggests he be given "clerical duties."

Jaworski currently is assigned to the police records department.

Jaworski, 33, had been on inactive duty, but with full $1,328 monthly pay, since he shot a Mount Prospect man in the stomach while investigating a pre-dawn traffic accident April 5, 1975. The victim, Timothy Engelson, 19, has filed a $1 million civil suit against Jaworski and the village.

THE JUNE HEARING had been on a lawsuit filed by Jaworski which sought to force the village to either reinstate him to full duty or to bring charges against him before the fire and police commission.

Jaworski said he considers his filing job to be "still punitive action. I don't care for this type of work. It was not the work I applied for but I'll give them my best."

Jaworski also said the reason for his trying to force the village to clarify his job status now is that he fears the civil suit might last another two to three years.

"I don't want to have to wait two or three years," he said. "I've been under a constant shroud. People look at you cross-eyed and wonder."

Seniority teacher cut fight begins

State PTA and school officials are mounting a campaign this week to persuade Gov. Daniel Walker to veto legislation that would require school districts to cut their teaching staffs on a seniority basis.

The State Board of Education, the Illinois Assn. of School Boards and the Illinois PTA are opposing an amendment, a last minute addition to the heavily amended school aid formula bill sponsored by State Rep. Aaron Jaffe, D-Skokie. The amendment calls for school districts that must dismiss teachers because of declining enrollments or the elimination of courses to do so strictly on the basis of teacher seniority.

The state board has passed a resolution opposing the measure, stating the amendment strips school boards of local control.

State Board Member Carol Johnston of Des Plaines, who made the motion, said under the clause, no provision would be made for the relative skill, training or experience of teachers. Because the last teacher hired would be the first fired, school boards would be forced to dismiss many well qualified teachers, she said.

STATE SUPT. Joseph Cronin said the way teaching forces are reduced has become a serious issue in school systems nationally and would be a subject for local contract negotiations in many school districts.

Local school boards also oppose the amendment. Stuart Kisten, president of the Des Plaines Dist. 62 Board of Education, said, "We've sent some letters and telegrams to legislators already to let them know we're opposed to it. I would feel the legislature is usurping local power."

Kisten said he believes teachers should be retained "on the basis of their ability — not their longevity in the district."

William Henkel, a lobbyist for suburban school districts, said local boards and administrators "are all working independently" to defeat the amendment.

Henkel said the seniority clause "is unworkable. I think Walker will veto the bill."

THE ILLINOIS PTA has put out a "call to action" to units throughout the state asking them to telegraph the governor, supporting the state aid changes in the Jaffe bill but opposing the seniority clause.

Ruth Grundberg, legislative chairperson for the Arlington Heights Council of PTA, said, "The PTA believes that such decisions should be made by local school boards. If this provision becomes law, it could have a direct effect on the education of children. Competency would not be considered."

Dist. 54 seeks 2nd opinion on parent-paid lunch plan

by PAM BIGFORD
Is it legal for a school district to run a lunch program and charge parents a fee to allow their children to remain at school for lunch?

After months of controversy, while the board of education agonized over providing a program and parents protested that they were being charged too much, no one in Schaumburg Township dist. 54 is sure the district cannot run its own program after all.

The board and administration thought it illegal for the district to run a parent-paid lunch program, and asked a parent corporation to take over the program.

Parents pointed out, however, that neighboring school districts are providing lunch supervision and charging parents a fee, so Dist. 54 is turning to legal counsel for another opinion.

PARENTS SAY they could pay a smaller lunch supervision fee if the program were handled by the district. The parent corporation has to pay its own insurance, bookkeeping, taxes and corporation salaries — costs the district would not have to pay.

The board this spring eliminated a district-paid lunch program to save $70,000 and avoid a budget deficit predicted for 1976-77.

Parents, particularly working ones, asked the board to provide some type of parent-paid lunch program so their children would be able to remain at school during lunch.

The administration told the board the district attorney's opinion was that it is illegal for the district to run a program and charge parents a fee. However, the opinion stated it might not be illegal to allow a parent not-for-profit corporation to run a lunch program and charge the parents a fee to cover the cost of supervision.

AN OPINION from the Illinois Office of Education confirmed that it is legal for the district to allow a parent corporation to operate a lunch program. The opinion did not mention the legality of allowing the district to run the program.

Supt. Wayne Schaible said the district was operating under a legal opinion, given to the administration some years earlier, that it was illegal to charge fees to parents for services such as textbooks that the district required the children to have.

In June, the board approved a program run by a parent corporation headed by Rosemarie Sells that would charge parents whose children live less than 1.5 miles from school $35 for each child who remains at school during lunch.

MRS. SELLS TOLD parents that the $35 fee was necessary to cover not only supervisors' salaries but also insurance, bookkeeping and taxes, which are costs that would be absorbed by the district if the district has been allowed to run the program.

Parents called neighboring school districts and found that some were operating their own lunch programs and charging parents supervisory fees, all of which were less than $35. Opinions from the other districts' attorneys stated this type of lunch programs were legal.

Board Pres. Arlene Czajkowski said the administration now is checking with legal counsel at the Illinois Office of Education and at the Cook County Schools Superintendent's Office to determine whether there is some type of program the district could run and still charge the parents a fee.

MRS. CZAJKOWSKI SAID the board previously believed it was illegal to charge parents for a required service, but that it might be different if children were allowed to choose between going home and paying a fee.

At an informational meeting on the $35 per child lunch program Tuesday night, questions on various concerns were answered:

• Mrs. Sells said parents will be charged the full $35 fee for each of their first two children in the lunch program, but will be charged only $17.50 for the third child, and will not be charged for additional children.

• The work schedule for lunch supervisors is very flexible, Mrs. Sells said, and parents who would like to work as supervisors to pay the fee and earn some money are welcome. She said arrangements can be made to have parents work only two days a week or to be put on the substitute list if they wished to work less frequently.

• Mrs. Czajkowski said the district will be paying the parent corporation $35 per child for the children who are required to be bused to school by the district.

• Mrs. Czajkowski said crossing guards and safety patrol persons will be on duty at lunchtime so children can walk home safely.

• The district asked Mrs. Sells to provide one supervisor for every 39 children, to provide a safer situation than was possible in 1975-76 when the number of children per supervisor was higher. Board member Margaret Pageler said the board has been attempting to improve on safety each year, and that the principals recommended the children eat in classrooms which hold 30 children or less.

• Mrs. Czajkowski said the $35 fee is "approximate." She said Mrs. Sells cannot charge more than $35 without coming back to the board, but if by registration cost figures change, less than $35 will be charged.

by JOE SWICKARD
There are piles of puppies, carloads of kittens, scads of snakes, gallons of guppies and oodles of eels.

If it crawls, slithers, swims, hops, runs, floats or flies, the odds are that some pet shop offers it for sale.

In a time when sharpies can make a bundle from selling pet rocks or invisible piranhas (actually empty aquariums), you'd better believe there is a market for the more traditional pets such as ferrets, rats, sungazer lizards, crabs, poisonous lion fish and armadillos, large and small.

Pals Pets, 17 N. Bothwell, Palatine, specializes in denizens of the deep. Customers entering the shop are greeted by a 4-foot blue ribbon eel peeking from a shell in a salt water aquarium.

THE EEL IS A tricky fellow, said Scott Kriebel, a clerk at Pals Pets. Kriebel said a couple of other eels already have escaped from the aquarium.

"They can crawl away through a very small opening," he said, indicating a tiny gap in the aquarium lid where air hoses enter the tank.

For those of you who can't live without one of the eels, it will cost about $28 to take him home.

Then there is the snake head fish — an ugly brute who looks just like his name. The snake head tank is covered and weighted down with a good sized stone — and not without reason, Kriebel said.

"He's a mean one. He eats other fish and he'll jump right out of the tank," he said. "This one's already gone through four owners and he's back here again." The charming native of India is available for $25.

A FISH WITH just a little better temperament is the lion fish with 13 poisonous dorsal spines. The sting of the fish causes reactions similar to those of bee stings in an hypersensitive person.

And who can forget the old standby of the Amazon? A pair of visible and voracious piranhas can be had for $25.

The Shasta Pet Center in the Brandenberry Plaza on Rand Road in Arlington Heights will sell you a desert swift for $20. The horny lizard chows down on meal worms and will stare affectionately at you with his beady little eyes.

For youngsters who have never known the thrill of hunting garter snakes with a mayonnaise jar, Shasta will sell one for $1.98.

Hermit crabs were offered at $1.98, but the shop has been sold out for about a month.

THE CRABS, LAND dwelling reptiles about the size of a half dollar, came into demand when the government cracked down on the sale of small turtles.

One enterprising pet shop owner in Ocean City, Md., treats his customers to a tape recording starring "Hermie the Crab," who beckons: "How'd you like to have a hermit in your house, one of America's favorite household pets?"

Hermie continues, "You can take them to school or put them in your purse and carry them to the opera."

Well, if an opera-going crab isn't your idea of an ideal companion, Pet World in the Randhurst Shopping Center has large and small armadillos instead.

With no mention of their tastes in music, large armadillos cost $17.95. The small fellows are a steal at $6.95.

NOAH'S ARK, 2430 E. Oakton St., Elk Grove Village, has a cage full of small, playful otter-like baby ferrets for only $44.95.

Sungazer lizards, parrots, a giant brilliant blue Hyacinth Macaw, and even crickets by the dozens are at Noah's Ark. And who could forget a cuddly mouse-fed ball python?

On second thought, those pet rocks and invisible piranhas aren't so odd after all.

Arvidson project gets thumbs down

The Elk Grove Village Board has rejected unanimously Joseph Arvidson's request to build 366 apartments on a 30-acre site at Devon Avenue west of Berkenshire Lane.

The board objected Tuesday to the project's density, although Trustee Edward W. Kenna Jr. also said there were "all sorts of unanswered questions" about the proposed Silver Streams development.

The property is surrounded by single-family zoning on three sides, and the original annexation agreement called for the construction of 100 homes, the board said.

"I think there are so many unanswered questions," Kenna said. "I don't see any gain to us as a village or to the people who live around there. I have to say no. I see no reason to have anything other than single family. I do not think this zoning is justified."

KENNA DESCRIBED the board's continued fights against high density zoning on the Arvidson property and two other nearby sites, the Parkway Development and Joseph Zizzo properties, when Cook County zoning hearings were held. All three properties later became part of the Devon-53 plan, which eventually was rejected by the village as being too dense.

Kenna said to grant Arvidson the requested density would repudiate all the village's earlier battles and would create a situation where the "domino theory" could operate.

Kenna said one parcel after another would be zoned for apartments. He said the village always tries to isolate apartment complexes by surrounding them with other types of zoning.

Arvidson accused the village of delaying procedures eight years ago. Without the delay the 100 homes originally planned "already would have been built," he said. He said new Metropolitan Sanitary District storm water retention requirements would eliminate 24 to 40 of the original home lots.

"WE'VE GOT OVER $600,000 in that property," Arvidson said. "I've worked hard (to come up with an acceptable plan) and am asking you to give me a fair shake."

Arvidson conceded that the land could be profitably developed if he could get the 100 original lots back. He asked the village board for help in such an effort.

"I don't want this board sitting down with any developer and resolving his problems," Village Pres. Charles J. Zettek said. "If this board put in as much as one hour, our reputation would be soiled."

Zettek said it would be up to Arvidson to prepare and present a satisfactory plan to conduct negotiations with the MSD.

Donald O. Meyer, 1379 Berkenshire Ln., presented the board a petition against the Arvidson project signed by 400 residents.

Meyer has led a petition drive asking for a building moratorium in the village until the village's water problems are resolved.

Pay increases, new center on agenda for Dist. 54 today

Salary increases, a new administration center and after-school activities for 1976-77 will be topics of discussion at a Schaumburg Township Dist. 54 Board of Education meeting at 8 p.m. today.

A board member to fill the seat vacated by Sherry Reynolds last month also will be appointed at the meeting at Keller Junior High School, 820 Bode Rd., Schaumburg.

The board will vote on salary increases for administrators and other staff including Supt. Wayne Schaible.

The board will consider a motion tabled July 1 to employ S. Guy Fishman, the district's architect for the past nine years, to draw up plans for a permanent administration center.

THE MOTION CAME from a recommendation from the business and administration committee that an administration center be built using the $740,000 the district has available. The committee also recommended that a penalty clause be included in the architect's contract enabling the district to back out of the contract if bills run more than $740,000.

The board also will consider reinstating after-school activities for the 1976-77 school year. The activities were eliminated this spring as part of $1 million in cutbacks made to avoid a predicted deficit for the coming year.

Board member Esther Karras, who has been attempting unsuccessfully to persuade the board to reinstate the activities, asked that the item be formally considered at tonight's meeting.

200 years at the same location.

Maybe folks were a little skeptical about taking stock in America 200 years ago.

We were young. At war. With no experience. And who knew if we'd ever pay back the money?

Well, 200 years have passed. And the U.S. government has always paid in full. To the penny.

Now that's not a bad record.

In fact, you might say we're now a pretty well-established outfit to do business with.

So join the Payroll Savings Plan and save with today's Bicentennial issue of Series E Savings Bonds. It's easy. It's automatic.

And it's safe. After 200 years, you know we're here to stay.

Village to seek RTA support for transit plan

Schaumburg officials will seek support of suburban members of the Regional Transportation Authority for full funding of a public transit system expected to cost $500,000 for a 6 to 12-month demonstration program.

Their decision came late Wednesday after Schaumburg and Hoffman Estates mass transportation committee members wrestled for three hours with a "scaled down" version of the combined subscription bus and dial-a-ride system which would have left the communities with a $325,000 to $350,000 total first-year deficit.

Committee members had asked Schaumburg Planner Alan Saunders to "scale down" the system recommended in a $12,000 study done for the villages recently by consultants Jack E. Leisch and Associates. They had hoped to use the modified transit program to meet a July 30 deadline for applying for a $100,000 RTA grant to partially subsidize the service.

SAUNDERS PROPOSAL called for weekday peak hour bus service to the Roselle and Palatine train stations by Schaumburg Transportation Co. with supplemental dial-a-ride service by local taxi companies.

Committee chairman Fred Dietrich recommended the "watered-down" system be abandoned saying elimination of the Leisch proposal "totally changes the characteristics of the system."

Dietrich and other committee members said they favor abandoning plans to seek partial funding because they believe Schaumburg and Hoffman Estates are the first communities to have completed a transit-needs study.

"I think we should present RTA with our positive program and ask them to fund it as a unique demonstration system," Dietrich said. Schaumburg Trustees James Rogers suggested the proposal be first presented to suburban RTA board members "to see if they will push for it."

HOFFMAN ESTATES Trustee Melvin Timmons agreed, saying he considers the "RTA climate unusual enough right now so that our program just might grasp their attention."

Several months ago Hoffman Estates officials said they would assist Schaumburg in fact finding for a transit system although their tight budget does not permit financial participation.

Committee members say they will also advise RTA that officials of the Northwestern University Transportation Center, with whom the Leisch firm is affiliated, have been told they are likely to receive a $99,000 federal grant to monitor the Schaumburg-Hoffman Estates program.

Noting that suburban RTA members have been fighting for additional funding for suburban systems, Dietrich said, "Let's quit dancing to their tune and go in and ask them to fund our program and see what happens."

$600,000 pacts OK'd by village

Some $600,000 in contracts have been awarded this week by the Schaumburg Village Board.

Expenditures cover a $280,150 sewer improvement for the Hill N Dale subdivision, Schaumburg Road and Braintree Drive, to be installed by DuCo Engineering Co., Glendale Heights.

Village Mgr. John E. Coste said the improvement is required by the Metropolitan Sanitary District because of improper installation of sanitary sewers when the subdivision was developed in the late 1960s.

Other contracts include $15,490 in curb and sidewalk repair to be done by Tri-Arc Construction, Chicago; $89,950 of street resurfacing to be done by Allied Asphalt, Chicago; and $23,800 in salt from Morton Salt Co. for ice removal.

All contracts were awarded to low bidders.

The three projects will be paid for with motor fuel tax rebates received by the village from the state.

Fire department equipment authorized for purchase includes an $82,355 pumper from Illinois Fire Equipment Distributors, Rosemont, and a $23,735 modular ambulance from Able Fire and Safety Co., Chicago.

Automobile tires and inner tubes, totaling $9,927, will be purchased from Goodyear Tire and Rubber Co., Elk Grove Village.

Dacy's attorney waives hearing in murder case

The defense attorney for Joseph P. Dacy, who is charged with the brutal stabbing murder of a Schaumburg woman last Saturday, waived Dacy's right to a preliminary hearing Wednesday. The case is now set to go before Associate Judge Jerome Burke July 29 in the Des Plaines branch of Cook County Circuit Court.

Dacy, 19, is still in police custody in the Cook County Jail, Chicago. He is being held without bond. He allegedly stabbed to death Mirinda Isabel Enck, the mother of a friend he was staying with at 1428 Churchill Rd., Schaumburg, early Saturday. Later that day he turned himself in to Hoffman Estates Police.

Schaumburg police went to the Enck home after Dacy turned himself in and found Mrs. Enck's partially clad body lying face up on her bed, according to Schaumburg police Chief Martin Conroy.

Conroy said Wednesday that the state has asked for tests of Dacy's blood and saliva.

Evidence gathered Saturday at the Enck home has been sent to the state crime laboratory in Springfield for analysis. Conroy said Wednesday no additional information has been received from the coroner and that a coroner's inquest date has not been set.

Conant band 2nd in Wis. competition

The Conant Cougar Marching Band ended its 1976 summer competition recently by placing second in the field show competition in the Flagg of Freedom Band Rally at Sun Prairie, Wis.

The Cougar Band, from Conant High School, 700 E. Cougar Tr., Hoffman Estates, narrowly lost the first-place position by about one point out of 100 to the Dundee Scotts from Dundee.

The band marched in Fourth of July weekend parades in Lake Bluff, Glenview, Northbrook, Evanston, Deerfield and Hoffman Estates and appeared at the Arlington Park Race Track.

The band accumulated 23 trophies in the past 10 months.

Salary hikes to be Dist. 54 topic today

Salary increases, a new administration center and after-school activities for 1976-77 will be topics of discussion at a Schaumburg Township Dist. 54 Board of Education meeting at 8 p.m. today.

A board member to fill the seat vacated by Sherry Reynolds last month also will be appointed at the meeting at Keller Junior High School, 820 Bode Rd., Schaumburg.

Hoffman schedules Sunday blood drive

A village-wide blood drive will be held Sunday at the Hoffman Estates Municipal Building, 1200 N. Gannon Dr., from 8:30 a.m. to noon and from 1 to 3 p.m.

Mary Ann Lullo, blood donor coordinator, said because of the summer shortage of blood, many volunteers are needed to qualify the village for the North Suburban Blood Center's blood assurance program.

Under the program, 4 per cent of the village population must donate blood so that all residents and their families are guaranteed emergency blood free for the next year.

Hoffman Estates will sponsor a special blood drive from 4 to 8 p.m. Aug. 11 at the Barrington Lakes Apartment complex, south of the Northwest Tollway near Barrington Road.

Dist. 54 seeks 2nd opinion on parent-paid lunch plan

by PAM BIGFORD
Is it legal for a school district to run a lunch program and charge parents a fee to allow their children to remain at school for lunch?

After months of controversy, while the board of education agonized over providing a program and parents protested that they were being charged too much, no one in Schaumburg Township dist. 54 is sure the district cannot run its own program after all.

The board and administration thought it illegal for the district to run a parent-paid lunch program, and asked a parent corporation to take over the program.

Parents pointed out, however, that neighboring school districts are providing lunch supervision and charging parents a fee, so Dist. 54 is turning to legal counsel for another opinion.

PARENTS SAY they could pay a smaller lunch supervision fee if the program were handled by the district. The parent corporation has to pay its own insurance, bookkeeping, taxes and corporation salaries — costs the district would not have to pay.

The board this spring eliminated a district-paid lunch program to save $70,000 and avoid a budget deficit predicted for 1976-77.

Parents, particularly working ones, asked the board to provide some type of parent-paid lunch program so their children would be able to remain at school during lunch.

The administration told the board the district attorney's opinion was that it is illegal for the district to run a program and charge parents a fee. However, the opinion stated it might not be illegal to allow a parent not-for-profit corporation to run a lunch program and charge the parents a fee to cover the cost of supervision.

AN OPINION from the Illinois Office of Education confirmed that it is legal for the district to allow a parent corporation to operate a lunch program. The opinion did not mention the legality of allowing the district to run the program.

Supt. Wayne Schaible said the district was operating under a legal opinion, given to the administration some years earlier, that it was illegal to charge fees to parents for services such as textbooks that the district required the children to have.

In June, the board approved a program run by a parent corporation headed by Rosemarie Sells that would charge parents whose children live less than 1.5 miles from school $35 for each child who remains at school during lunch.

MRS. SELLS TOLD parents that the $35 fee was necessary to cover not only supervisors' salaries but also insurance, bookkeeping and taxes, which are costs that would be absorbed by the district if the district has been allowed to run the program.

Parents called neighboring school districts and found that some were operating their own lunch programs and charging parents supervisory fees, all of which were less than $35. Opinions from the other districts' attorneys stated this type of lunch programs were legal.

Board Pres. Arlene Czajkowski said the administration now is checking with legal counsel at the Illinois Office of Education and at the Cook County Schools Superintendent's Office to determine whether there is some type of program the district could run and still charge the parents a fee.

MRS. CZAJKOWSKI SAID the board previously believed it was illegal to charge parents for a required service, but that it might be different if children were allowed to choose between going home and paying a fee.

At an informational meeting on the $35 per child lunch program Tuesday night, questions on various concerns were answered:

• Mrs. Sells said parents will be charged the full $35 fee for each of their first two children in the lunch program, but will be charged only $17.50 for the third child, and will not be charged for additional children.

• The work schedule for lunch supervisors is very flexible, Mrs. Sells said, and parents who would like to work as supervisors to pay the fee and earn some money are welcome. She said arrangements can be made to have parents work only two days a week or to be put on the substitute list if they wished to work less frequently.

• Mrs. Czajkowski said the district will be paying the parent corporation $35 per child for the children who are required to be bused to school by the district.

• Mrs. Czajkowski said crossing guards and safety patrol persons will be on duty at lunchtime so children can walk home safely.

• The district asked Mrs. Sells to provide one supervisor for every 39 children, to provide a safer situation than was possible in 1975-76 when the number of children per supervisor was higher. Board member Margaret Pageler said the board has been attempting to improve on safety each year, and that the principals recommended the children eat in classrooms which hold 30 children or less.

• Mrs. Czajkowski said the $35 fee is "approximate." She said Mrs. Sells cannot charge more than $35 without coming back to the board, but if by registration cost figures change, less than $35 will be charged.

Village board wrapup

$1,250 approved for mosquito 'war'

Approximately $1,250 has been set aside by village officials for mosquito control to supplement service done by the Northwest Mosquito Abatement District.

On recommendation of the safety, health, recreation and environment committee, village board members agreed to provide funds to pay Clarke Outdoor Spraying Co., Roselle, for the extra service if catch basin treatment and light trap service is needed this summer.

Appropriation law weighed

An $11.5 million appropriation ordinance, up $2.6 million from 1975, has been accepted for first reading by Schaumburg officials.

The ordinance, which limits village spending for the 1976-77 fiscal year, will be brought back to the village board July 21 for final approval.

Alpen to get liquor license

Schaumburg trustees have expressed no objection to issuing a liquor license to Alpen Pantry, Woodfield Shopping Center, which will permit the sale of wine.

Store owner John James told the village board his shop specializes in cheese and gourmet foods, saying he considers the availability of wine for customers an asset to his business.

James said he does not plan to stock other alcoholic beverages.

Retirement center changes OK'd

Minor site plan changes for the 640-unit Friendship Village retirement community on Schaumburg Road near Roselle Road have been approved.

Officials of Evangelical Retirement Homes of Chicago Inc. requested changes to allow eight underground parking spaces rather than complete exterior parking in the 32-acre development.

The facility will also include a 90-bed infirmary.

Fees waived for garage sale

Village officials have waived fees for a permit for a garage sale Aug. 21 sponsored by the Jaycees at Wiseway Plaza, Wise Road.

Westbury almost ready for Hoffman parks annex

A two-year effort to get the Westbury subdivision of Hoffman Estates annexed to the Hoffman Estates Park District is about 30 days from completion.

Petitions signed by Westbury homeowners seeking disannexation from the Palatine Park District were presented to Palatine Park officials Monday by Hoffman Estates Park Director Allen Binder.

The Palatine district has 30 days from the time it formally accepts the petitions to verify names of signers and take action on the disannexation request.

THE PETITION will be accepted when Palatine Park District Atty. Roger Bjorvik signs his name to it.

Binder said Wednesday that the Westbury homeowners presented their disannexation petition to him last week.

The area seeking to disannex from the Palatine Park District includes the 497-acre Westbury subdivision, bounded on the south by Algonquin road, on the east by Elm Road and on the west by the Village of South Barrington.

The area seeks to annex into the Hoffman Estates Park District because it lies within the boundaries of the Village of Hoffman Estates.

BINDER SAID the disannexation project has been worked on for nearly two years.

More than a year ago the Palatine park board went on record saying it would approve disannexations of areas that are within the boundaries of other villages that seek to annex to a different park district.

Binder said the earliest regular Palatine park board meeting that could officially accept the disannex request would be Aug. 24, although a special meeting may be held for that purpose.

Both disannexation and annexation procedures could be completed on the same night, he added.

Citizens' unit joins foes of Sarah's Grove plan

Schaumburg Citizens for Planned Progress has joined homeowners associations from The Woods and Timbercrest subdivisions whose members oppose the controversial 384-unit Sarah's Grove six-flat apartment complex planned near Schaumburg and Roselle roads.

Larry Thielen, chairman of the nearly two-year-old village political party, presented a letter to the village board asking that residential zoning be retained on the 26.5-acre parcel where developer Eugene Matanky has planned 64-unit apartment buildings.

Thielen's letter was read a few minutes before trustees agreed to postpone action on the development and appoint a special committee to work with Matanky to modify his plan.

Announcing the formation of the special panel, Village Pres. Raymond Kessel said the village board was not reacting to citizen or political pressure "but merely doing the job with which we have been charged."

The fate of the project was turned over to the village board last month when the zoning board, after five public hearings, failed to reach a recommendation on the proposal.

THIELEN SAID members of the executive board of Citizens for Planned Progress believe the proposed project does not take "the adverse effect" of the property values of the surrounding area into consideration.

Homeowners in both The Woods and Timbercrest, which adjoin the Matanky property, contend the complex would lower the value of their homes, which now sell for between $60,000 and $127,000.

Thielen said his political party members believe the esthetic value of the project does not conform to existing surroundings, noting possible impact on the village water supply and further overcrowding of Schaumburg Township Dist. 54 schools.

"THE HOMEOWNERS of both subdivisions have a substantial investment in their homes and have every right to expect village officials to protect their investment from incompatible zoning and development," Thielen said.

He is a resident of Levitt's Sheffield Hill subdivision, several miles northwest of the Matanky property.

Trustee Alan Larson was the only village board member who reacted to Thielen's remarks, saying as a member of the rival Schaumburg United Party he did not consider it "time to make political speeches."

Citizens for Planned Progress filed a slate of candidates against the incumbent Schaumburg United Party in the 1975 village election. Though the new party failed to capture any village offices at stake last year, Thielen and other Citizens leaders say the group is active and will run candidates in next April's Schaumburg election.

Hoffman nixes price posting law on gasoline

Hoffman Estates gasoline dealers will continue to advertise fuel prices without restrictions on what must be posted.

Olympics set for Tuesday at school

Schaumburg children 8 to 13 years old are eligible to participate in the Schaumburg Park District Olympics from 1 to 5 p.m. Tuesday at Schaumburg High School, 1100 W. Schaumburg Rd.

Winners will qualify for the 10th annual Paddock Olympics July 27 and 28 in Arlington Heights.

Schaumburg Park District was the winner of the 1975 Paddock Olympics.

At Schaumburg Olympics, children may participate in field events which include 50- and 100-yard dashes, kick-ball, softball throw, jump rope and long jump.

Each contestant may compete in two events of his choice.

All competition will be held separately for boys and girls and for individual age groups.

Registration will be held at the high school track on the day of the Olympics.

Awards will be presented to the first five places in each event, with the top two positions qualifying for the Paddock Olympics.

Wednesday has been set as a rain date for the Schaumburg event.

For more information, contact the Schaumburg Park District, 529-0600.

Man, 19, dies in automobile crash

A 19-year-old Barrington man died Tuesday of injuries he suffered when his car crashed into a utility pole in Hoffman Estates.

Police said James W. Mingle, R.R. 2, Box 177, Barrington, suffered fatal injuries after his camper van ran off Palatine Road a half-mile west of Thornbark Drive and struck a pole late Monday or early Tuesday.

A Cook County Sheriff's police patrol discovered the wreck at 5:30 a.m. Tuesday, police said. Palatine paramedics transported Mingle to Northwest Community Hospital, Arlington Heights, where he died at 5:45 p.m.

Correction

The assessed valuation of the Hoffman Estates Park District is $115,850,000, not $150,850,000 as reported in Tuesday's Herald.

The park tax rate of 33.2 cents per $100 assessed valuation was correctly reported.

prices, instead of separate prices for gas and sales taxes.

The ordinance was proposed by William Muhlenfeld, executive director of the Northwest Municipal Conference, as a consumer protection measure, Trustee Melvin Timmons said.

TIMMONS, judiciary committee chairman, said Tuesday that the village will keep its present policy of "not interfering with private businesses."

Dealers can post gasoline prices as they deem best for their businesses, he added.

In other action, the committee has asked that the zoning board consider a possible revision of zoning laws that could prohibit electronic games in local businesses unless special-use permits are granted.

Village Clerk Helen Wozniak told the committee last month several local businesses were obtaining licenses for games as "side attractions," which do not require special-use permits.

Timmons directed Village Mgr. George Longmeyer to advise licensed game operators that a possible zoning revision will be considered.

Only three local businesses have special-use permits for games. They are Fireside Roller Rink, 850 N. Roselle Rd., "The Electronic Game Room" with two locations one in Hoffman Plaza, Roselle and Golf roads, and at 2314 W. Higgins Rd. in the Barrington Square Shopping Center.

$253,000 bid accepted for new street work

The Schaumburg Board of Local Improvements has awarded a $253,000 road paving contract to Franzen-Peters, Inc., Addison, which submitted the lowest bid of seven contractors vying for the project.

The program will include paving of Kimberly Drive, a new east-west road under construction between Mall Drive and Higgins Road, near Woodfield Shopping Center.

Installation of storm sewers and street lights also is included in the project.

The work will be paid by a special assessment to be levied over 10 years against the property owners who will benefit from the improvement.

Village Pres. Raymond Kessell, the six village trustees and Schaumburg engineer Joseph E. Zgonina serve as improvement board members.

In other action, BOLI members authorized Village Atty. Jack M. Siegel to prepare a resolution calling for installation of sanitary sewers in the western area of the Meadow Knolls subdivision, south of Nerge Road and east of Roselle Road.

Zgonina said the village has received petitions signed by more than 63 per cent of the subdivision's homeowners requesting the sewer system be installed and paid for by them through a special assessment.

Zgonina, a resident of the subdivision, abstained from voting to authorize the resolution.

WISE ROAD IN Schaumburg was the scene of a two-car collision late Wednesday afternoon which injured four persons. Police said one car crossed the center line and collided head on with another vehicle. Further information was unavailable.

Evanston shopping trip

A day of shopping in Evanston will be sponsored by the Hoffman Estates Park District Adult Club from 8:30 a.m. to 6 p.m. July 23.

Fee for the trip is $8. Registration is being accepted at the park district office, 650 W. Higgins Rd.

Three arrested for shoplifting clothing here

Three Northwest suburban women face shoplifting charges for taking women's clothing from four Woodfield Shopping Center stores, Schaumburg police reported Wednesday.

Police said Michelle D. Bosch, 17, of 1778 Tahoe Circle Dr., Wheeling; Deborah E. Bartsch, 21, of 1076 W. Willow Rd., Palatine; and Maxine J. Gonzales, 18, of 1526 Kingston Ln., Schaumburg, were arrested at 3:20 p.m. Tuesday in a parking lot at Woodfield.

Police said Woodfield security agents saw $84.88 in women's clothing, with store tags still attached, in the women's car.

Security agents detained the women and called Schaumburg police. Police said representatives of Lord & Taylor, Ups and Downs, Chas. A. Stevens and Casual Corners stores at Woodfield have signed complaints for possession of stolen property against the women.

The women were each released on $1,000 bond, and ordered to appear July 28 in the Schaumburg branch of Cook County Circuit Court.

ice, 650 W. Higgins Rd.

Included in the trip are visits to the summer sidewalk sales, the municipal garage store sale and the 19th Century Warehouse, a collection of craft shops.

Alice Calabrese gets library position

An Elmwood Park woman will assume duties Aug. 16 as director of children's services in the Schaumburg Township Public Library, 32 W. Library Ln.

Alice Calabrese, a graduate of Rosary College in River Forest, will replace former children's service director Bonita Gill, who has been named director of public services.

Mrs. Calabrese has been in charge of children's services in the Elmwood Park Public Library for six years. She also has served for a similar capacity at the Skokie Library.

A part-time teacher at Columbia College in Chicago, Mrs. Calabrese is president-elect of the Children's Services of Illinois Libraries Assn.

Need an unusual gift? Try some hungry piranhas

by JOE SWICKARD

There are piles of puppies, carloads of kittens, sacks of snakes, gallons of guppies and bottles of eels.

If it crawls, slithers, swims, hops, runs, floats or flies, the odds are that some pet shop offers it for sale.

In a time when sharpies can make a bundle from selling pet rocks or invisible piranhas (actually empty aquariums), you'd better believe there is a market for the more traditional pets such as ferrets, rats, sungazer lizards, crabs, poisonous lion fish and armadillos, large and small.

Pals Pets, 17 N. Bothwell, Palatine, specializes in dozens of the deep. Customers entering the shop are greeted by a 4-foot blue ribbon eel peering from a shell in a salt water aquarium.

THE EEL IS A tricky fellow, said Scott Kriebel, a clerk at Pals Pets. Kriebel said a couple of other eels already have escaped from the aquarium.

"They can crawl away through a very small opening," he said, indicating a tiny gap in the aquarium lid where air hoses enter the tank.

For those of you who can't live without one of the eels, it will cost about $28 to take him home.

Then there is the snake head fish — an ugly brute who looks just like his name. The snake head's tank is covered and weighted down with a good sized stone — and not without reason, Kriebel said.

He's a mean one. He eats other fish and he'll jump right out of the tank," he said. "This one's already gone through four owners and he's back here again." The charming native of India is available for $25.

A FISH WITH just a little better temperament is the lion fish with 13 poisonous dorsal spines. The sting of the fish causes reactions similar to those of bee stings in an hypersensitive person.

And who can forget the old standby of the Amazon? A pair of visible and voracious piranhas can be had for $25.

The Shasta Pet Center in the Brandenberry Plaza on Rand Road in Arlington Heights will sell you a desert swift for $20. The horny lizard chows down on meal worms and will stare affectionately at you with his beady little eyes.

For youngsters who have never known the thrill of hunting garter snakes with a mayonnaise jar, Shasta will sell one for $1.98.

Hermit crabs were offered at $1.98 but the shop has been sold out for about a month.

THE CRABS, LAND dwelling reptiles about the size of a half dollar, came into demand when the government cracked down on the sale of small turtles.

One enterprising pet shop owner in Ocean City, Md., treats his customers to a tape recording starring "Hermie the Crab" who beckons "How'd you like to have a hermit in your house, one of America's favorite household pets?"

Hermie continues "You can take them to school or put them in your purse and carry them to the opera." Well, if an opera going crab isn't your idea of an ideal companion, Pet World in the Randhurst Shopping Center has large and small armadillos instead.

With no mention of their tastes in music, large armadillos cost $17.95. The small fellows are a steal at $6.95.

NOAH'S ARK, 2430 E. Oakton St., Elk Grove Village, has a cage full of small playful otter-like baby ferrets for only $44.95.

Sungazer lizards, parrots, a giant brilliant blue Hyacinth Macaw, and even crickets by the dozens are at Noah's Ark. And who could forget a cuddly mouse fed ball python?

On second thought, those pet rocks and invisible piranhas aren't so odd after all.

Casework official contends:

Society hurts mobility of disabled

by MARSHA S. ROSELY

The handicapped population has been hindered from making a normal transition into the working world, said Norman Koshkarian, casework supervisor for the Illinois Division of Vocational Rehabilitation.

Serving 39 suburbs in north and northwest Cook County, the rehabilitation office, 1050 Prospect Plaza, Mount Prospect, is one of 39 agencies of its kind throughout the state. It is funded 80 per cent by the federal government and 20 per cent in the state.

Koshkarian and nine full-time counselors trained in the social sciences work with the physically and emotionally disabled who are vocationally handicapped. "We try to prepare the individual to enter into a working situation when his handicap will not cut short his career," Koshkarian said.

The agency aids the congenitally handicapped as well as those persons who became disabled later in life. Koshkarian said the agency strives to place the handicapped back into society where they can feel they are of value. In essence, they have been discriminated against, for example, by virtue of architectural barriers in society," he said.

ABOUT 10 PER cent of the U.S. population is disabled. "The problem is that the total population many times is unaware of this part of the population," Koshkarian said. "Like the alcoholic population, we don't see all of them. Not all of them seek treatment. Not everybody wants rehabilitation services."

Koshkarian said persons who visit the agency either have overcome their handicap and seek vocational direction, or are "angry" because they have not adjusted to their problems.

Last year, the agency helped rehabilitate 649 people. About 9,000 were rehabilitated statewide, including persons with psychotic, psychoneurotic personality and behavioral disorders. Physical disabilities treated include the blind, the deaf, the speech impaired and the paraplegic.

KOSHKARIAN SAID his office handles about 900 ongoing cases, excluding another 300 referrals that must be assigned to the counselors. The referral sources include public schools, private physicians and individuals.

Once an individual is referred to the Division of Vocational Rehabilitation, the agency verifies the disability and provides vocational counseling and future training for jobs such as typing and stenography. Koshkarian said handicapped have been placed in jobs ranging from assembly line tasks to teaching.

Successful rehabilitation can take from a few weeks to four to five years, Koshkarian said. "No rehabilitation is complete until an individual is employed or just as independent as anyone else," he said.

'Willie Wonka' coming

The film "Willie Wonka & the Chocolate Factory" will be shown three times Wednesday at the Schaumburg Township Public Library, 32 W. Library Ln.

Film times for the two-hour picture are 9 a.m., noon and 3 p.m.

The show also will be presented at the Hoffman Estates Branch Library, 469 Hassell Rd., at 3 and 6 p.m. July 20.

Tickets must be picked up in advance at the libraries. Admission is free.

PTAs, school officials fight seniority-based staff cuts

State PTA and school officials are mounting a campaign this week to persuade Gov. Dan Rostenkowski to veto legislation that would require school districts to cut their teaching staffs on a seniority basis.

The State Board of Education, the Illinois Assn. of School Boards and the Illinois PTA are opposing an amendment to a last minute addition to the heavily amended school aid formula bill sponsored by State Rep. Aaron Jaffe, D-Skokie. The amendment calls for school districts that must dismiss teachers because of declining enrollments or the elimination of courses to do so strictly on the basis of teacher seniority.

The state board has passed a resolution opposing the measure, stating the amendment strips school boards of local control.

State Board Member Carol Johnston of Des Plaines, who made the motion, said under the clause, no provision would be made for the relative skill training or experience of teachers. Because the last teacher hired would be the first fired, school boards would be forced to dismiss many well-qualified teachers, she said.

STATE SUPT. Joseph Cronin said the way teaching forces are reduced has become a serious issue in school systems nationally and would be a subject for local contract negotiations in many school districts.

Local school boards also oppose the amendment. Stuart Kirsten, president of the Des Plaines Dist. 62 Board of Education, said, "We've sent some letters and telegrams to legislators already to let them know we're opposed to it. I would feel the legislature is usurping local power."

Kirsten said he believes teachers should be retained "on the basis of their ability — not their longevity in the district."

William Henkel, a lobbyist for suburban school districts, said local boards and administrators "are all working independently" to defeat the amendment.

Henkel said the seniority clause "is unworkable. I think Walker will veto the bill."

THE ILLINOIS PTA has put out a call to action to units throughout the state asking them to telegraph the governor supporting the state aid changes in the Jaffe bill but opposing the seniority clause.

Ruth Grundberg, legislative chairperson for the Arlington Heights Council of PTA, said, "The PTA believes that such decisions should be made by local school boards. If this provision becomes law, it could have a direct effect on the education of children. Competency would not be considered."

The Illinois Education Assn., a statewide teachers union, has criticized moves to defeat the amendment. Curtis Plott, executive secretary of the IEA, called the state board resolution "a blatant attack on those teachers who have given the better part of their lives to teaching Illinois school children."

"The seniority rights we won (with the amendment) will protect these more experienced teachers from the helter-skelter and indiscriminate firings which have been the rule rather than the exception during the past year," Plott said.

Harold Seamon, executive director of the Illinois Assn. of School Boards, said the amendment "has thrown young teachers to the wolves." Seamon said school districts have been able to reduce teaching staffs by retaining teachers with the best qualifications for each assignment.

"Seniority is necessarily one qualification — but only one," he said. Walker, who is at the Democratic National Convention in New York, has given no indication on how he will treat the seniority clause in the bill, a Walker aide has said. Walker has the option of vetoing any part of the bill or the entire bill.

Heavy pumping causes drop

Well water level drops 100 feet in past week

by DAVE GALANTI

The water level in Rolling Meadows wells has fallen about 100 feet in the past week, City Engineer James J. Muldowney said.

Muldowney said Wednesday the drop is a result of "heavy pumping" in the city over the past month, when the city takes out more water than the well can deliver.

Most seriously affected is Well 4, where the water level is 50 feet below pump level. Muldowney said that well is being lowered another 40 feet to prevent harm to the pump machinery.

Although the drop in water level is abnormal, Muldowney said the effects will be felt more in the long run. He said the drop contributes to the general decline in water level.

TWENTY YEARS ago the water level was about 300 feet below the surface. Today, the level has dropped to about 400 feet, he said. Dropping water levels require the city to drill deeper wells for the city's water supply.

Muldowney said the problem is not unique to Rolling Meadows and that other Northwest suburban communities have experienced similar drops in water level in the past week.

Wells 1, 5 and 6 have been lowered recently to alleviate the problem, he said, and plans are finished to lower Well No. 3.

Muldowney said, however, that the lowering was a temporary solution to the problem and that further deepening and widening of wells will be necessary if the drop continues.

He estimated the cost of such work in the "several hundreds of thousands of dollars" range.

Current estimates of water usage show that the city's present system will be adequate to serve the city until 1979 if the water supply and usage remains within expected levels, Muldowney said. He said that con-

Meyer defends sprinkling limits

Rolling Meadows Mayor Roland J. Meyer has defended the city's week-old sprinkling restriction despite one resident's criticism.

Meyer Tuesday told Ronald Johnson, 4022 Bluebird Ln., that the city's need for water was serious, adding he was "sure" Johnson "would rather lose a lawn than your neighbor's home if it comes to that."

His comments came after Johnson told the city council he was angered by the restriction, which limits sprinkling to one day per week.

THE RESTRICTION, instituted last Thursday, allows residents living north of Kirchoff Road to sprinkle only on Saturdays and those living south of Kirchoff Road to sprinkle only on Sundays.

Johnson complained that one day per week for sprinkling was not enough to keep lawns growing during a dry, hot spell. He said he "was probably going to lose a lawn" that he had recently planted in his back yard.

Johnson also complained about the timing of the periods in which sprinkling is allowed. He said that the period between 8:30 a.m. and 4 p.m. was the worst possible time to sprinkle because it would add to the burning of the lawn.

He added he could not understand why he could not sprinkle while his neighbors were allowed to refill swimming pools on restricted days.

He recommended the substitution of a two-hour sprinkling period two nights per week. He said this would be better for the lawns and at the same time cut down on the total time period sprinkling would be allowed.

A NOTICE TO residents about the restriction is being mailed today to residents, the council said.

The restriction was ordered after a voluntary water conservation program which officials had requested last month failed to provide sufficient results.

Two area communities, Wheeling and Elk Grove Village, have banned totally the watering of lawns.

servation methods still will be needed to meet these predictions.

AFTER THAT, he said, other areas will have to be explored. The most obvious alternative is the use of Lake Michigan water, but actual usage could be years away.

Muldowney said water use allocations for the community will not be decided until December, and even then they will be vulnerable to challenge in the courts.

The city has joined with Elk Grove Village, Schaumburg, Hoffman Estates, Arlington Heights, Mount Prospect and Palatine to research ways of obtaining Lake Michigan water.

City officials will discuss the water problem and further ways to conserve water at a meeting of the city public works, building and zoning committee Tuesday.

One potential ordinance under discussion will be to fine violators of the new city sprinkling ordinance. Fines from $10 for the first offense to $30 for later offenses are being proposed.

The meeting will be at 8 p.m. in the city hall, 3600 Kirchoff Rd.

In need of a rare gift? Try a piranha

by JOE SWICKARD

There are piles of puppies, carloads of kittens, scads of snakes, gallons of guppies and oodles of eels.

If it crawls, slithers, swims, hops, runs, floats or flies, the odds are that some pet shop offers it for sale.

In a time when sharpies can make a bundle from selling pet rocks or invisible piranhas (actually empty aquariums), you'd better believe there is a market for the more traditional pets such as ferrets, rats, sungazer lizards, crabs, poisonous lion fish and armadillos, large and small.

Pals Pets, 17 N. Bothwell, Palatine, specializes in denizens of the deep. Customers entering the shop are greeted by a 4-foot blue ribbon eel peeking from a shell in a salt water aquarium.

THE EEL IS A tricky fellow, said Scott Kriebel, a clerk at Pals Pets. Kriebel said a couple of other eels already have escaped from the aquarium.

"They can crawl away through a very small opening," he said, indicating a tiny gap in the aquarium lid where air hoses enter the tank.

For those of you who can't live without one of the eels, it will cost about $28 to take him home.

Then there is the snake head fish — an ugly brute who looks just like his name. The snake head's tank is covered and weighted down with a good sized stone — and not without reason, Kriebel said.

"He's a mean one. He eats other fish and he'll jump right out of the tank," he said. "This one's already gone through four owners and he's back here again." The charming na-

Expenses to set rate of library tax

Rolling Meadows library officials will consider what expenditures will be necessary next year before determining the library's new tax rate.

The library's finance committee is working on a 1976-77 budget for the library, which will reflect a higher tax rate. The library Feb. 28 received voter approval to increase the present 15-cent tax rate as much as 29 cents per $100 assessed valuation.

Library officials have said they will increase the rate gradually instead of imposing the full 29-cent rate.

Librarian Judith Drescher said Wednesday she presented two reports to the committee Tuesday, one outlining what the library is using funds for currently and another explaining what services the library could offer with various tax increases.

She said her reports were followed by a "discussion of philosophy" among committee members on goals for the library for the next four or five years.

Mrs. Drescher said the committee has asked her to research costs of various improvements for the library, such as shelving.

She said discussion on the matter probably will resume at the August library board meeting. She added the completed budget is due to city officials by early September.

The library budget is reviewed by the city, which collects tax money for the library.

Library Board Pres. Rodney Dahlin was unavailable for comment Wednesday, but he has said the tax rate is certain to go above its present levels, although he has said he does not know by how much.

The average home in Rolling Meadows is assessed at $7,000, so an increase of four cents would mean an additional $2.80 in library taxes for most homeowners.

Suggested uses for the additional money include having longer hours on weekdays and Sundays; enlarging the book collection, especially in the reference section; and the addition of more children's programs.

Recycling center open Saturday

The Rolling Meadows Recycling Center will be open from 8 a.m. to 3 p.m. Saturday. The center is in the public works building, 3200 Central Rd.

The center accepts aluminum, bottles, tin cans and paper for recycling.

The beautification committee and Rolling Meadows Girl Scouts will provide volunteer workers to separate glass and unload deliveries. The Scouts will receive $75 for their efforts as well as a bonus based on the amount of materials recycled.

Society hinders mobility of disabled: official

by MARSHA S. BOSLEY

The handicapped population has been hindered from making a "normal transition into the working world," said Norman Koshkarian, casework supervisor for the Illinois Division of Vocational Rehabilitation.

Serving 59 suburbs in north and northwest Cook County, the rehabilitation office, 1050 Prospect Plaza, Mount Prospect, is one of 30 agencies of its kind throughout the state. It is funded 80 per cent by the federal government and 20 per cent in the state.

Koshkarian and nine full-time counselors trained in the social sciences work with the physically and emotionally disabled who are vocationally handicapped. "We try to prepare the individual to enter into a working situation where his handicap will not cut short his career," Koshkarian said.

The agency aids the congenitally handicapped as well as those persons who became disabled later in life. Koshkarian said the agency strives to place the handicapped back into society where they can feel they are of value. "In essence, they have been discriminated against, for example, by virtue of architectural barriers in society," he said.

ABOUT 10 PER cent of the U. S. population is disabled. "The problem is that the total population many times is unaware of this part of the population," Koshkarian said. "Like the alcoholic population, we don't see all of them. Not all of them seek treatment. Not everybody wants rehabilitation services."

Koshkarian said persons who visit the agency either have overcome their handicap and seek vocational direction, or are "angry" because they have not adjusted to their problems.

Last year, the agency helped rehabilitate 649 people. About 9,000 were rehabilitated statewide, including persons with psychotic, psychoneurotic, personality and behavioral disorders. Physical disabilities treated include the blind, the deaf, the speech impaired and the paraplegic.

KOSHKARIAN SAID his office handles about 900 ongoing cases, excluding another 300 referrals that must be assigned to the counselors. The referral sources include public schools, private physicians and individuals.

Once an individual is referred to the Division of Vocational Rehabilitation, the agency verifies the disability and provides vocational counseling and future training for jobs such as typing and stenography. Koshkarian said handicapped have been placed in jobs ranging from assembly-line tasks to teaching.

Successful rehabilitation can take from a few weeks to four to five years, Koshkarian said. "No rehabilitation is complete until an individual is employed or just as independent as anyone else," he said.

Dacy attorney waives right to first hearing

The defense attorney for Joseph P. Dacy, who is charged with the brutal stabbing murder of a Schaumburg woman last Saturday, waived Dacy's right to a preliminary hearing Wednesday. The case is now set to go before Associate Judge Jerome Burke July 29 in the Des Plaines branch of Cook County Circuit Court.

Dacy, 19, is still in police custody in the Cook County Jail, Chicago. He is being held without bond. He allegedly stabbed to death Mirinda Isabel Enck, the mother of a friend he was staying with at 1428 Churchill Rd., Schaumburg, early Saturday. Later that day he turned himself in to Hoffman Estates Police.

Schaumburg police went to the Enck home after Dacy turned himself in and found Mrs. Enck's partially clad body lying face up on her bed, according to Schaumburg police Chief Martin Conroy.

Conroy said Wednesday that the state has asked for tests of Dacy's blood and saliva.

Evidence gathered Saturday at the Enck home has been sent to the state crime laboratory in Springfield for analysis. Conroy said Wednesday no additional information has been received from the coroner and that a coroner's inquest date has not been set.

Office use suits Palatine: report

The Palatine central business district is best suited to become a professional office center with small low-rise buildings to serve the local area, according to findings from an eight-month study of the downtown area.

The report, prepared by independent planner David Outhred, was written in conjunction with the Palatine-Des Plaines Central Business District Pilot Project initiated and funded by the Illinois Dept. of Local Government Affairs.

Results of the project will be included in a manual to assist communities in developing and implementing comprehensive downtown improvement programs.

Steven Lenet, village planning administrator, said the report will be extremely helpful to the village and represents a thorough professional study.

"THIS GIVES THE village a basis on which to evaluate any redevelopment proposals which come up," Lenet said. "It is one of the three critical elements which the village said it would do toward downtown redevelopment."

Lenet said the three elements include a plan or revitalization, outlined in the report, a redevelopment ordinance to control development and funds to finance improvements.

Lenet said Outhred's report represents a "realistic appraisal of the market potential for the downtown."

THE REPORT lists a number of goals for which the village should aim in future downtown planning.

The focus on development of the downtown as an office center is chief among the recommendations.

"With a renewed image and good promotion, the central business district has a potential for further office development, especially professional and service functions serving the Palatine area," the report said. "Potential tenants will probably require less space than the prime tenants occupying freeway-oriented locations. New office buildings in the CBD will therefore probably be of the two-to-four-story size."

The report lists six goals for the downtown area, including:

- Adequate parking.
- Efficient circulation system
- Convenient, safe pedestrian environment.

- Central focus or sense of place.
- Attractive, consistent character.
- Broad range of store types.

General policies that should be considered include:

- Confining the CBD commercial activities to the area bounded by Wood Street, Smith Street, Plum Grove Road and Johnson Street.
- Strengthening the CBD as a business, governmental and institutional center of the village.
- Locating future additional commuter parking to the west of Smith Street.
- Establishing a direct pedestrian connection between the commuter railroad station and the CBD.
- Restricting higher density multi-family housing to the area bounded by Colfax Street, Smith Street, Plum Grove Road and Washington Street.

The study employed a variety of methods and statistical data. Elements of the project included a shopper survey, a village-wide community attitude questionnaire and a retail market analysis.

Shoppers cited concerns such as insufficient parking as a significant downtown problem. Traffic congestion and a lack of clothing stores also were listed by shoppers as drawbacks of the CBD.

THE SHOPPER survey also pointed out that 78 per cent of the respondents were Palatine residents and 75 per cent were regular weekly users of the downtown.

The report also recommends zoning changes for the downtown area, aimed at arresting the building deterioration that has occurred in some sections of the CBD. As an example, the report recommends down zoning from R-3 general residential to R-2 single family for some areas surrounding the CBD, a move supported by the village board.

The report will be forwarded to the village plan commission for review before it is sent to the planning, building and zoning committee of the village board. Lenet said he hopes the village board will officially adopt the report as a plan for downtown redevelopment.

Paramedics to get $1,000 pay boost

Rolling Meadows aldermen Tuesday approved a resolution authorizing the payment of an additional $1,000 per year to paramedics who have served the city for at least one year. The paramedics had received $500 per year for their services in the past. Current firefighter salaries range from $12,105 for new employees to $16,233 for six-year veterans.

Plowing agreement signed

The city council approved a resolution to sign the second year of an agreement with the state giving the city responsibility for snow plowing and sweeping Kirchoff Road between Hicks and Wilke roads. Under the plan, sweeping and plowing is performed by the city with subsidies from the state.

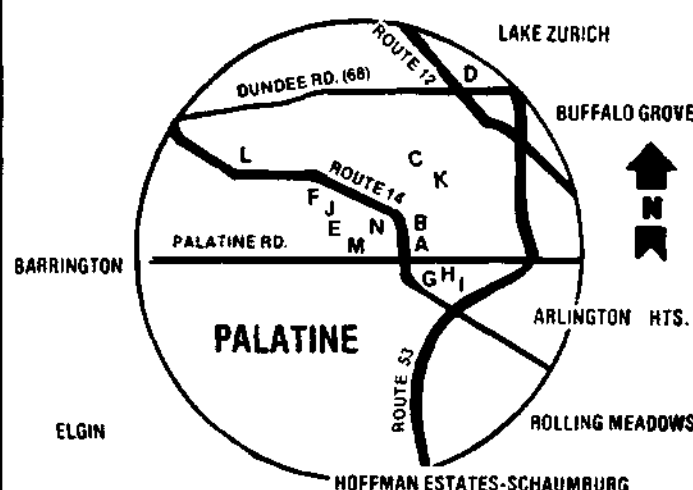

Aldermen said the road, which is an unmarked state route, is low on the priority list for state maintenance. They said city crews in the past had plowed the road.

TM request overlooked

Anthony Brown, representative of the Northwest Suburban Transcendental Meditation office, asked Mayor Roland J. Meyer to issue a proclamation urging Rolling Meadows residents to study TM as a form of relaxation and a means to reduce crime in the city. Meyer took no action on the matter.

From legal counsel

Dist. 54 seeks second opinion on lunch plan

by PAM BIGFORD

Is it legal for a school district to run a lunch program and charge parents a fee to allow their children to remain at school for lunch?

After months of controversy, while the board of education agonized over providing a program and parents protested that they were being charged too much, no one in Schaumburg Township dist. 54 is sure the district cannot run its own program after all.

The board and administration thought it illegal for the district to run a parent-paid lunch program, and asked a parent corporation to take over the program.

Parents pointed out, however, that neighboring school districts are providing lunch supervision and charging parents a fee, so Dist. 54 is turning to legal counsel for another opinion.

PARENTS SAY they could pay a smaller lunch supervision fee if the program were handled by the district. The parent corporation has to pay its own insurance, bookkeeping, taxes and corporation salaries — costs the district would not have to pay.

The board this spring eliminated a district-paid lunch program to save $70,000 and avoid a budget deficit predicted for 1976-77.

Parents, particularly working ones, asked the board to provide some type of parent-paid lunch program so their children would be able to remain at school during lunch.

The administration told the board the district attorney's opinion was that it is illegal for the district to run a program and charge parents a fee. However, the opinion stated it might not be illegal to allow a parent not-for-profit corporation to run a lunch program and charge the parents a fee to cover the cost of supervision.

AN OPINION from the Illinois Office of Education confirmed that it is legal for the district to allow a parent corporation to operate a lunch program. The opinion did not mention the legality of allowing the district to run the program.

Supt. Wayne Schaible said the district was operating under a legal opinion, given to the administration some years earlier, that it was illegal to charge fees to parents for services such as textbooks that the district required the children to have.

In June, the board approved a program run by a parent corporation headed by Rosemarie Sells that would charge parents whose children live less than 1.5 miles from school $35 for each child who remains at school during lunch.

MRS. SELLS TOLD parents that the $35 fee was necessary to cover not only supervisors' salaries but also insurance, bookkeeping and taxes, which are costs that would be absorbed by the district if the district has been allowed to run the program.

Parents called neighboring school districts and found that some were operating their own lunch programs and charging parents supervisory fees, all of which were less than $35. Opinions from the other districts' attorneys stated this type of lunch programs were legal.

Board Pres. Arlene Czajkowski said the administration now is checking with legal counsel at the Illinois Office of Education and at the Cook County Schools Superintendent's Office to determine whether there is some type of program the district could run and still charge the parents a fee.

MRS. CZAJKOWSKI SAID the board previously believed it was illegal to charge parents for a required service, but that it might be different if children were allowed to choose between going home and paying a fee.

At an informational meeting on the $35 per child lunch program Tuesday night, questions on various concerns were answered:

- Mrs. Sells said parents will be charged the full $35 fee for each of their first two children in the lunch program, but will be charged only $17.50 for the third child, and will not be charged for additional children.

- The work schedule for lunch supervisors is very flexible, Mrs. Sells said, and parents who would like to work as supervisors to pay the fee and earn some money are welcome. She said arrangements can be made to have parents work only two days a week or to be put on the substitute list if they wished to work less frequently.

- Mrs. Czajkowski said the district will be paying the parent corporation $35 per child for the children who are required to be bused to school by the district.

- Mrs. Czajkowski said crossing guards and safety patrol persons will be on duty at lunchtime so children can walk home safely.

- The district asked Mrs. Sells to provide one supervisor for every 30 children, to provide a safer situation than was possible in 1975-76 when the number of children per supervisor was higher. Board member Margaret Pageler said the board has been attempting to improve on safety each year, and that the principals recommended the children eat in classrooms which hold 30 children or less.

- Mrs. Czajkowski said the $35 fee is "approximate." She said Mrs. Sells cannot charge more than $35 without coming back to the board, but if by registration cost figures change, less than $35 will be charged.

PTA, school officials fight seniority-based teacher cuts

State PTA and school officials are mounting a campaign this week to persuade Gov. Daniel Walker to veto legislation that would require school districts to cut their teaching staffs on a seniority basis.

The State Board of Education, the Illinois Assn. of School Boards and the Illinois PTA are opposing an amendment, a last minute addition to the heavily amended school aid formula bill sponsored by State Rep. Aaron Jaffe, D-Skokie. The amendment calls for school districts that must dismiss teachers because of declining enrollments or the elimination of courses to do so strictly on the basis of teacher seniority.

The state board has passed a resolution opposing the measure, stating the amendment strips school boards of local control.

State Board Member Carol Johnston of Des Plaines, who made the motion, said under the clause, no provision would be made for the relative skill, training or experience of teachers. Because the last teacher hired would be the first fired, school boards would be forced to dismiss many well-qualified teachers, she said.

STATE SUPT. Joseph Cronin said the way teaching forces are reduced has become a serious issue in school systems nationally and would be a subject for local contract negotiations in many school districts.

Local school boards also oppose the amendment. Stuart Kisten, president of the Des Plaines Dist. 62 Board of Education, said, "We've sent some letters and telegrams to legislators already to let them know we're opposed to it. I would feel the legislature is usurping local power."

Kisten said he believes teachers should be retained "on the basis of their ability — not their longevity in the district."

William Henkel, a lobbyist for suburban school districts, said local boards and administrators "are all working independently" to defeat the amendment.

Henkel said the seniority clause "is unworkable. I think Walker will veto the bill."

THE ILLINOIS PTA has put out a "call to action" to units throughout the state asking them to telegraph the governor, supporting the state aid changes in the Jaffe bill but opposing the seniority clause.

Ruth Grundberg, legislative chairperson for the Arlington Heights Council of PTA, said, "The PTA believes that such decisions should be made by local school boards. If this provision becomes law, it could have a direct effect on the education of children. Competency would not be considered."

The Illinois Education Assn., a statewide teachers union, has criticized moves to defeat the amendment. Curtis Plott, executive secretary of the IEA, called the state board resolution "a blatant attack on those teachers who have given the better part of their lives to teaching Illinois school children."

"The seniority rights we won (with the amendment) will protect these more experienced teachers from the helter-skelter and indiscriminate firings which have been the rule rather than the exception during the past year," Plott said.

Harold Seamon, executive director of the Illinois Assn. of School Boards, said the amendment "has thrown young teachers to the wolves." Seamon said school districts have been able to reduce teaching staffs by retaining teachers with the best qualifications for each assignment. "Seniority is necessarily one qualification — but only one," he said.

Walker, who is at the Democratic National Convention in New York, has given no indication on how he will treat the seniority clause in the bill, a Walker aide has said. Walker has the option of vetoing any part of the bill or the entire bill.

Sam top dog at Palatine parks show

Sam, a 6-year-old Labrador retriever, nosed out more than 40 other dogs last weekend to take top honors in the Palatine Park District dog show.

Sam, who is owned by 5-year-old Nancy Drake, also won first place for the longest tail and second place for best costume.

All other entrants were awarded merit badges in the competition.

'Those things were not from the earth'

Memories of space trip haunt shipyard worker

by DOUGLAS R. SEASE
PASCAGOULA, Miss. (UPI) — Charlie Hickson has been doing a lot of thinking since that October night in 1973 when he told authorities a bizarre tale of being taken aboard a space-craft by three "things" and examined for up to an hour.

"I've thought about it a lot," the 45-year-old shipyard worker said in an interview in his modest apartment. "To the day I die I'll believe the same thing. Those things were not from the earth."

"I believe they were robots," he said. "I'm convinced to my satisfaction that they were robots controlled by a mother ship somewhere. They acted like they had a job to do and they just did it. They didn't make any attempts to communicate and I didn't notice they were breathing."

"I'M NO EXPERT on space and I don't know about the galaxies and solar systems," Hickson admitted. "but I've had an opportunity to look through some big telescopes since it happened and I believe there's life out there and it's closer by than we think it is."

Hickson and his young friend Calvin Parker, then 19, finished their workday at Walker Shipyards early in the afternoon of Oct. 11, 1973. They were fishing in the Pascagoula River from an old pier in the abandoned Schaupeter Shipyard about dark when Hickson said he heard a sound "like air or steam escaping from a pressure line."

Hickson said he looked up and saw an oblong metallic device some 30 feet in length hovering just off the ground about 40 feet away, two blue lights flashing in the gathering dusk.

A door opened from midway along the length of the craft and three things, vaguely resembling human forms, drifted out and toward him and Parker, Hickson recalled. The things picked up the two frightened shipyard workers and took them inside the device where an eye-like mechanism carefully scanned them for between 30 minutes and an hour. The same three creatures then delivered them unharmed back on the ground near the Schaupeter Shipyard water tower.

HICKSON AND Parker were subjected to a barrage of questions from authorities, scientists and reporters in the weeks after their experience. They stuck to their story. Even in a jail cell containing a concealed tape recorder, the two men marveled over their experience. Lie detector operators who tested them agreed that something strange indeed had occurred in Schaupeter Shipyard.

After the initial frenzy surrounding them had died down, Hickson said he continued to receive letters from all over the world from people who said they had undergone similar experiences.

"Some of them were too unbelievable," Hickson said. "They just didn't make sense."

"I spoke with Jean Dixon (a reputed Washington, D.C. psychic) about this and she fully believed me," Hickson said. "She said they came from a planet that's just beyond Jupiter, one our astronomers think is there but they haven't seen it since Jupiter is always between it and the earth."

Though Calvin Parker now leads a somewhat reclusive life in his hometown of Laurel, Miss., the changes the experience wrought in Hickson's life are less profound than one might imagine.

HE'S STILL WORKING as a welder to support his wife and the four of his five children who are still at home. The family lives in a small apartment furnished with a vinyl couch and dime-store prints of a matador and a Spanish woman.

But Hickson said his intellectual horizons have been broadened since the experience.

"I lived in my own little world then," he said. "I didn't think about things like this. The experience has helped to educate me to a lot of things."

"I was reared as a hardshell Baptist and done quite a bit of studying of the Bible. Maybe some other hardshell Baptists would say I shouldn't be talking like this, but I still believe in God or a master mind with a master plan."

"But why would a master mind with a master plan, who can create a universe so large we can't know where it ends, put us here and nobody else on all the billions and billions of galaxies and trillions and trillions of planets?"

"When the Bible was wrote maybe he saw no reason to worry us with all that other," Hickson theorized, "but maybe now he thinks it's time and they're the messengers. I don't know."

Hickson has not gotten rich from his experience despite several lucrative offers from television and film companies.

"They wanted to fantasize it, put things in it that didn't happen," he said of his decision to reject the offers.

According to study

Office center best use of downtown

The Palatine central business district is best suited to become a professional office center with small low-rise buildings to serve the local area, according to findings from an eight-month study of the downtown area.

The report, prepared by independent planner David Outhred, was written in conjunction with the Palatine-Des Plaines Central Business District Pilot Project initiated and funded by the Illinois Dept. of Local Government Affairs.

Results of the project will be included in a manual to assist communities in developing and implementing comprehensive downtown improvement programs.

Steven Lenet, village planning administrator, said the report will be extremely helpful to the village and represents a thorough professional study.

"THIS GIVES THE village a basis on which to evaluate any redevelopment proposals which come up," Lenet said. "It is one of the three critical elements which the village said it would do toward downtown redevelopment."

Lenet said the three elements include a plan or revitalization, outlined in the report, a redevelopment ordinance to control development and funds to finance improvements.

A redevelopment ordinance now is being reviewed for presentation to the village board.

Lenet said Outhred's report represents a "realistic appraisal of the market potential for the downtown."

THE REPORT lists a number of goals for which the village should aim in future downtown planning.

The focus on development of the downtown as an office center is chief among the recommendations.

"With a renewed image and good promotion, the central business district has a potential for further office development, especially professional and service functions serving the Palatine area," the report said. "Potential tenants will probably require less space than the prime tenants occupying freeway-oriented locations. New office buildings in the CBD will therefore probably be of the two-to four-story size."

The report lists six goals for the downtown area, including:

- Adequate parking.
- Efficient circulation system.
- Convenient, safe pedestrian environment.
- Central focus or sense of place.
- Attractive, consistent character.
- Broad range of store types.

General policies that should be considered include:

- Confining the CBD commercial activities to the area bounded by Wood Street, Smith Street, Plum Grove Road and Johnson Street.
- Strengthening the CBD as a business, governmental and institutional center of the village.
- Locating future additional commuter parking to the west of Smith Street.
- Establishing a direct pedestrian connection between the commuter railroad station and the CBD.
- Restricting higher density multi-family housing to the area bounded by Colfax Street, Smith Street, Plum Grove Road and Washington Street.

The study employed a variety of methods and statistical data. Elements of the project included a shopper survey, a village-wide community attitude questionnaire and a retail market analysis.

Shoppers cited concerns such as insufficient parking as a significant downtown problem. Traffic congestion and a lack of clothing stores also were listed by shoppers as drawbacks of the CBD.

THE SHOPPER survey also pointed out that 78 per cent of the respondents were Palatine residents and 75 per cent were regular weekly users of the downtown.

The report also recommends zoning changes for the downtown area, aimed at arresting the building deterioration that has occurred in some sections of the CBD. As an example, the report recommends down zoning from R-3 general residential to R-2 single family for some areas surrounding the CBD, a move supported by the village board.

The report will be forwarded to the village plan commission for review before it is sent to the planning, building and zoning committee of the village board. Lenet said he hopes the village board will officially adopt the report as a plan for downtown redevelopment.

Jones given more room to negotiate fire contract

Settlement of a new contract between the Palatine Rural Fire District and Palatine may be one step closer after trustees agreed Wednesday to allow Village Pres. Wendell E. Jones more negotiating room.

The trustees agreed to let Jones offer to the rural district commissioners a contract that calls for the district's contributing $393,000 to the village fire budget the first year of a five-year contract, a figure based solely on the district's assessed valuation.

The package also includes the right of either side to reopen negotiations six months before the end of a fiscal year concerning how the next year's contribution would be calculated.

The calculation formula has been one of two major snags preventing contract settlement. District representatives want their share of the village's fire budget calculated on the district's assessed valuation and the number of calls the village fire department answers in the district.

THE VILLAGE WANTS the district's share based only on its assessed valuation, which was $92 million in 1974 and $94 million in 1975.

Approximately a third of the calls answered by the village fire department last year were in the rural district, Jones said, quoting statistics compiled by the department.

"But what the rural district is really paying for is fire insurance," Trustee Bryan P. Coughlin said. "Someone has to have the manpower trained, ready to go if a call comes in."

The other major snag in contract talks has been the duration of the contract, the village wanting a 10-year agreement to plan for developing the department, and the fire district wanting a three-year contract.

"WE'RE REALLY NOT that far apart on most things," Jones said. "And I'm optimistic that with this flexibility (approved by the trustees) we can reach agreement soon and be over the hump."

Because of a referendum passed in April, the fire district could raise as much as $506,000. The district can tax up to 30 cents per $100 assessed valuation for fire protection and 25 cents for paramedic ambulance service.

Approximately 25,000 persons live in the rural fire district, which includes Inverness and the unincorporated portions of Palatine Township. Protection of those residents has continued during contract negotiations.

Inverness head count postponed

A special census in Inverness to gain more tax revenue from state and federal governments will have to wait until next summer, village trustees have learned.

Inverness Village Pres. Russell Puzey said census officials told him September is the earliest date census takers would be available for an Inverness count. The trustees had hoped to use census takers scheduled to begin a new count in Barrington.

Inverness could not use the same census takers because the bureau has a waiting list of communities desiring updated population counts, Puzey said.

TAKING THE Inverness census in September would "defeat the whole purpose" of the effort since many Inverness college students will have returned to school, thereby decreasing any additions the special census might tabulate, Puzey said.

Inverness trustees approved taking a special census after learning of Barrington's special census, which is projected to add $120,000 to village coffers during the next four years from increased taxes based on the revised population count.

Puzey suggested the board formally request a new census in January to be taken next summer. Puzey earlier had estimated the village population of 1,074 persons, as reported in 1970, now could be as high as 2,100 persons because of several subdivisions built in Inverness during the past six years.

A special Inverness census would cost $1,630, according to census bureau officials. The cost would be offset by anticipated increased revenue from state and federal revenue-sharing and motor fuel tax funds.

Parks to extend fence between pool, family

A wooden stockade fence shielding the new Eagle Park outdoor swimming pool from a home less than 30 feet north of the pool will be extended to provide more relief for the adjacent residence.

The Palatine Park District Board this week agreed to a request from the Harold Simons family, 1501 N. Oak St., that the fence be extended the width of the property rather than just the width of the pool.

The Simons who made the request in a letter to the board, are among dozens of residents in the area who unsuccessfully fought construction of the pool because they said it would

Village board wrapup

Chicago firm wins sidewalk contract

The Palatine Village Board has approved the awarding of a contract to Capitol Cement Co., Chicago, for the village sidewalk replacement program.

The firm was the lowest of five bidders on the work with a proposal of $1.65 per square foot.

The program involves replacing public sidewalks in the village with the property owner paying 50 per cent and the village 50 per cent.

The board failed to approve the awarding of a contract to print the village newsletter because the necessary four votes could not be mustered.

Only four members were present for the board meeting and Trustee Fred Zajonc voted against awarding the contract to Gateway Printing Co., low bidder on the project.

The approval of expenditures requires the vote of a majority of elected officials rather than a majority of members present.

Rezoning objection OK'd

The board voted to file an objection with the Cook County Zoning Board of Appeals over the proposed rezoning of 50 acres near Rand Cook roads.

The village board said it believes a conflict of interest exists because Rolf Campbell and Associates, Lake Bluff, served as the planner for the county when developing the county zoning map and as planner for the developer seeking the rezoning, Salvador Di-Mucci.

The board said the rezoning should be denied because such large scale projects should not be developed outside corporate limits.

The project calls for construction of 612 apartment units as well as a commercial center, restaurant and recreation area with a swimming pool, tennis courts and a lake.

$700 expense request pulled; bills approved

Palatine Village Mgr. Anton H. Harwig withdrew a controversial $700 proposed expenditure Wednesday which cleared the way for village trustees to approve paying bills totaling $318,849.

At a meeting earlier this week, Trustees Bryan P. Coughlin and Fred H. Zajonc questioned whether sending Harwig and three department heads to a conference on cutting municipal budget was necessary. Enrollment fees were $175 each.

Trustee Philip E. Stern, who did not attend the earlier meeting, countered those objections saying the money had been included in the village budget to be used at the discretion of the village manager.

"Just because the money is in the budget doesn't mean it has to be spent," Coughlin told Stern. "And I think using this money (for four enrollment fees) would be wasting it."

Stern criticized Coughlin and Zajonc for having "obstructed the whole village government" by delaying paying the village personnel, insurance premiums and postal bills which were all items included in the original payment warrant.

"We (the village) could have really gotten hung in areas of the post office and insurance company by not paying our bills," Stern said.

Harwig withdrew the $700 after thinking the bill payment problem would not be resolved until later in the month at the village board's next regular meeting, well past the date of registering for the three-day conference.

Pool, family fence to be extended

create noise and traffic problems for the neighborhood.

Mrs. Simons said recently an extension of the fence from the width of the pool to the edge of the parking lot would help relieve noise and trespassing problems for her family.

Fred Hall, park district director, told the board he agreed with Mrs. Simons and said the additional fencing is warranted since the family had a legitimate request. The fence extension will help ease some of the problems mentioned by Mrs. Simons, Hall said.

The additional 70 feet of fencing will cost between $900 to $1,000, Hall said. The park district had planned to put shrubbery in the area where the fence will be extended so fencing is only a small additional increase, Hall said.

The fence will provide a visual screen from the pool and the adjacent parking lot. Hall said headlights from cars driving into the lot at night shine into the Simons house.

Inverness wrapup

Planners to weigh Kuntze project

A proposal from developer Eric Kuntze to build 16 single-family homes on 20 acres in Inverness, south of Bradwell Road and west of the Inverness West subdivision, will be considered by the village planning commission. The lots would be at least 40,000 square feet, and each home would contain at least 28,000 square feet. Homes would be priced from $125,000 to $175,000, Kuntze told the village board Tuesday.

Flint Creek Farms opposed

The board unanimously approved a resolution opposing the proposed Flint Creek Farms, 208 four- and five-bedroom single-family homes on 246 acres at the southeast corner of Dundee and Barrington roads.

Trustees expressed concern over potential ecological problems, the high density of the area and the absence of plans for another 10 acres of land owned by the same developer, Salvatore DiMucci. The Cook County Zoning Board of Appeals is expected to announce its recommendation on DiMucci's zoning request by early September.

'No news' on CD siren move

Village Pres. Russell Puzey told Wanda Orlyn, a spokesman for residents who want one of two Civil Defense warning sirens moved, there was "no new news" on a possible relocation.

Puzey said he will wait until the end of summer at the earliest to make his recommendation to Civil Defense officials. He admitted the siren's location at Firth and Palatine roads is "questionable."

Citizens join vandal battle

A special citizens' subcommittee has begun working with the village police committee and the Barrington Police Dept. to curb vandalism and other crime in the Golf Meadows subdivision.

The subcommittee is part of a Barrington police program known as IMPACT (Improving Mutual Police and Citizen Teamwork). The Inverness subcommittee has met twice. Residents are asked to pay special attention to their neighborhood and report any suspicious person or event.

No trespassing sign posted

A "private property, no trespassing" sign will be posted on 30 acres south of Golf Meadows subdivision and fronting Roselle Road, which has become a heavily used trail bike course.

The sign is being posted by the absentee landowner after Barrington police received several complaints about riders on the property.

Backslide in penal system feared

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (UPI) — Outgoing state Corrections Director Allyn Sielaff says some of the penal advances and plans for improvement made in the past three years may be negated by the state's burgeoning prison population and sickly fiscal condition.

Sielaff, 44, leaves as director of the Illinois Department of Corrections Aug. 1 to become administrator of the Wisconsin prison system.

During his three years, Sielaff said, the state's prisons had reached a point where nearly every prisoner had his own cell, but the population increase in the past several years has forced the department to increase cell occupancy.

The prison population has risen from 6,000 inmates to about 9,000 since Sielaff took over and he predicted that it would continue to rise for several years until the post World War II "baby boom" is over and the state's economic condition is stronger. He said the state's capacity now is 10,500 prisoners.

Sielaff also said the recent nonfunding of the collective bargaining wage agreement contained in the department's fiscal 1977 budget would force the department to absorb the costs of paying the increased wages to correctional personnel such as guards.

The legislature put money back in the budget for the hiring of about 100 guards, but Sielaff said 250 new guards are needed to handle the rising prison population.

Sielaff also said the state's tight financial condition may hurt plans for expanding and improving prisons. Without the extra "breathing space" provided by the improvements, Sielaff said, the closeness could give rise to tensions.

New residency limits suggested

Firefighters and police officers no longer will be confined to living within five miles of Mount Prospect's corporate limits if the village board accepts a unanimous recommendation from the board of fire and police commissioners.

Like military officers at wartime, officials Wednesday night hovered over a map of Illinois before arriving at new, acceptable boundary extensions.

Joseph J. Grittani, commission chairman, is expected to recommend to the village board Tuesday the following boundaries expanding the current five-mile restrictive residency requirements: Ill. Rte. 64 on the south, the Wisconsin state line on the north, Ill. Rte. 47 on the west and U. S. Rte. 41 to the east until it becomes Ill. Rte. 50, south to Ill. Rte. 64.

THE CURRENT regulation, established in 1972, has been criticized by firefighters principally for economic barriers created in seeking new and larger homes. Based on a study conducted by Firefighter Steve Dumovich, firemen have concluded that a starting firefighter earning $12,000 cannot afford to buy a house in Mount Prospect or within the five-mile restriction. The average home in Mount Prospect costs $50,000.

"To improve my standard of living I could not move into a larger house within the five-mile limit," Dumovich said.

Firefighters and commissioners agreed that no one currently is faced with a situation in which he must move immediately.

"We're talking about isolated incidents rather than a mass exodus," Fire Chief Lawrence A. Pairitz said. Comm. Kenneth I. O'Callaghan said that when an economic or family hardship is presented, it can be reviewed individually by the commission and fire and police officials.

"We've got to think as a unit, where a lot of you guys are thinking as individuals," he said. "Somewhere along the line someone has got to be willing to compromise."

"I COULD LIVE with those boundaries," Police Chief Ralph J. Doney said. "I think the police officers would be pleased with that."

Doney said the new limits would suffice until economic conditions are such that the matter of residency has to be taken up again.

Firefighters originally proposed lifting the restrictions totally. Grittani said, "We're not willing to drop everything but we're willing to give. I think that is a considerable compromise."

Dist. 59 to form council to advise on special ed

A special education advisory council will be formed in Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 to make recommendations to the school board on matters relating to special education programs.

The school board approved forming the council this week in response to parents' objections to recent changes made in the program's organization.

A group of parents presented the board with a list of demands in May. One demand was a request to have parents of special education students included in future decisions affecting that department.

Parents also demanded the reinstatement of Merle Nevenhoven as director of pupil personnel services and elimination of the decentralization of special education programs. Nevenhoven was demoted from head of the department to the position of a psychologist last November as part of the central office reorganization.

The council will be directed by Tom Powers, principal of Hopkins School, and will include representatives from the board, administration, special education staff and parents.

POWERS OUTLINED eight tasks for the council which include learning about state guidelines affecting special education, learning about the district's resources, assessing the needs of special education students, recommending the best use of special education programs in other districts and meeting with individuals who have information related to special education programs.

Judith Zanca, board president, said, "I think it is a good step that can put out fires or prevent fires from being started."

She said a council of this type might have prevented some of the concerns presented by parents this spring in relation to the changes in the program.

Mary Kay Canupp, wife of board member Charles Canupp had presented the special education parents demands. She said she "believes it (the council) will help. That's apparently all that they're willing to give us."

Council members will be selected by the end of August.

27-year-old dies in truck accident

A Mount Prospect man was killed early Wednesday when a small truck he was driving struck a median wall on the Northwest Tollway and burst into flames.

Richard M. Johnson, 27, of 1919 Cholo Ln., was dead on arrival at 3:30 a.m. at Northwest Community Hospital, Arlington Heights.

Police said Johnson was westbound on the tollway at 1 a.m. Wednesday when he apparently lost control of the truck a half mile from the Kennedy Expressway junction. There were no other passengers in his vehicle.

Johnson's accident reportedly triggered a second fatal crash at 2:38 a.m. Wednesday when Joseph Prince, 19, of Darien, Ill., drove into the rear of a state highway truck parked along the road for clean-up work from the first accident.

Police said the truck's warning lights were flashing.

Society hinders mobility of disabled: expert

by MARSHA S. BOSLEY

The handicapped population has been hindered from making a "normal transition into the working world," said Norman Koshkarian, casework supervisor for the Illinois Division of Vocational Rehabilitation.

Serving 59 suburbs in north and northwest Cook County, the rehabilitation office, 1050 Prospect Plaza, Mount Prospect, is one of 30 agencies of its kind throughout the state. It is funded 80 per cent by the federal government and 20 per cent in the state.

Koshkarian and nine full-time counselors trained in the social sciences work with the physically and emotionally disabled who are vocationally handicapped. "We try to prepare the individual to enter into a working situation where his handicap will not cut short his career," Koshkarian said.

The agency aids the congenitally handicapped as well as those persons who became disabled later in life. Koshkarian said the agency strives to place the handicapped back into society where they can feel they are of value. "In essence, they have been discriminated against, for example, by virtue of architectural barriers in society," he said.

ABOUT 10 PER cent of the U. S. population is disabled. "The problem is that the total population many times is unaware of this part of the population," Koshkarian said. "Like the alcoholic population, we don't see all of them. Not all of them seek treatment. Not everybody wants rehabilitation services."

Koshkarian said persons who visit the agency either have overcome their handicap and seek vocational direction, or are "angry" because they have not adjusted to their problems.

Last year, the agency helped rehabilitate 649 people. About 9,000 were rehabilitated statewide, including persons with psychotic, psychoneurotic, personality and behavioral disorders. Physical disabilities treated include the blind, the deaf, the speech impaired and the paraplegic.

KOSHKARIAN SAID his office handles about 900 ongoing cases, excluding another 300 referrals that must be assigned to the counselors. The referral sources include public schools, private physicians and individuals.

Once an individual is referred to the Division of Vocational Rehabilitation, the agency verifies the disability and provides vocational counseling and future training for jobs such as typing and stenography. Koshkarian said handicapped have been placed in jobs ranging from assembly-line tasks to teaching.

Successful rehabilitation can take from a few weeks to four to five years, Koshkarian said. "No rehabilitation is complete until an individual is employed or just as independent as anyone else," he said.

Kids to stage show for cystic fibrosis

A variety show to raise funds for the Cystic Fibrosis Assn. will be held at 7:30 p.m. today in the auditorium of Dempster Junior High School, 420 W. Dempster St., Mount Prospect.

The show will be put on by children in the neighborhood around the school who are seeking donations from those who attend. Rental for the school auditorium was paid by Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Renksiak, 1438 Fern St., Mount Prospect.

Neighborhood children will present a parody on "Jaws" and other sketches. Children in the show range in age from 10 to 17.

Paramedics not without woes

by BILL HURLEY

Edward Fabish, Buffalo Grove Village president Wednesday called for the village to disannex from the Wheeling Rural Fire Protection District and form its own fire department within a year.

"We would like to see it (fire protection) go municipal in the next year, but I honestly don't believe we could make the turnover in that length of time," he said.

Fabish said he has worked on three study committees looking into a possible municipal fire department and has found the biggest problem to be funding.

FABISH SAID A municipality cannot tax as high as a fire district unless a special referendum is passed by village residents. Such referendums have not been popular in Buffalo Grove in the past, he said.

Fabish said if the fire protection was transferred to a municipal operation, the costs would probably increase because it would be more difficult to find volunteer firemen.

Another problem in going municipal would be getting the Long Grove Fire district to disannex the Lake County portion of the village that it provides fire protection for. The district now levies a tax on Lake County Buffalo Grove residents and would be hurt by the loss of revenue. Fabish said there is a "jealous mistrust" between the two fire districts.

"As far as we're concerned, we're happy the way it is. We haven't had any problems," said Melvin Townner, Long Grove fire chief. He said Buffalo Grove would have to build another fire station if it formed a municipal department to give the same amount of service to northern Buffalo Grove, as it currently receives from Long Grove.

FABISH SAID IF Buffalo Grove could get the Long Grove and Wheeling fire districts to disannex the village area but fail to pass a tax referendum, it could consider forming a municipal fire district. Such a district would serve the entire village but would be a separate taxing body with the ability to tax at a higher rate than the village.

The Buffalo Grove Fire Dept., is large enough to protect the entire village although it is restricted to the Cook County portion, according to Buffalo Grove Fire Chief Wayne Winter.

Wheeling rural fire district to stay intact: Lemke

by LINDA PUNCH

The advent of paramedic service in the Wheeling Rural Fire Protection District has proved a godsend for residents and a headache for fire officials.

The rigid state requirements and guidelines that guarantee quality service for residents also create a financial crisis for the district. The fire districts answer — passage of an ambulance tax of up to 25 cents per $100 assessed valuation. The district will conduct a referendum on the issue Saturday.

Fire district officials said the ambulance tax is necessary to fund ambulance and paramedic service because general revenue funds can be used only for firefighting purposes. They note the demand for ambulance service has spiraled during the past years along with costs for providing the service.

THE FUNDING OF ambulance service is handled in a patchwork fashion in the district. Wheeling subsidizes the fire department by about $200,000 a year, which covers the service. Village officials also charge a $75 ambulance fee to nonresidents using the service.

During the period from May 1975 to April 1976, Wheeling paramedics answered 1,312 calls. Fire officials said this year are about 25 per cent ahead of last year. Wheeling Fire Chief Bernie Koeppen earlier this year said ambulance calls outnumbered fire calls by 2-1.

Koeppen said the operation of an ambulance, including salaries for six full-time paramedics, would cost about $173,276 a year. Wheeling firefighters double as paramedics on the village's two ambulances, reducing the over-all cost.

IN BUFFALO GROVE, donations and ambulance fees are the mainstay of the paramedic program. The village is unable to contribute tax funds to the department because it is a private corporation under contract to the fire district, a separate taxing body.

The Buffalo Grove department recently initiated a program in which families are guaranteed unlimited ambulance service for a $20 a year fee. Residents not enrolled in the program will be charged $70 per call.

Buffalo Grove Fire Chief Wayne Winter said he expects revenue totaling $32,000 from families enrolled in the program. He expects another $20,000 in ambulance fees from regular runs. The fire department budgeted $49,000 for paramedic and ambulance service for 1976. The Buffalo Grove department operates two ambulances.

Ambulance calls in Buffalo Grove have more than quadrupled since paramedic service began 3½ years ago. Winter said his department answered a "little more than 600 calls" in 1975. He said demand will increase slightly this year. About 60 per cent of the total fire calls are for ambulance service.

"You're not going to have as efficient fire protection with three departments (the Vernon Rural Fire District covers a small northeast corner of the village) as you would with just one," Winter said.

"OUR DEPARTMENT is large enough to protect our town. Any other services which come from other districts is just duplication," he said.

Winter said money used to increase services in the Long Grove department to help cover much of Buffalo Grove is wasted. It could be used to improve services in the Buffalo Grove department if it was responsible for the entire village, he said.

Winter said there are no immediate efforts to create a municipal fire department which would be funded and operated by the village and serve within its boundaries. Buffalo Grove now has no responsibility for fire protection.

"It's a matter of economics. We're a growing village and officials need money elsewhere. They figure they don't have to handle this thing right now. Their priorities are in other areas," Winter said.

THE ADVANTAGES of having one fire district for a village include better efficiency in fire protection and the use of money and lower fire insurance costs to residents.

Winter said a village covered by three fire districts is charged higher insurance costs because of poorer efficiency. He said insurance companies rate a village on over-all fire protection. A district with poor fire protection will offset the advantages of another district which has good coverage, he said.

Fall vote on bond issue

Parks plan referendum on golf course project

An early fall referendum is planned by the Arlington Heights Park District to finance construction of the Lochland Links golf course at the Nike Base.

Thomas Thornton, park district director, said the referendum to get voter approval of the issuance of about $1.4 million in general obligation bonds is necessary because of problems in marketing revenue bonds or obtaining a bank loan to finance the project.

Thornton said a special communitywide meeting will be held in about two weeks to explain the problems of financing the golf course, which officials say will pay for itself.

The golf course will perform double duty as a flood control project serving the southern end of the village, an area especially hard hit in the record rain fall of 1972. The village already has contributed $648,000 for a flood basin, grading and seeding on the site, Central and New Wilke roads.

THE PARK DISTRICT originally had planned to obtain revenue bonds to pay for the golf course. However, attempts to interest financial institutions in the bonds, which are paid for solely from money generated by the facility, were unsuccessful.

Former Village Pres. John G. Woods, who tried to intercede on behalf of the district, had said part of the problem was the amount of bonds. He said the $1.4 million was too little to interest big investors and too large for the small ones.

The general obligation bonds are more attractive to investors because the bonds are backed by the taxing power of the park district.

A 10-year construction loan from a bank, the kind used for the handball-racquetball addition to the Forest View Tennis Club, also was ruled out, Thornton said.

THE SPECIAL MEETING, probably to be held at the municipal building to accommodate the expected crowd, will be used to "explain the problems of financing," Thornton said.

He said the meeting will seek residents' opinions about what should be included in the referendum.

Thornton said the referendum could be for the golf course alone or else part of a package including development of park sites in the northern end of the district. The packaging proposal could be more acceptable to voters as part of a balanced development program.

Financial projections indicate the golf course would be self-supporting, enhancing its prospects at the polls, both Thornton and Woods have said.

"IT SHOULD BE attractive to the voters because essentially the golf course can be operated at no direct cost to the taxpayer," Woods said earlier.

The proposed referendum already has gained support from the Citizens Committee for Utilization of the Nike Base.

Martin Cawley, a member of the committee that led the fight to obtain the land from the Army, said "The Citizens Committee will back any reasonable effort to make use of the site."

Work to start Tuesday on Euclid Avenue project

The widening of Euclid Avenue near Arlington High School will begin Tuesday, causing traffic to be rerouted, village officials said Wednesday.

The project calls for the gradual widening of Euclid Avenue, west of Chestnut Avenue, to Walnut Avenue to allow for the construction of a left-turn lane.

Euclid Avenue will also be widened from Walnut Avenue to Ridge Avenue where it is four lanes.

The contract for the $200,000 job has been awarded to Rock Road Construction Co., Arlington Heights.

The work, which also includes landscaping and new sidewalks, should be finished before school begins or about Sept. 1, William Bachem of the village's engineering department, said.

Stoplights will be installed at the intersection of Euclid and Walnut avenues in November or December, Bachem said.

Beginning Tuesday morning, Euclid Avenue will be closed between Ridge and Chestnut avenues, he said.

Eastbound traffic on Euclid Avenue will be rerouted at Northwest Highway to Vail Avenue, where it will be directed north for four blocks back to Euclid Avenue.

Westbound traffic on Euclid Avenue will be forced to turn south at Chestnut Avenue and go three blocks to Northwest Highway.

$13.4 million budget to go to Dist. 25 today

A tentative budget calling for expenditures of $13.4 million for the 1976-77 school year will be presented to the Arlington Heights Dist. 25 school board today at 7:30 p.m. at the administration center, 301 W. South St., Arlington Heights.

The budget calls for an increase in expenditures of .59 per cent from last year's budget of $13.3 million.

The board also will discuss subsidizing Music For Youth, an independent organization that has sponsored the string music program in Dist. 25 schools since 1971.

At the June board meeting, the board rejected a proposed subsidy of $8,800 for the group next year on a three-to-three vote, but deferred final action on a subsidy until the organization could present additional budget information.

Music For Youth originally asked for a subsidy of $14,800 for the 1976-77 school year. The district subsidized the program with a $5,500 grant last year.

Building contracts awarded by parks

More than $500,000 in contracts have been awarded by the Arlington Heights Park District for the construction of racquetball and handball courts at the Forest View Tennis Club.

The addition of the eight courts is being financed through a 10-year construction loan from the Bank and Trust Co. of Arlington Heights.

Thomas Thornton, park district director, said ground will be broken within two or three weeks. He said construction should be completed within 180 days.

The contracts, totaling $513,607, were awarded to:

- General contractor, Norman Bulterman, $376,862.
- Plumbing, Ewing Plumbing, $13,250.
- Heating and air conditioning, Gideon, $51,745.
- Electrical, Berwyn Electric, $71,750.

Reduction seen in road taxes in Wheeling Twp.

Wheeling Township residents will pay less in road and bridge taxes next year because the recent incorporation of Prospect Heights is slicing the township's road maintenance responsibilities in half.

Highway Comr. Arthur Olsen said he must adjust the Wheeling Township Road and Bridge District's 1976-77 budget to account for the incorporation of the new city earlier this year. The current budget is $645,263.

Prospect Heights formerly comprised 60 per cent of the roads maintained by the township road and bridge district in unincorporated areas. The district has discontinued regular service to Prospect Heights since it became a city in January. The district currently is providing only emergency road maintenance for a charge.

OLSEN SAID A reduction in regular road maintenance expenses will result in a change in this year's budget and future tax levies.

"We plan to delete line item costs for the road work we had planned to do in Prospect Heights from this year's budget, which will result in some savings. But, there are fixed costs that we have that will not change because of the incorporation," Olsen said.

"It will mean that we will decrease the road and bridge tax levy beginning next year (1977-78) because we will not have the need for as much revenue," he said.

The road district will conduct a special meeting at 7:30 p.m. Aug. 31 at the Wheeling Township Hall, 1818 E. Northwest Hwy., Arlington Heights.

OLSEN SAID HE does not know how much the district's road and bridge tax levy will decrease. Wheeling Township residents currently pay about 10 cents per $100 equalized assessed valuation, or about $10 in annual road and bridge taxes for the owner of a house assessed at $10,000.

Municipalities located in Wheeling Township receive one half of the road and bridge tax funds collected by the district each year.

"The incorporation will have no effect on the taxes being received this year because those funds are paying for road and bridge work that was done during the last fiscal year," Olsen said.

Vacation church school

"Because God Loves" is the title of the vacation church school program at Our Saviour's Lutheran Church in Arlington Heights this month.

Registration for the program, July 19-30, should be made this week. For further information, call 394-8587.

Anti-vandalism program topic of panel meeting

The Zero Vandalism committee will hear reports today on successful efforts to curb vandalism in Wauwatosa, Wis., and the cost of creating a video tape to educate students on the cost and effects of vandalism.

The meeting, open to the public, is at 8 p.m. in the municipal building, 33 S. Arlington Heights Rd.

Two committee members attended a seminar sponsored by the Wauwatosa Chamber of Commerce, which instituted a program that has led to a 16 per cent reduction in vandalism in one year in the Milwaukee suburb. The Wauwatosa program stresses "positive peer group pressure," said William J. Tetzlaff, the chamber's executive director.

Tetzlaff said the program's key was the use of youths to educate each other rather than having police increase law enforcement efforts.

The education subcommittee will give a report detailing the costs of producing a video tape anti-vandalism program to be shown in local schools.

Dist. 23 milk, bus fee hikes OK'd

Increases in milk and bus transportation fees for the 1976-77 school year have been approved by the Prospect Heights Dist. 23 Board of Education.

Bus transportation fees will increase from $54 per child to $63 per child. Families will pay $63 each for the first three children in each family with additional children riding free. Milk fees will increase from 3 cents per carton to 4 cents per carton this fall.

The board this week also discussed increasing the junior high school towel fee to $6.50 but action was deferred until the administration can supply additional information.

The board approved providing parents with an optional student school insurance program. Coverage for students during the school day will cost $4 and coverage for students at all times will cost $18.

Lunch fees other than milk prices will stay the same. Student lunches cost 50 cents and adult lunches cost 65 cents.

Dist. 59 janitors get 7% pay hike

Custodians in Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 received a 7 per cent salary increase for the 1976-77 school year.

The school board Monday approved the 1976-77 contract for the Custodial-Maintenance Organization, which was approved by the union in June.

The contract calls for a 7 per cent salary increase for permanent employees and a 4.4 per cent salary increase for custodians on probation.

Hourly salary rates for full-time employees for the 1976-77 school year are day and night custodians, $5.26; head custodians at elementary schools, $5.90; maintenance men, relief men and head custodians at junior high schools, $6.01.

Hourly salaries for custodians on probation will be day and night custodians, $4.88; head custodians at elementary schools, $5.19; maintenance men, relief men and head custodians at junior high schools, $5.44.

July 23 blood drive at municipal center

The Village of Arlington Heights will hold a blood drive on July 23 at the municipal building, 33 S. Arlington Heights Rd.

The drive, from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m., is open to all persons who wish to donate blood to ease the current blood shortage.

Anyone in good health, weighing at least 110 pounds and between the ages of 17 and 66 may donate. To make a reservation, call Dolores Brickler at the village hall, 253-2340, ext. 245.
